'Not enough discrepancies'

WHIP 'won't challenge' results of close election

by LYNN ASINOF

Candidates of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) have decided, on the advice of their attorneys, not to challenge the results of last month's closely contested village election.

Sheila Schultz, who served as WHIP campaign manager, said the decision was based on the results of the informal recount of ballots last week.

"Basically there were just not enough discrepancies in the discovery to warrant a recount," she said. "There wasn't enough there to go on."

Although the WHIP candidates have decided not to contest the election in court, one trustee seat on the village board remains in question due to the resignation of Richard Missing.

MISSING did not take office with the other newly elected village officials in order to prevent a possible conflict between his job and Illinois law. He is employed as buyer-manager at the Mark Drugs, a store that sells liquor. State law prohibits any elected municipal official from either the sale or distribution of liquor.

Mrs. Schultz said the WHIP candidates are now waiting to see what action the village board will take to fill Missing's vacancy. The board can either call a special election to fill the seat or appoint a trustee to serve until the next village election in 1975.

"We're watching closely to see what the administration is going to do about filling Mr. Missing's vacancy," Mrs. Schultz said. "I think that the expenditure on a new election is certainly not too large considering the circumstances. I think I can safely speak for the party on that."

Such an election is estimated to cost $2,400.

MRS. SCHULTZ said the WHIP party has not yet decided what action they will take on Missing's vacancy. She said, however, that if a special election is called, the WHIP party will participate.

"I'm sure everyone who participated this time would continue, with perhaps more people being involved," she said.

The village board has deferred making any decision on what action to take in filling Missing's vacancy so its attorney can prepare a legal opinion on the matter.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer said yesterday this report will be ready for the village board by Monday night. He said he will make no recommendation as to what action the board should take. "I don't recommend anything," he said. "I just point out the alternatives."

The WHIP decision not to challenge the election results eliminates the last possibility that newly elected persons now sitting on the village board might be removed from office.

Those persons elected to office include Village Pres. Ted Scanlon, trustees Bill Hein and Don Jackson and Village Clerk Evelyn Diens.

Industrial development trend seen in building statistics

by LYNN ASINOF

Building statistics for the 1972-73 fiscal year show a trend toward increasing industrial development in Wheeling due to a growing labor market, according to the village director of building and zoning.

Bill Bieber, the director, said statistics show a marked increase in the number of industrial and commercial buildings going up in the village. He attributed this growth to the increasing labor market provided by the various multi-family developments coming to Wheeling.

"They go hand in hand," Bieber said. "Most of the time industry will go into an area where they have the manpower market. The only trend we're getting is we're getting more industrial out here because we have more manpower."

ACCORDING TO Bieber's estimations, the village now has a population of 18,786.

During the past fiscal year, 1,606 multiple-family living units have been built in Wheeling. This development includes apartments, condominiums, townhouses and quadro-homes.

"We've got to remember that most of the multi-family building is for-sale housing," Bieber said. He said most people think of multiple-family developments as apartments instead of for-sale housing.

"It all comes under multiple, no matter what it is," he said. "It misrepresents itself. The bigger percentage is sold units in the Village of Wheeling."

BIEBER ESTIMATED that the multiple-family development over the past year has increased the village's assessed valuation by $15,262,528. This type of housing contributed the largest increase of Wheeling's tax base.

By comparison, only three single-family homes were built in the village during the past fiscal year. Bieber said the low number of single-family homes was to be expected. "People aren't interested in them anymore," he said.

During the past year, 10 industrial and six commercial buildings have been added to the village. This represents a $2,849,095 increase in the village's assessed valuation.

Bieber said these 16 buildings represent a significant increase in commercial and industrial development. "Up until this last year, I think we averaged out about four or five," he said. "But we didn't have a market out here for manpower."

ACCORDING TO Bieber, the amount of remodeling done in the village during the past year is also indicative of commercial growth in the village. Nine industrial buildings and 23 commercial buildings were granted remodeling permits during the year.

"That's quite a bit," Bieber said. "It indicates that these companies are finding bigger and better markets out here in Wheeling."

During the year, 58 permits were granted for the remodeling of residential buildings. "People are upgrading their property more and more," Bieber said. "It's a lot cheaper to remodel than to buy a new home."

Another indication that homeowners are upgrading their property is the number of garages and swimming pools installed over the past year. Permits were granted for 35 new residential garages and seven swimming pools or other recreational facilities.

Total building in the village increased Wheeling's assessed valuation by $19,231,190. Bieber said the village also received $125,065 in permit fees for signs, fences, pools and other building.

FLAGS AT THE Wheeling Park District are flying at half staff in honor of former Park Comm. Alf Wilson. Wilson died Wednesday at Chicago's Northwest Hospital after suffering an apparent cerebral hemorrhage last Sunday. Visitation will be from 3 to 5 p.m. today at the Wheeling Funeral Home. Funeral services will be in the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd tomorrow, with burial at the Memory Gardens Cemetery in Arlington Heights.

Resident hits relocation of plant here

The Wheeling Village Board has received its first negative reaction to the proposed relocation in Wheeling of Sunnyside Products, Inc., a Chicago firm that packages flammable liquids.

Esther Davis, 15 E. Jeffrey Ave., told the board earlier this week that the plant would bring additional problems to the residents of Meadowbrook West. She said these residents already are plagued by flooding and noise from the aircraft at Palwaukee Airport.

The zoning board last month recommended granting a variation that would allow the plant to store highly flammable liquids in underground tanks and to process these liquids from above ground tanks.

If the variation is granted by the village board, Sunnyside plans to construct a new plant in the Wheeling Industrial Park on Carpenter Avenue.

IN A LETTER to the board, Mrs. Davis said she did not think this was a suitable location for the plant. "A firm of this type should seek a site in an industrial area far removed from a residential section so densely populated," she said.

Mrs. Davis noted that in the past Meadowbrook residents were plagued with "obnoxious odors" from the Wheeling Disposal Co. plant. "Now that we have finally eradicated that problem we are confronted with this one," she said.

In her letter, Mrs. Davis asked the board to weigh the effects of the plant on the people of the village. "Consider the effects a plant of this type would have on allergy and asthmatic patients, pets, outdoor activities, property value and functions at our beautiful Heritage Park," she said.

Mrs. Davis said she did not think the tax money or job opportunities created by the plant balanced its inconveniences.

Village Pres. Ted Scanlon directed the village attorney to investigate whether the plant would have any of these effects on village residents. He told the manager to report his findings to the board.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Former Nixon administration cabinet members John Mitchell and Maurice Stans were indicted yesterday on charges they sought to obstruct an investigation by a federal agency in exchange for a secret $200,000 cash contribution to Nixon's reelection campaign.

President Nixon has named CIA director James Schlesinger to replace Elliot Richardson as secretary of defense. He also named John Connally as special adviser.

The Pentagon Papers trial was brought to the verge of dismissal of charges when an FBI report indicated that Daniel Ellsberg's telephone conversations had been tapped but that information was withheld throughout the trial.

Most electronic systems aboard Skylab and its rocket were checked and found free of lightning damage, and the countdown proceeded unhindered toward Monday's launch.

In a major attack against President Nixon's Indochina policy, the House blocked a transfer of funds at the Pentagon to relieve money shortages caused by the bombing of Indochina.

Former White House counsel John Dean III said there was "a concerted effort to get me" but he would refuse to shoulder the blame for others implicated in the Watergate affair.

The state

A measure designed to offset last year's U. S. Supreme Court ruling which held abortions are legal in the first three months, has passed the Illinois House.

Judge Julius Hoffman of U. S. District court has been removed as the judge who will try an explosive Chicago police scandal. Judge William Bauer was assigned to try the case.

Gov. Daniel Walker announced his support for the Oakley Reservoir near Decatur. Construction could begin as early as July of 1974.

The world

Lebanese air force planes again went into action to silence Palestinian guerrilla positions by bombarding the Kileat air base near Lebanon's northern border with Syria.

The Viet Cong have accused the South Vietnamese government of murdering 25 civilian prisoners who were supposed to have been released under Vietnam peace accord terms.

A day just for her... and a Mom of 10 can look back with pride

by JULIA BAUER

When Mother's Day comes around, each of the 10 Hogan kids has a particularly sticky problem — what to do for Mom.

You see, cards and store purchases and flowers are nice and all that but Patricia Hogan has other ideas about Mother's Day — what she really appreciates is help. You know, services. The extra gift of yourself that mothers seem to especially treasure.

"It's so commercial now," Mrs. Hogan sighed. She leafed through the newspaper and saw ads screaming that what Mom needs is a nightgown, a box of candy, a precious spring bouquet, a mother's birthstone ring. But what would she really like? For Mrs. Hogan, a little pampering is the best, and the kids have caught on.

"Usually, it's breakfast in bed with a

Still prosecuting business tax cases: Carey

Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey said today that his office still is responsible for prosecution of delinquent personal property tax cases against most types of businesses.

Individuals and individuals owning businesses as sole proprietorships are the only cases exempt from payment, according to an opinion issued April 25 by the Illinois Supreme Court. In accordance with the opinion, the state's attorney's office will continue to prosecute cases.

The state's attorney's office files a lawsuit against the taxpayer when the tax is not paid at the assessor's office. Bank stock is taxable under the new decision if there is more than one owner.

Carey noted that there currently are more than 100,000 cases pending against delinquent taxpayers.

"We are working to improve the efficiency of this section. We are keeping current on our caseload in the personal property tax suits and expect a great percentage will be disposed of in 1973," Carey said.

Dunne's mobile unit to visit shop centers

Local residents with questions or complaints about Cook County government will have a chance to visit a mobile unit from the County Board President's Office of Inquiry and Information later this month.

The mobile unit will be in the Golf-Rose Shopping Center at Golf and Roselle Roads in Hoffman Estates from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on May 22 and May 24 and from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. on May 23 and 25.

Residents will be able to visit the unit at the Market Place Shopping Center at Highways 83 and 58 in Des Plaines from 1:30 to 4 p.m. on May 22 and May 24 and from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. May 23 and 25.

Members of County Board Pres George Dunne's Office of Inquiry and Information will staff the mobile unit.

In addition to having informational materials and various county forms, the staff members can also register new voters.

Square Dance News

ARLINGTON SQUARES

The Arlington Squares will feature club caller Paul "Foggy" Thompson and guest round dance leaders Helen and Bill Stairwalt at their "Flower Power" dance tonight at St. Simon Episcopal Church, 717 W. Kirchhoff Rd., Arlington Heights.

A half hour of rounds will begin at 8 p.m. followed by squares at 8:30 p.m. Dancing will continue until 11 p.m. Refreshments will be served and all area dancers are welcome.

BUCKS AND DOES

Maypole dancing will be the order of the day as Paul "Foggy" Thompson calls for the Bucks and Does tomorrow night at the Dempster Junior High School, Dempster Street (just west of Rt. 83), Mount Prospect, beginning at 8 p.m.

Lee Simpson and Shirley Kenluk will be on hand to cue the rounds. Refreshments will be served and everyone is invited.

The Bucks and Does summer dancing will start June 9 at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Drive, with Foggy Thompson kicking off the season. For more information call 629-3874.

HAPPY TWIRLERS

Happy Twirlers will be dancing tonight at the Congregational Church, Grace and Marion streets in Des Plaines, with the Char-Lee Weilers calling the squares.

Registrations are being made for the "summer class" that will be taught by Char-Lee in an air-conditioned hall of a church in Des Plaines. Classes will begin in June and you may register by calling 824-1464.

dandelion on the tray," Mrs. Hogan said. This year, youngest son, Joe, 9, is baking a cake for the occasion. It's his second attempt as baker, after a trial run that "had too much chocolate in it," Joe admits. This one won't be chocolate.

THE OLDER kids either don't know what they'll do yet or they're not talking. But by Sunday, there will probably be a few "extras" that the Hogan clan doesn't normally bestow upon its mother.

By now, Mrs. Hogan has weathered the more hectic years of toddlers and infants. But if you didn't know there were children already grown with their own families, it would take a sharp mathematician to come within 10 years of Mrs. Hogan's age. A slim blonde, Mrs. Hogan admits that she and her husband have been married for 28 years. But officially "I'm only 39."

Some women much younger than 39 would have a rough time keeping up with the schedule of activities her children have. All of the older sons, six in all, have participated in basketball and other high school sports, and "we attend all the games," Mrs. Hogan smiled proudly. Eighteen years separate the eldest, Jerry, from his youngest brother Joe.

Other steps in the Hogan lineup are Mike, 25; Frank, 23; Patrick, 20; Brian, 19; John, 18; Maura, 14; Maggie, 13 and Joan, 10.

WHILE THE OLDEST five are living away from home now, there are still five children, two parents and a dog in the Hogan home at 614 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Do they have to double up on bedrooms? "You mean triple up," Mrs. Hogan laughed. "We use a lot of bunk beds."

For her, motherhood is an "exciting, interesting career. Really, you can do just about anything you want with your time," Mrs. Hogan said. But there is one drawback — loneliness.

With 10 children, Mrs. Hogan has found times when she yearned for an adult to talk with, someone who would discuss things at her level, rather than at the normal everyday chatter of youngsters.

Sometimes, it's been hard to take the youngsters' tales seriously. A few years ago, when 10-year-old Joan was just beginning grade school, Mrs. Hogan said the child walked in from school and announced that she'd been kidnapped.

AS IT TURNED OUT, the little redhead actually had been picked up by a woman who had come to the school to get several other kids and take them to their homes. When everyone else had been dropped off, there was Joan and the woman, trying to figure out what the other was doing.

A large family wasn't necessarily in the game plan when the Hogans got married.

"I thought it was pretty overwhelming to have just one child, before I had any," Mrs. Hogan said. And in the time since the Hogans had their children, the attitudes toward large families have changed.

"Large families were in vogue when we were having children," Mrs. Hogan C'MON, JOE, don't hog the cookies. There are four more kids in line, and they're all bigger than you are. The Hogan referees, commonly known as

Mom, is waiting for her turn to come Sunday, when the kids get to wait on her for Mother's Day. The five youngest Hogan children, with Mrs. Hogan on the left, are Maura, Joan, John, Maggie and Joe, seated. Five older boys already have graduated from high school and moved away from home.

said. But she, and her children, generally approve of the trend toward smaller families, particularly with the growing population problem.

DISCIPLINING A large family hasn't been a major problem at the Hogan house. While she admits that she does a lot of "talking" to make the kids behave, Mrs. Hogan said she seldom gets physical with the discipline.

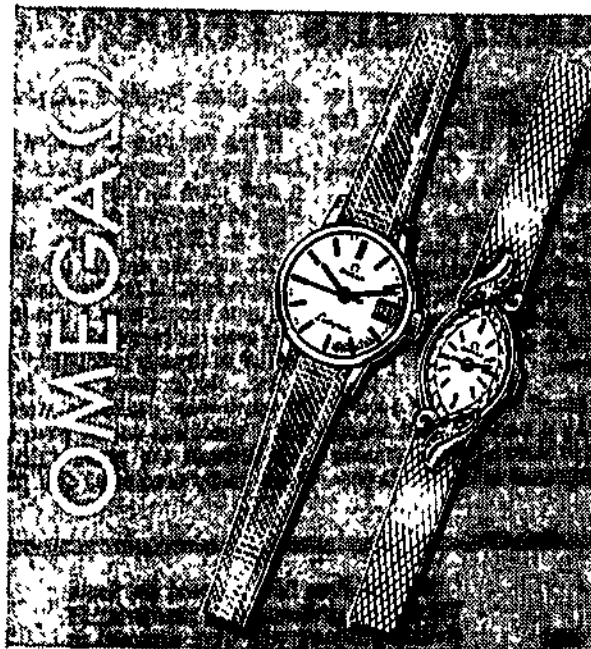

At least part of that "talking" is devoted to a subject dear to most mothers' hearts in recent years . . . the length of their sons' hair.

"You should see the older ones. I talk about it everyday," Mrs. Hogan said, and the four children standing around her in the kitchen smiled and nodded their heads that, yes, Mom does talk about it every day. But so far, the towering sons, most of them in their twenties, seem to have the edge on the haircut issue.

Fly a kite, win a prize at fish fry

Go fly a kite next Saturday at the Wheeling Park District's "Kite Fly and Fish Fry" and you might win a prize.

Prizes will be awarded to the person who enters the best kite in his age group in each category of the contest at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

Age groups include children age 7 and under, children age 8 through 12, those 13 to 15 and anyone over 16. Prizes will be given for the best two-stick kite, three-stick kite, box kite, novelty kite, largest smallest, most artistic and highest flying kites in each age range.

Homemade kites must be made of paper, string and wood. No metal may be used in their construction. Prizes for the most artistic kite and the best novelty kites in the contest will be awarded only to persons entering homemade kites. All kites entered in the competition must fly.

Registration for the contest will be conducted this week and next at Heritage Park. There is a 25-cent fee. In case of rain, the contest will be conducted Saturday, May 26.

Participants in the kite competition may bring a sack lunch or purchase fried trout. The charge for the trout will be 75 cents for a fish dinner or 50 cents per fish.

Plan tea to honor retiring teachers

Three School Dist. 21 teachers, who will retire at the end of this school year, will be honored during a tea at 4 p.m. May 24 in Cooper Junior High School, Buffalo Grove.

The teachers are Emily Schupner, who teaches second grade at Kilmer School in Buffalo Grove, Minette Sprain, fourth grade instructor at Riley School in Arlington Heights and Ralph Beasley, learning disabilities instructor at London Junior High School in Wheeling.

The three are the only Dist. 21 teachers who are leaving the district because they have reached the legal retirement age.

Ray Lee, principal at Sandburg School, also plans to retire this spring, after 35 years in the field of education. He will be honored June 1 at a dinner at Hans' Bavarian Lodge in Wheeling given by the Sandburg staff.

A BOY WITH WHEELS is likely to head out to the old fishing hole any chance he gets and yesterday's warm weather provided a perfect opportunity for some important pursuits.

Gifted children programs extended

Pilot programs for academically and creatively gifted children have been extended for another year by the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 school board.

Both programs were started on a pilot basis this year. The program for the academically gifted involved 16 students in the fourth and fifth grades at Eisenhower School who were chosen on the basis of an intelligence test, achievement tests and their teachers' recommendations.

To qualify, the children had to be rated at least three grade levels above their classmates in one area.

Once accepted, students were allowed to spend two hours each day in an "idea lab" working on independent projects.

THE CREATIVELY gifted class was an outgrowth of the program for the academically gifted. It involved 20 students from the first through fifth grades at Eisenhower School.

The academically gifted class cost the district $3,200. However, the district will be reimbursed by the state for this cost next year. According to Supt. Edward Grodsky, state title programs allow pilot projects the first year a school district is given funds.

Then funds are provided for the second and third years to increase the program and disseminate results. "Once you get established, they want you to assume the costs," Grodsky said. "The district eventually will have to start assuming a bigger portion of the bill."

THE CREATIVELY gifted program costs the district nothing since the teachers and volunteers donate their planning periods to conduct the special classes.

Next year, the district plans to continue the pilot program at Eisenhower, but in the third grade rather than fourth and fifth. The academically gifted program for fifth graders will be extended to all the schools in the district, Grodsky said.

According to Grodsky, one person would be appointed in each of the schools to handle the gifted children. This person would be given a half-day each week to do the work. The funds for the volunteer would come out of the substitute program, Grodsky said.

In other business at Wednesday's meeting, the board directed the administration to look into having a crossing guard placed at the intersection of Rand and Camp McDonald Roads. Several parents have complained that the intersection is a dangerous one.

Also at the meeting, the board officially approved the appointment of the board's attorney, Henry Valley, as a negotiator for the board. Valley has been working on negotiations for several weeks. However, because the board failed to make his appointment at the recent board reorganization meeting, members did it officially Wednesday. Valley has been hired at a cost of $30 per hour.

Northgate students to attend Eisenhower

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board has approved a temporary boundary change that will send students in the Northgate subdivision in Arlington Heights to Eisenhower School next year.

Currently, students from the subdivision attend John Muir School, which is facing a problem of overcrowding. The school, on Drake Terrace in Prospect Heights, has experienced an increase in students as more and more homes have been completed in Northgate and in the Ivy Hill subdivision, also in Arlington Heights.

According to Muir Prin. Jim Finke, Muir now has 296 students in attendance, with a capacity for 310. According to Finke, the school cannot hold students from both Northgate and Ivy Hill.

Since there are now only eight students from the Northgate subdivision now attending Muir, the administration felt it would be better to transfer the children from Northgate rather than Ivy Hill, which has 60 students attending Muir.

Eisenhower, at Camp McDonald and Schoenbeck Roads, has three classrooms that are not being used and the school will not be adversely affected by the change, according to school officials. The students will be bused, as they are to Muir.

Because of the increase in housing projects in the Dist. 23 area, the administration is now gathering statistics on the possible need for a sixth elementary school and an addition to Muir for the 1974-75 school year.

Grodsky said the study should be completed in July.

'Coffeehouse' plays tonight at Stevenson

Two original one-act plays will be featured in a coffeehouse program to be presented at 8 p.m. tonight in the Adlai Stevenson High School commons.

The program, sponsored by the school's "Wit" magazine staff, will also include dancing, songs and poetry.

Tickets, at $1 each, may be purchased at the door. Proceeds from the production will be used to defray some of the expenses of publishing the "Wit," a literary journal.

The program will feature "An Absurd Drama" by Diane Didler and "About Man" by Lisa Iseberg. Song and dance entertainers include Liz Wenner, Marie Moody, Lori Groff, Lynn Sommerfield, Dennis Simpson, Marcia Dush, Pam Ervin, Amy Borgstrom, Julie Fournier and Laura LaPlaca.

Tina Segalla is in charge of an artwork display, which will be shown during the program.

Mobile driver test unit at Randhurst May 14, 15

A mobile driver's testing unit, staffed by two Illinois driver's license examiners, will be at the Randhurst Shopping Center May 14 and 15.

The secretary of state's licensing facility, a converted bookmobile, will make its debut here, the first stop on a 15-city tour throughout Illinois in May and June.

The license examiners will give written, vision and sign tests and "will be just like a full driver's testing station except there will be no actual driving test," a spokesman for Secretary of State Michael Howlett said yesterday.

The Herald urged such a mobile driver's testing unit in the Northwest suburbs more than a year ago, after plans for a permanent driver station here were delayed. Howlett's aide said the stop in the Northwest suburbs was chosen first because of the public sentiment for a local licensing facility.

He said no site for a permanent facility in the area has been selected. A three-man committee is now searching for a new site.

LAST YEAR, the secretary of state's office announced that a station would be built near Quentin Road between Northwest Highway and Dundee roads north of Palatine. But it was determined a substantial portion of the land was unbuildable.

The mobile unit will hit all the large population areas in the state during the next two months, according to the Howlett spokesman. It will visit Rockford, Moline, Champaign and Lawrenceville this month.

Besides administering the written tests, the state examiners will have records available of all drivers in Illinois and will renew licenses and correct those with misinformation.

School tax rate to dip 30c per $100: official

The 1972 tax rate for Prospect Heights Dist. 23 has been lowered 30 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, according to Supt. Edward Grodsky.

Grodsky said he learned of the lower rate from the Cook County Clerk's office Monday. Last year's rate for the school district was $3.10 per $100 of assessed valuation. The reduction means that now the rate will amount to only $2.80 per $100 of assessed valuation.

According to Business Manager James Hendren, the lower rate is the result of an increase in assessed property valuation in the district plus an elimination and reduction of several of the school fund levies.

According to Hendren, the board has eliminated the capital improvement fund and the levy for special education. The Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund (IMRF) has been reduced to a nominal amount and the working cash, life safety, insurance and transportation funds have all been reduced.

The lower rate was the result of an intentional effort on the part of the board, Hendren said. "There was an effort on the part of the board to show the community that they are watching it. We feel pretty good about it," Hendren said.

However, the rate does not necessarily mean that tax bills for residents will be lower than last year. The school levy is only one portion of the total real estate tax levy.

Banquet to honor Cooper athletes

A banquet to honor all athletes at Cooper Junior High School is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Friday, May 18. The school is located just off Arlington Heights Road on Plum Grove Circle in Buffalo Grove.

Wayne Selvig, athletic director at Buffalo Grove High School, will be guest speaker.

Anyone interested in volunteering to help with the dinner should contact Jack Allmiller at 537-6225.

A strike for the little guy!

Judge orders Clark Oil Co. to restore supplies to small stations

A strike for the little guy — at least the small gasoline station which is dependent on giant companies for fuel — was won this week in the courts.

A temporary restraining order was filed on Tuesday by U. S. Circuit Court Judge Bernard Decker, compelling Clark Oil Co. to restore supplies to Tri-American Oil Co. The firm is a subsidiary of the Lake Shore Oil Co. and markets gasoline through a number of South Side stations under the name Ryan.

Clark Oil cut off a number of midwest customers on May 1 due to supply shortages. Including the Tri-American Oil Co. Another hearing on the oil company's petition will be heard May 17 in Chicago. Tri-American claimed violation of contract, and the Sherman and Clayton antitrust laws.

"IF TRI-AMERICA should win a permanent restraining order, others throughout the U. S., also affected, would be encouraged to bring suit," said Herbert Hugo, Midwest bureau chief for the Platt's Oilgram publication. He said this is the first successful Midwest case that he knows of, in which a customer has succeeded in regaining their supplies.

Ralph Porcelli, an officer of the Gasoline Retailers Association of Metropolitan Chicago, said a number of other suits of this type have been filed in the area, but none of these has been resolved.

The Tri-American case, as well as efforts on behalf of independent marketers in Washington, may alleviate some of the problems they are experiencing during the current supply squeeze.

Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said yesterday in testimony before the Senate Banking Committee that the Office of Oil and Gasoline in the Interior Department is asking the petroleum industry to make gasoline and fuel supplies available to all customers in the same proportion as before shortages became acute.

SIMON SAID earlier in the week that recommendations for emergency allocations of fuel supplies will be issued in the near future. Priorities could be assigned on the basis of need or national security considerations.

Many of the nation's 23 largest oil companies have begun allocation programs within past several weeks. Under these programs, customers under contract receive a given percentage of the previous year's shipments of fuel. A number of independents who normally buy the excess fuel from larger companies have been cut off from by their suppliers.

Exxon Co. said this week it will begin restricting some deliveries of fuel to its customers. The company will supply existing customers gasoline, heating oil and other supplies equal to last year's supply, plus an allowance for this year's growth. However, potential new customers probably won't be served and some existing customers will not receive all the supplies requested.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., are among the legislators introducing bills to require major oil companies to maintain supplies to independents. A group of 35 Senators called on President Nixon earlier this week to begin an allocation program to independent marketers and refiners.

A TEMPORARY restraining order issued by a federal judge has allowed a small independent gas dealer company to continue to be supplied with gasoline despite the reported fuel shortages.

Government says 'no' to mandatory gas rationing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration rejected mandatory gasoline rationing yesterday, but called on the petroleum industry to adopt a voluntary system for allocating supplies to customers.

Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said the Office of Oil and Gasoline (OOG) in the Interior Department would retain the power to require suppliers to sell to customers if the customers can show they are "not receiving a proper allocation of supplies."

Simon announced the voluntary program at a hearing of the Senate Banking Committee. He said OOG had sent telegrams to the petroleum industry — refiners, wholesalers, distributors and jobbers — announcing the plan.

The plan asks those suppliers to make available to each of their customers the same proportion of gasoline as they received before shortages developed.

The purpose is to make sure independent gas stations, which often buy "branded" gasoline and sell it under their own labels, are not denied fuel and forced out of business.

Suppliers also are asked not to charge independents more than their regular customers.

American Farm Bureau head blames weather

Lower food price hopes 'unrealistic'

William J. Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said that government predictions of lower food prices by fall are "unrealistic" in view of heavy spring rains and disastrous floods that will delay crop planting.

"Every day of delay in planting decreases the national crop product by three to five bushels. This cuts down the supply and the law of supply and demand still operates as a big factor in food prices," Kuhfuss said.

Kuhfuss noted that millions of acres of farmland are still under floodwaters of the Mississippi and other rivers, and that much other acreage remains soggy from heavy spring rains.

"It is hazardous and unrealistic to predict a decline of food prices under the weather and flood situations we have experienced," Kuhfuss told a news conference.

Kuhfuss commented on a government prediction earlier this week that food prices would drop or go no higher by fall, although administration agriculture spokesmen later hedged on the forecast.

Make a cool addition to your forced air system.
The Lennox Nifty Weather Machine.

*For 18,000 Btu/h outdoor condensing unit, indoor cooling coil and refrigerant lines. Installation extra.

$358.50

Back about 1893, when Dave Lennox made his first furnace, relief from summer heat was a hunk of ice and a patch of shade. There have been some changes made. Now you'll find the Lennox name on nifty weather machines that cool and clean the air and control moisture in homes and buildings. And these weather machines are designed so that even if you aren't lucky enough to have a Lennox furnace, you can still add Lennox central air conditioning, air cleaning and moisture control to nearly any forced air system. That's a relief, for sure. Get out from under the weather with a Lennox nifty weather machine.

Crane against bill giving Senate OK to budget chief

Following is a summary of activity by Illinois' two senators, Republican Charles H. Percy and Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson III, and Northwest suburban congressman Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and Samuel H. Young, R-10th, during the first two days following the Easter recess, in which the only significant action was a vote in the House on a bill requiring Senate confirmation of the two top officers in the Office of Management of the Budget. Congressional Record votes for May 2, 3 and 4 will be reported later in the Herald.

QUORUM CALLS
Senate, one, with Percy and Stevenson both present.
House, two, with Crane and Young absent for both.

MEASURES CO-SPONSORED
Stevenson, a bill to prohibit any material to be enclosed with any Social Security check which contains the name, signature, or title of any federal officer other than the commissioner of the Social Security Administration.

MEASURES SPONSORED
Percy, a joint resolution to authorize the President to designate the period from March 3 to March 9, 1974 as National Nutrition Week.
RECORD VOTES
Motion to close debate on a bill to establish within the Bureau of the Census a Voter Registration Administration to administer a registration program through the Postal Service, defeated 55 yes-31 no (two-thirds majority required).

Elected state school chief plan may be put to voters

Illinois voters may be asked next year to abolish the position of appointed state superintendent of schools before the first appointed superintendent even has a chance to take office.

A resolution providing for a change in the constitution to require the election of the state superintendent was passed this week 115 to 37 by the Illinois House. If the measure now receives a three-fifths majority in the Senate, it will be placed on the ballot in November, 1974.

The education article of the 1971 Constitution provides for creation of a state board of higher education which would then appoint a state school superintendent ent by Jan. 1975. Michael Bakalis, current state superintendent, was elected in 1970 and his term is due to expire in 1975.

Legislators have been wrangling this session over creation of the state board of education. Measures providing for appointment of the state board by the governor and for election of state board members have been introduced in both houses of the Illinois General Assembly.

PASSAGE OF THE measure to restore the elected state superintendent, sponsored by Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, would render the debate over make-up of a state board moot, since the board would have no control over the state superintendent.

In supporting his proposal before the House, Friedland said he believes so much tax money goes into education that the chief school officer should be elected.

Rep. Eugenia Chapman, R-Arlington Heights, a strong proponent of an appointed state board said yesterday the passage of Friedland's resolution by the House was "unbelievable."

MRS. CHAPMAN said one of the best features of the new Constitution is its education article, which she called "one of the best in the country." "Now they are trying to chop it to bits before it even has a chance to work," she said.

If voters approve the move back to an elected superintendent, the governor would have to appoint an interim superintendent at the end of Bakalis's term and then an election for the post would be held in November, 1978.

Mrs. Chapman said some officials in Springfield are speculating that Bakalis may be supporting the move to an elected superintendent, even though he supported the new Constitution when he ran in 1970.

However, a spokesman for Bakalis said he does not support the Friedland measure and will continue to support a proposal for a half-elected, half-appointed state board.

Pollution may bar shopping centers

by NANCY COWGER

Construction of giant regional facilities, perhaps similar to Woodfield in Schaumburg, or Randhurst in Mount Prospect could be halted across the country in an attempt to limit air pollution from automobiles.

Under proposed U.S. regulations construction of any facility that would attract 25,000 persons within a short time period would be prohibited. Because the "short time span" has not been defined, it is not known whether facilities similar to Woodfield and Randhurst would come under the guidelines.

The regulation is being established by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency under an order from the U.S. Court of Appeals, Washington, D.C. A proposed regulation to comply with that order was published April 18, and the final version is to be presented June 11. It will take effect immediately.

STATE AGENCIES, which will be charged with administering the regulation, have until Aug. 15 to establish procedures and put them in operation.

Although the final form of the regulation is not yet known, it has put industries dealing with large numbers of users, such as shopping center developers, on the defensive. They have not yet reacted, but are definitely concerned, and are prepared to fight the measure if they feel threatened by the final version.

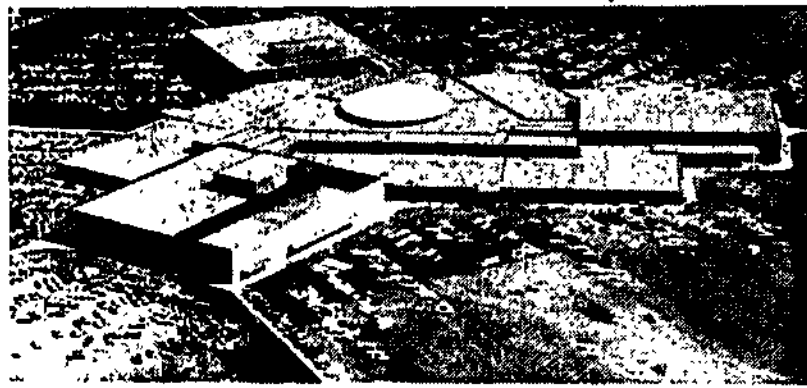

The regulation is designed to restrict concentrations of motor vehicles, and as a result control air pollution they produce. Under its provisions, developers planning large facilities would apply for permits from the designated state agency administering the federal regulation. In Illinois, it could be the Illinois EPA, Air Pollution Control Division, or the Northeastern Illinois Plans Commission (NIPC) or some other regional review agency.

The developer would indicate the location, square footage of the planned facility, anticipated number of persons it would attract in a given time period, and proposed number of parking spaces to be provided.

THE RECOMMENDED federal guidelines indicate facilities of more than 800,000 square feet or a concentration of 25,000 persons within a short time span would "be looked at closely," said Victor Yamada, acting chief of the U.S. EPA control agency evaluation section in Chicago.

If the state evaluation indicated detrimental impact on air quality in the area, the permit would be denied, said Yamada.

Woodfield attracts more than 25,000 shoppers in a peak day, according to Stanley D. Jaffe, center manager. It does not draw that large a crowd at any one time, or over a few hour span, he said. But the guideline does not specify a time period. Yamada could say only that he assumes "that means within a few hours."

Woodfield now covers roughly 1.7 million square feet, and when the Lord and Taylor wing now under construction is finished, it will be increased to 2.2 million square feet of leasable space. This is almost three times the regulation's guideline.

THE REGULATION would not just apply to shopping facilities, but would include any type facility of that size and crowd attraction, according to Yamada.

Other examples of facilities that might often draw crowds approaching or surpassing the guideline criteria would be Arlington Park, the proposed Marriott Corp. recreational facility near Gurnee, large apartment or condominium complexes, major airports, large universities, sports complexes and convention centers.

At a convention of the International Council of Shopping Centers this week in Anaheim, Calif., John Reilly, attorney for the council, warned the regulations "if they become permanent, could make it impossible to build more shopping centers in many parts of the country."

While Reilly said the rule would ban construction or use of centers which would attract enough cars to violate the guidelines, Yamada said it would apply only to new centers facilities in the planning stage, and not to existing facilities. Richard P. Kughn, president of Taubman Associates which developed Woodfield, was not so sure. He said he could neither agree nor disagree with Reilly's assessment, but commented "everybody in the industry does have concern."

EVEN SHOULD the new rule apply only to future development, said Kughn, "they can always pass laws tomorrow" which would be retroactive.

Emphasizing no one in the industry will be able to evaluate the regulation until its final provisions are released, Kughn said the industry in general is concerned about impact "physically as well as economically."

"In the event the June 11 report does have serious adverse effects on the industry, then I'm sure those of us connected with the industry will do whatever we can to present our side of the case," said Kughn.

Dr. John Roberts, director of the state EPA air pollution control division, warned against over reaction to the federal proposal. There is "nothing in the guidelines that is going to stifle the economy," he contended. Rather, he said, it will produce different approaches to major developments, using environmental yardsticks. The end result, he suggested, could produce more public transportation, new kinds of traffic controls, restrictions on the proximity of large complexes or other means of enforcement.

Roberts also denied the likelihood of any enforcement as of August. While the court order set that date for state action, he said the order applies only to the federal agency, not the states.

Immediate plans regarding the regulation include a meeting Monday in Springfield to which the Illinois Municipal League, planning agencies, manufacturers associations and chambers of commerce have been invited. At this time, said Roberts, the federal regulation will be discussed and the groups attending will be asked for comment and help in setting up a basis for future discussion.

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. will beef up its staff to accommodate the expected increase in telephone calls on Mother's Day.

About 2,400 operators and supervisors will be on duty Sunday, an increase in personnel of about 30 per cent over the normal Sunday work crew.

Illinois telephone officials estimate they will handle 271,000 long distance calls Sunday, about 34 per cent more than the normal Sunday volume.

Nationwide, the company predicts nearly 11 million interstate calls and about 100,000 international calls will be made Sunday.

Ranger to be cited at dinner

A dinner will be held Saturday night in recognition of the work of a former division superintendent of the Cook County Forest Preserve District who is retiring this year.

Lt. Ranger John Keippel will be honored by the Des Plaines Valley Horsemen's Association at a dinner at the Union Hotel, 124 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, beginning at 7:30.

Keippel served as division superintendent of the Des Plaines Division of the division of the district from 1967 to 1969. He is retiring July 15 after 27 years of service to the forest preserve district.

According to the association, whose 60 members are avid riders, Keippel has done much to further the availability of trails for riding and has upgraded preserve property.

KEIPPEL, WHO lives with his wife, Mary, in Palatine, is being honored for his "fine service" to the forest preserve, an association spokesman said.

Included in his achievements, the spokesman said, are the upgrading of picnic areas, getting rid of deer poachers, preventing thefts of walnut trees and discontinuing dumping on preserve property.

Keippel has always been firm but kind to the public and that is why we are honoring him Saturday night, the spokesman said.

Keippel, whose responsibility is now in the Palatine division of the district, began his forest preserve career in 1946 as a mounted ranger. In 1947 he was promoted to Sgt. Ranger and served in that capacity for 12 years.

AS SERGEANT ranger, Keippel reorganized the financial status of the Horse and Rider's License Division, which, he said, resulted in a much needed financial increase to the district.

In 1958 he was promoted to lieutenant ranger and was involved in the first simulated helicopter airlift rescue in the district.

Keippel was named division superintendent of the Des Plaines Division in 1967. He controlled operations in the forest preserve area which borders Wheeling, Northbrook, Forest River, Park Ridge, Northfield, Glenview and Mount Prospect.

The area totaled 54 miles, plus 15 miles of bridge path. There are two Boy Scout camps and four lakes, two of which are used for boating and fishing in the summer and ice fishing in the winter. Another lake is for fishing and another for boating.

Keippel is a member of several fraternal organizations, including the Illinois Police Association, American Federation of Police, National Police Officers Association, Fraternal Order of Police and the Des Plaines Loyal Order of Moose.

Cook County Hospital defended

The director of the Cook County Hospital, speaking out against proposed legislation in Springfield, said the hospital has become in the last 2 1/2 years "one of the most effectively operated public hospitals in the country."

The director, Dr. James G. Haughton, told the Senate Committee on Public Health, Welfare and Corrections the hospital has risen to a new status "because of the sound fiscal base and the managerial flexibility which this legislature wisely gave to the (Health and Hospitals) governing commission."

Dr. Haughton addressed the committee, speaking in opposition to Senate Bill 447, a proposal that includes a provision calling for line item budget and line item veto powers by the Cook County Board of Commissioners over the hospital.

County board commissioners, and particularly Comr. Charles Chaplin of Winnetka, have been highly critical of the financial operations of the hospital and have promised to return control of the hospital spending to the county board.

The board maintained that control until 1971, but lost it when the Illinois General Assembly established the hospital governing commission. Today, the elected commissioners have virtually no control over hospital spending.

AT THE CONCLUSION of the hearing at which Dr. Haughton spoke, the bill sponsored by State Sen. Daniel Dougherty, D-Chicago, was referred to a subcommittee for further study.

Dr. Haughton told the Senate group the hospital has regained its stature as one of the highly regarded sources of post-graduate medical education. He said the fiscal autonomy of the hospital governing commission has permitted the flexibility necessary to upgrade the hospital.

Dr. Haughton said he finds it ironic that while the legislature is considering removing the independence necessary to the successful operation of the county hospital system, the county board has asked the commission to assume control over the Cermak Memorial Hospital.

Cermak serves the county jail and House of Corrections.

"If line item veto over the governing commissions' budget were given to the county board as proposed in this legislation," Dr. Haughton said, "The commission would be left with all of the responsibility for managing the institutions but no real authority to carry out that responsibility because budget control is the heartbeat of management."

Press deserves U.S. applause

The awarding of a Pulitzer Prize to the Washington Post on Monday is more than merely an in-house salute to a newspaper for its coverage of the Watergate affair; it is reflective of a triumph for the entire field of journalism.

For if there is any institution which has proved its merit during the past 12 months, it has been the press. Its coverage, from the Watergate break-in to the present White House crisis, has shown watchdog capabilities that are vital in our American democracy.

When the Post and other newspapers last summer and fall diligently dug up the first facts about Watergate, that reporting was attacked by the White House.

The Administration quickly snapped that the Post had no business accusing the White House of official involvement, for there "was none." But despite the fierce Administration opposition to the aggressive coverage, the Post and other papers dutifully continued to cover the story.

Now, of course, it has been proved that the press' investigations were essential. There was widespread White House involvement, and a cover-up which the press cut to pieces. Last week, as a result of press disclosure, President Nixon announced the departure of Richard Kleindienst, John Ehrlichman, H. R. Haldeman and John Dean — all formerly close associates of the President.

And, in a conciliatory gesture, the White House extended an olive branch to the press. President Nixon suggesting that "giving 'em hell" was a proper press role, and the Post received an apology from press secretary Ron Ziegler.

What the press has done in its Watergate coverage is nothing more than it is supposed to do; keep government honest. Despite charges of partisanship, especially from vice president Spiro Agnew, the press has proved through its Watergate coverage that truth, not political favors, is its target.

That isn't to say the press is perfect. It isn't. The media's errors, and its responsibilities, were pointed out recently by Erwin Canham, editor-in-chief of the Christian Science Monitor:

"Responsible editors are reminding themselves of the awesome issues at stake, and of the need for caution. It has to be remembered, of course, that anybody is presumed innocent until proven guilty. Many people have been accused, but little guilt has actually been proved. And this is a time still when rumors are flying through the air like confetti at a wedding. They can't all be true. Too many get into print."

Despite errors and sensationalism, the press in America has provided a check on public corruption that no constitution can provide. Locally, the cases of Edward Barrett, Thomas Keane and Otto Kerner are examples of what a truth-seeking press can accomplish.

It will never be easy for newspapers to seek corruption in government, for government is never going to allow passively the kind of scrutiny the press can and must provide. But it's the press' responsibility for such scrutiny, and we a p p l a u d e American newspapers that are doing their job.

Thanks, Adlai

Last week the Herald devoted its lead editorial one day to our dismay over the apparent inevitability of Navy housing being built at the Arlington Heights Nike site. The plans at that date as proposed announcement from Senator Adlai Stevenson (D-Ill.) that he would come to the Nike site to look at the possibilities for a park.

Stevenson turned out to be as good as his publicity. He indeed was very instrumental in turning the Navy around on its housing plans. He then made the journey to Arlington Heights to look at the site and to give positive evidence of his real concern for regional park plans.

We commend Senator Stevenson for doing what other legislators representing this area were unable or too busy to do.

We find it ironic that this area which prides itself on its Republican clout and on its long history of delivering landslides for Republican candidates must get action from a Democratic senator.

Why Congressman Philip Crane and Senator Percy delayed on this matter is a mystery to us, but it doesn't stop us from saying "thank you" to Senator Stevenson for representing the community's interests.

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III

by the Department of the Navy seemed to doom the region's high hopes for a park on the land.

Now we are happy to acknowledge that the regional park plans are again alive and the Navy has firmly committed itself to build its needed housing on government land near Libertyville.

The last minute decision on the matter came concurrent with an

Dvylis urges election code for Mount Prospect

Now that the election in Mount Prospect is over and the victors have shouted their cheers and the "also-rans" have swallowed their animosities, it seems fitting to say a requiem to all political demagogues by which this election campaign was so odiously characterized. There is much to regret that our village, whose motto is "Where friendliness is a way of life," should have become stumping grounds for political insanity. Never in its whole history an election campaign has been so bitterly hostile and so virulently malignant. I heard one prominent citizen remark that "Even a farmer with a fully loaded manure spreader couldn't emanate more stink than some candidates did by the word of mouth."

It is a pity that a candidate running for a high public office, such as a mayor's, should have resorted to character assassination, falsehood, mud slinging and militant tactics as a means of impressing the electorate that he has an ability superior to his opponent and would do a better job if elected. Regardless of Robert Louis Stevenson's contention that "There is so much good in the worst of us, and so much bad in the best of us," the electorate chose to regard the opposition's arguments, pleas and promises as so much blarney. The election results show that a man with a cool head and a calm temperament was a better choice than a man with a fiery tongue and lashing phrases.

Now, with this victory in the bag, where do we go from here? Ahead there is, for both the winners and losers, a separate, nearly four-year long path to travel. By the reports in the press, the leader of the opposition has promised, in a beligerent manner, to be back and fight with, perhaps, a more blistering fury. Meanwhile, he will be building up a bigger pile of mud for the 1977 election campaign. Obviously this young man has not learned as yet the scriptural truth: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

The resentment against the unethical conduct of the opposition is still running high among the winners. Nobody but nobody has expected such a surly demeaning of the village and slurring its leaders. The supporters of law and order will, from now on, be searching for ways and means to insure clean elections in Mount Prospect. A need for the election code of ethics is apparent. As of now, a loud outcry of many concerned citizens is: "Next time we shall be prepared!" Some good is bound to come out of all this madness. Amen.

Association shuns vote credit

In your front page article of May 4, "Homeowners Get Political Clout," you gave a lot of credit for political influence to the Winston Knolls Homeowners Association in Hoffman Estates. You stated that since the association was formed, Winston Knolls residents have won two park board positions, one village trustee post and two positions on the Palatine Township Board of Auditors.

By inference you gave the Homeowners Association credit for these successes. Let's set the record straight and give credit where credit is due. True, the association backed two candidates for the park board in 1971 and these two candidates were successful. The story is quite different concerning the village trustee post. The successful candidate was not backed by the association and, in fact, was badly beaten in the two Winston Knolls precincts. He received about 30 per cent of the vote and finished fifth. Nor did the association back the two candidates for Palatine Township Auditors. They did carry the two Winston Knolls precincts but not by a large majority. They could have received zero votes from Winston Knolls and still have been easily elected.

The credit for the election of Winston Knolls residents to the village trustee post and the Palatine Auditor posts rightly belongs with two very powerful Republican organizations. In the case of the village trustee, credit must go to ROOST (Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township), and in the case of the auditors to the Republican Organization of Palatine Township. It was through the efforts of these organizations to get out the straight party vote and not the efforts of a non-partisan group such as the Winston Knolls Homeowners Association that these people were elected.

conversation when the inspector transferred his call to a "consumer rep."

The consumer rep took down all the information, Joe said, like the size and code number of the can, where it was purchased, and what appeared to be wrong with the fish. She also took Joe's phone number and address.

Then, without a word about what he should do, not do or expect, the woman said, "Thank you," and hung up.

Joe figured he might hear from the agency in a day or so, so he insisted his wife not throw the can or the tuna away. After almost a week, however, the rest of the food in the refrigerator began to take on the odor of bad fish, so the tuna and the can were given the big heave-ho. Yesterday, it was announced the woman's death wasn't caused by the tuna fish.

Joe says he still can't figure it out. "I realize it was a different size can and the code numbers were different," he said, "but what does that mean? I know it wasn't the tuna that killed that woman. Maybe the tuna in my can isn't poison. But there was something wrong with it."

Joe has put baking soda in his refrigerator to get rid of the stink left there. He isn't too upset over the whole thing — he didn't get sick, he lost only 59 cents on the deal and the smell will be gone in a day or so.

But, he said, "The next time I hear the FDA rattle on about how great a job they do protecting the public, I'll breathe through my mouth."

Pregnancy 'pitfalls'

Many many "lily-white" suburbanites have faced facts and are the very ones in favor of abortion. In fact it is impossible for any intelligent rational-thinking person to deny:

—The right of the mother to have or not have a baby that will or will not be welcomed;

—If said baby is unwelcome, its future is very precarious at best, and doomed at worse;

—Many babies already conceived are unwanted, but will be born scarred for life, unable to cope with the world which is tough for those given a better start in life, and well-nigh impossible for those in lesser situations.

Of course, the ideal solution would be a better educated, higher motivated citizen, more aware of the pitfalls of pregnancy in the first place!

WASHINGTON — The Senate Agriculture Committee has tentatively approved an indemnity program for dairy farmers whose milk may become contaminated — through no fault of the farmer — with residues of a chlorinated hydrocarbon chemical called PCB.

The program, if approved by Congress, is expected to cost comparatively little. This is because sales of PCB for use in silo-sealing compounds on dairy farms were halted nearly three years ago by the sole U.S. manufacturer of the chemical, Monsanto Chemical Co. The material has not been available for use in silos since mid-1970.

Agriculture Department experts say problems growing out of use of PCB arose several years ago on scattered farms in a few states, including parts of Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee. On these farms, a compound including PCB was applied to the inner walls of concrete silos before scientists discovered the chemical could migrate from the walls into the silage fed to dairy cows.

Several farmers in Ohio, as a result were forced to halt marketing of their milk for a time until PCB residues dropped to within safe tolerance levels.

Because PCB is extremely long lasting, the National Milk Producers Federation pointed out that silos treated with the chemical before its use was halted could still contaminate feed in the future. The legislation pending in the Senate committee would not repay farmers for losses suffered in the past, but it would indemnify producers of PCB residues appear in their milk in the future.

These bright-colored cones are for workmen, not kids

It's a familiar sight to see a telephone truck parked in our communities with a telephone workman nearby. But perhaps your curiosity has been aroused if you have recently seen a parked telephone truck or car with a bright orange safety cone placed at the rear of the vehicle.

Paul Arnold, Illinois Bell's commercial manager explained, "It's part of a new safety program Illinois Bell has introduced to help reduce motor-vehicle accidents. The brightly colored markers are placed behind a vehicle when it is parked. In order to retrieve it the driver must make a 'safety circle' of the parked vehicle. In the process the driver will note any obstacles or hazards that might not be visible from the drivers seat."

"The idea originated in the Pacific Telephone Co. several years ago and was tried first in this general area at Oak Park. During this trial backing accidents were virtually eliminated. Encouraged by the results, the practice was initiated throughout the north suburban area," Arnold said.

"Illinois Bell, with the largest privately owned motor vehicle fleet in the state, has always had a comprehensive motor vehicle safety program. All vehicles are equipped with seat belts, tires and brakes are inspected frequently and to insure operational safety the vehicles are maintained in good mechanical order."

"But far more important than these considerations is the safety attitude and driving ability of the person behind the steering wheel," Arnold added. "All employees who drive in the normal course of their jobs are enrolled in the Bell System's advanced driver performance course. The course includes comprehensive study of safe driving practices and on-the-road applications."

Bank to sponsor economic forum

The First National Bank of Des Moines will sponsor the third Annual Economic Forum Wednesday, May 23 at the Sheraton O'Hare Hotel, 6810 N. Mannheim Road, Rosemont.

Two subjects selected for discussion this year are "Inflation — its effect on the economic outlook," and "Energy — the crisis of dwindling domestic supply and the implications of a growing dependence on international sources for crude oil."

Speakers will be Dr. James J. O'Leary and Dr. Charles E. Walker. O'Leary is vice chairman and economist for United States Trust Co., New York. He is a past chairman of Lionel D. Edle and Co. and economist for the Life Insurance Association of America.

Walker is president of Charles E. Walker Associates, a Washington-based consulting firm. He served as deputy secretary of the treasury during the first Nixon Administration, and as executive vice president of the American Bankers Association. He is a trustee of the Joint Council on Economic Education. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. and will conclude at 1:30 p.m.

First-quarter ITT earnings set record

International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. said its earnings for the first quarter were the highest for any comparable quarter in the company's history.

The company's announcement confirmed preliminary reports earlier this month that revenues and earnings would reach new highs.

Earnings per equivalent common share before extraordinary items were 84 cents, an increase of 12 per cent over last year's first quarter of 75 cents.

Total sales and revenues in the first quarter rose 14 per cent to $2.23 billion. Last year's first quarter sales and revenues were $1.93 billion.

Consolidated income, before extraordinary items, for the quarter reached a record high of $105.8 million, compared with $95.1 million over the same period last year, an increase of 11 per cent.

Number of hours nearly doubled during '60s

Domestic flying shows rapid increase

The number of domestic, civil flying hours in the United States, other than in the Civil Air Carrier Fleet, nearly doubled in the 1960s, according to a survey by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

General aviation accounted for 25 million flight hours in 1969, a rise from 13 million hours in 1960, or an average rate of increase of 7 per cent a year.

The miles flown likewise more than doubled, from 1.7 billion in 1960 to almost 4 billion miles in 1969 or an average rate of increase of nearly 9 per cent a year.

And the statistics note the number of licensed pilots increased at an even faster rate.

AS A RESULT, the flight activities in general aviation exceeded those of the certificated air carriers during the 1960s, whether measured in terms of hours or of miles flown, but, of course, the certificated air carriers transported many more people.

During 1969 the certificated carriers flew 4.9 million revenue aircraft hours and 1.9 billion revenue aircraft miles in domestic flights. The number of miles flown that year in general aviation was about double that for the certificated air carriers, and the number of flying hours was five times as great.

The study has broken general aviation down into several categories.

COMMERCIAL FLYING, which is carried on for profit and comprises many various activities including air taxi services and crop dusting; business and corporate flying, such as that involving the transport of employees in a corporation-owned plane; personal flying which covers a wide variety of flying chiefly for pleasure, and instruction flying which includes all flights in training pilots for new or advanced certificates.

Instructional flying registered an almost fourfold increase in hours during the 1960s. Commercial and personal flying both recorded about twice as many hours flown in 1969 as in 1960, while business and corporate flying increased by a little less than a quarter during the period.

In 1969 business and corporate flying and instructional flying each accounted for about 7 million hours. Personal flying logged about 9 million hours and commercial flying recorded about 5 million hours.

At the close of 1969, according to Metropolitan Life, there were twice as many pilots, other than air transport pilots, as there were on Jan. 1, 1960. Private pilots constituted the largest group, accounting for almost 45 per cent of all pilots. Student pilots ranked second and registered nearly 30 per cent of the total.

Company buyers: can they unionize?

Employees who do buying for stores, wholesalers, manufacturers or any other business, generally have not been permitted to join unions, but the winds of change may have started blowing, notes Commerce Clearing House.

Usually, the Labor Board has classified buyers as "managerials," and rules their interests are closely tied to management.

The Labor Act itself separates supervisors from employees and excludes supervisors from the benefits and protection of the act. "Managerial employee," on the other hand, is a concept the Labor Board originated to describe nonsupervisors who might, because of their duties, be unable to stand against management as members of a bargaining unit, CCH said.

But if, up to now, most buyers have been told that they and other managers cannot unionize, a change seems afoot. Last year the Labor Board ruled that 25 buyers for an aerospace producer could be represented by a union. The buyers then elected a union, only to have their employer refuse to bargain.

The board ruled that the company had to bargain and asked the U.S. Appeals Court in New York to enforce its order. The court refused, but it is likely the board will again rule that some buyers may unionize and are entitled to the rights employees have under the Labor Act.

If the Court of Appeals had agreed with the board, this, according to the court, would be the board's rule today on managerial employees, including buyers: managerial employees can join unions and are protected by the Labor Act, unless their duties are such that belonging to a union would create a conflict of interest.

But CCH noted that there are 10 U. S. Courts of Appeals and the board does not have to abide by the decisions of any one of them. Therefore, the board is free to continue to permit managerial employees to unionize in some cases.

'Not many,' says lawyers' group

Divorce: who can afford it?

How many couples can afford to get a divorce?

The answer to that question, according to the Illinois State Bar Association is "not many." Experience shows, the bar group said, that only about 10 per cent of couples who end their marriages in a divorce court can do so without a substantial adjustment in their personal lives to a new and lower standard of living than the one they enjoyed as partners.

The ISBA said it is not reckoning the court costs and legal fees involved in a divorce since they are a one-time and by far the least cost of a divorce. The real cost and the one that most couples find most difficult to face later on is the expense of maintaining separate households and otherwise leading separate lives.

THE FACT THAT many husbands and wives earn incomes during marriage and will continue to work after divorce makes little difference, the ISBA said. During the marriage, couples invariably adopt the highest standard of living which their income, whether earned by one person or two, will allow. Inevitably, an adjustment is required as soon as there are two sets of obligations for housing, utilities, insurance, clothing, food and transportation, instead of one.

If the marriage cannot be saved, the ISBA said court costs and legal fees usually can be kept to a minimum if the husband and wife can work out a satisfactory support arrangement and division of property by mutual agreement.

If children are involved, it is especially important to settle differences without bitterness and acrimony. Conflict, the bar group observed, only tends to destroy the affection and respect which children feel toward both parents and which is so important to their well-being and development.

TO THIS END, one California divorce court judge has drawn up what he calls a "Bill of Rights for Children of A Divorce." It reads like this:

- Do not poison your children's minds against either their father or mother by discussing the shortcomings of your spouse with your children.
- Do not use your visitations as an excuse to continue arguments with your spouse.
- Do not visit your children when you have been drinking.

• Do not visit your children at unreasonable hours.

• Notify your spouse when unable to keep your visitation date.

• Make your visitation as pleasant as possible for your children by not continually questioning them regarding the activities of your former spouse and by not making extravagant promises you know you will not or cannot keep.

• The parent with whom the children live must prepare the children both physically and mentally for the visitation.

• If one parent has plans for the children that conflict with the visitation — be adults and work out the problem together.

• Always work for the spiritual well-being, health, happiness and safety of your children.

• Do not expose your children to any member of the opposite sex with whom you may be involved.

Buffalo shooting with the rifle notched between two sticks, for accuracy and to lighten the load.

They were born 200 years too late

by KAREN BLECHIA

If the pioneers could only see 'em now. Doctors, dentists and machinists dressed in buckskin, coonskin and homespun cloth. The fringe on their sleeves whipped by the wind as they load their rifles, first with black powder, then ball and patch. They take aim and fire, straining to see through a puff of grey smoke as the ball spins toward the target.

These are the Fort Dearborn Frontiersmen, who one Sunday a month turn the clock back nearly 200 years. Men from age 21 to 76 who have forsaken repeating rifles for pre-Civil War muskets — weapons that settled the United States, protected the Declaration of Independence and kept the British off our ships in the War of 1812.

"We're retaining our tradition," explained Bill of Prospect Heights. "We use the guns that took this country from the Indians and kept it from the British." (Bill, like other club members, did not want his address or last name mentioned because of his valuable gun collection.)

ABOUT ONE-THIRD of the club's 60 members live in the Northwest suburbs. Others drive even further to the primitive range at the Aurora Sportsmen's Club, where the shoots take place. Only muzzle-loading rifles, loaded through the front of the gun barrel, are allowed. Members shoot rifles and pistols, replicas and originals, which are ignited either by a flintlock or a percussion cap.

The flintlock, designed in about 1640, produces a spark when the flint strikes a piece of steel. The spark then sets off a powder charge. Club members laughingly call it a "flinchlock" since a gunman tends to flinch because of the flash and delayed ignition.

The percussion gun, invented by a Scottish clergyman in 1807, uses a cap that produces the spark. Men from both sides carried these guns into battle when the Civil War began.

The early Americans used muzzle-loading guns because they had nothing else. But why choose a gun that takes five minutes to load when you can slip in a cartridge in seconds?

"It takes more of a man to shoot a muzzle," said Henry, club president who has been shooting since he was 14 years old. "It's because you have to do everything yourself."

LEONARD OF CHICAGO demonstrated with his replica of a gun made by Christian Hawkins, an Ohio gunsmith.

"To get accuracy you've got to clear the barrel after every shot," he explained, cleaning the barrel in an up and down motion with soft cloth and a ramrod.

Leonard takes pains to be as authentic as possible. His beaded, over-the-shoulder pouch, copied from a Blackfoot Indian design, is equipped with a cow's horn to carry his gun powder and a hollowed out turkey leg to measure it. A Chippewa Indian medicine bag hangs around his neck.

"First you pour in the powder," he said. "Then you get out your ball and patch." Because the black powder manufacturers in the United States have gone out of business, the club must import its powder from England. The lead balls are made by the members themselves, often over the flames of a gas stove at home. Leonard uses a 100-year-old mold for his ammunition.

The patch, usually cut from a piece of woven cloth such as Indianhead, is used as a gasket around the lead ball as it is pushed down the barrel. You can buy pre-cut patches, but Leonard, who said he "just gets deeper and deeper" into muzzle-loading, cuts his own.

"I ALWAYS GO in and buy the material myself," he said. "They ask me what color I want and when I say it makes no difference, they look at me as if I'm crazy."

Once the ball and patch are readied, the muzzle-loader pushes the ammunition down the barrel with a ramrod made of hickory or fiberglass. If he's firing a flintlock, he adds a little priming powder. If he is shooting a percussion gun, he adds a cap. Then he is ready for deer, bear or targets.

Loading these old guns is an art, too. Most present day frontiersmen make much of their own ammunition.

"Here we shoot at targets," Leonard said. "But I've bagged deer and even a black bear with my guns."

Monthly shoots usually include offhand matches, bench matches and buffalo shoots. In all the matches, each member pays for his own target and scores it. The winners get 30, 20 and 10 per cent of the target money; the rest is used to pay dues at the sportsmen's club.

The bench shoot is the oldest form of target shooting in the United States. Bench guns weigh about 35 pounds and must be shot resting on a bench or a log. Buffalo shoots today are similar to those in the early days. The gunman sits on the ground and rests his gun between two crossed sticks.

PROBABLY THE most popular match is the "Mike Fink," named after the dastardly riverboat man defeated in a match by Davy Crockett. Club members aim for a tin cup on the head of a Mike Fink dummy. The winner gets a bottle of liquor; the losers pay a quarter. The Frontiersmen have never had a shooting accident and take precautions to prevent them. No smoking or alcohol is allowed on the range. "We're aware of the dangers involved," Bill said. "Alcohol and gunpowder don't mix."

The Fort Dearborn Frontiersmen, one of 12 muzzle-loading clubs in the state, started 10 years ago with 23 members. Since then, membership has tripled. Members have become so involved, they research their costumes to make them as authentic as possible. Many use original guns, valued anywhere from $100 to several thousand dollars, but others make detailed replicas of the originals in their spare time.

The men, and sometimes their wives, do it because they like it. They say they feel a special kind of kinship with the pioneers. They say firing a flintlock or percussion gun is a challenge, that the gun's accuracy depends more on the man behind it than on modern firearms.

"I sold my 1903 Army rifle," Bill shrugged. "It just wasn't fun anymore."

Fringed and feathered, a member of the Fort Dearborn Frontiersmen rams down ball and patch.

The final test of man and rifle is the score. These men take their accuracy seriously, just as the men who originated the guns took shooting seriously.

Students to compete in science exposition

Three High School Dist. 214 students this weekend will compete in the state exposition of the Illinois Junior Academy of Science at Champaign.

Thomas Buckley Jr., Walter Kozacky and Peter Alesi won first place awards at the regional science fair at Wheeling High School in March. Buckley, a senior at Wheeling High School, will enter a project titled "Sulphur Requirement of Chlorella" which concerns the growth of algae. Kozacky and Alesi, both Elk Grove High School seniors, are entering an environmental model where a small animal could be kept in a self-contained situation.

The three students will be competing with students throughout Illinois for awards and scholarships.

Quirks in the news

Pub regulars' faces were flushed, but the jewelry wasn't; 'twas plumb awful

by JIM HARVEY
PLUMB DISGUSTING: Landlord Colin Wiggins of Farnham, England, closed the bar, customers gulped, or put down, their drinks, and a plumber was called when Wiggins' 2-year-old daughter announced she had put her mother's jewelry down the toilet. Three hours and piles of dismantled pipes later, Mrs. Wiggins bashfully announced the 2-year-old had just hidden the jewelry in a bedroom cupboard.

SCHUDENS, (HIC) VELCOMES: An education chief in Nottingham, England is inviting adult students to drop into pubs while studying such subjects as politics, current events and economics. "We already run courses in housing estimates and high-rise apartment buildings," he said, "and moving into meeting places like pubs and clubs seems a natural development."

OOPS, CRASH, TINKLE: Truck driver Alf Harn of Birkenhead, England drove his six-ton truck past a stop sign, crashed into a car then smashed into a wall. The magistrates dismissed a charge of careless driving when Alf told them it all happened when he had an uncontrollable fit of sneezing.

CALL RENT-A-COW: Youngsters in the remote western Alaska town of Bethel, have raised $500 to rent a cow — so they can see what the animal really looks like. The children plan to study and learn how to milk it. The cow is the first ever to set foot in Bethel.

PROBES 'POT' DISEASE: A plant pathologist is working on a federal research project seeking a disease that will kill marijuana . . . in an unlikely place. The work is taking place in a California city where voters passed an initiative last month ordering police not to make marijuana arrests without permission of the city council. The pathologist said, "I'm not trying to ruin things for 'pot' smokers." He said his work was aimed at helping farmers clear up their fields.

ALARMING SITUATION: Two salesmen were discussing burglar alarms in an England hotel earlier this week when someone stole the color television set from the hotel lounge.

NO PIGS, PLEASE: A young man fell three stories from a North Beach (California) hotel then got up and walked away. "No pigs are going to take me away," Danny Sparks, 22, told witnesses.

He apparently was referring to the city's uniformed ambulance drivers.

SMALL MAN, SMALL JOB: A little man with a big mustache, small ambitions and a thug for $20 bills is in the record book. The bandit walked into the Crocker Branch bank in California and handed the teller a note reading: "I have a gun. Give me all your twenties in this envelope." The teller said she only had two $20 bills. "I'll take it," the bandit said. A detective said "that's the smallest bank job this year."

Rotate your radials for best mileage

DETROIT (UPI) — If your car is equipped with the new radial tires, you should know how to rotate them to get the maximum mileage, which manufacturers contend is 40,000 miles.

The larger 1973-model cars are coming equipped with radials as standard equipment and the new tire now accounts for about 10 per cent of the market. There are estimates radials will account for 50 per cent of all tire sales within four years.

Tire buyers already have been warned not to mix radial tires with conventional tires because they give a car different types of traction.

BECAUSE THE radial tire's fabric or cord beneath the tread runs parallel to the tire's radius, rather than at an angle like conventional tires, a different pattern of rotation is recommended by the Rubber Manufacturers Association (RMA).

The traditional cross-switch practice for conventional bias and belted tires continues, but the pattern has been changed.

The RMA recommends that in a four-tire rotation, the front tires are cross-switched to the rear with the rear tires moving straight forward to the front. Previously, the general practice has been to move front tires straight back to the rear with the rear tires cross-switching to the front.

But cross-switching is not recommended for radial ply tires. In a four-tire rotation, the front tires are moved straight back to the rear and the rear tires go straight forward to the front.

IF YOU WANT to use the spare in rotating, here's the pattern to follow:

To get maximum tire life, the RMA recommends rotating tires at 8,000 to 10,000 mile intervals. The first rotation is the most important, since it sets the stage for long, even tire wear.

This, say industry engineers, is because once irregular wear patterns are allowed to continue for an extended period, they are very difficult, if not impossible to correct.

Studded tires, in states where they are legal, should never be rotated. They should always be mounted in their original wheel positions as they always roll in the same direction.

Named by Mrs. Chapman's scholarship committee were Anne Catherine Sallwasser, 119 W. Emerson, Arlington Heights, a Forest View High School senior, and Thomas Bernard Klein, 212 S. Ridge, Arlington Heights, a St. Viator High School senior.

Miss Sallwasser will be studying medical technology at Illinois State University, Normal, and hopes one day to go into medical research. Set spent seven consecutive semesters on Forest View's honor roll, and was a commended student in the National Merit Scholarship competition.

Winner of Mrs. Chapman's four-year scholarship to the University of Illinois at Urbana is Thomas Bernard Klein, a future liberal arts student.

Hearing Problems?

Come to Sears and meet Robert Cameron, our trained hearing consultant. Mr. Cameron will test your hearing with the latest electronic equipment, free of charge, with no obligation. If your test shows a hearing aid would help you, Mr. Cameron will help you select the Sears hearing aid that's right for your particular hearing problem. Sears has a complete line of hearing aids at a price you can afford, backed by a company you can depend on.

During the month of May you will receive at no extra charge, with the purchase of any hearing aid, one month's supply of batteries.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON — One of the most amazing aspects of the Watergate case is the almost total lack of gloating by persons who had been at odds with President Nixon and/or his now departed top assistants.

You might think Nixon's old political foes and critics would revel in the miseries of their erstwhile antagonists. But no.

The Watergate disclosures have been accompanied by what may be a record outbreak of high-mindedness among Democrats, alienated Republicans and other potential soreheads.

AN UTTERANCE by Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate whom Nixon swamped last November, can serve as the archetype of the statesman-like reaction. Quoth he:

"These are difficult days for President Nixon. We must help him for the sake of the office he holds."

I wouldn't for a minute suggest that any of the myriad statements of this sort were less than 99.44 per cent sincere or that their authors may be suppressing an urge to chorle.

I did, however, have a talk about the matter with Sir Aubrey Smugg-lyde, an international authority on gloats, who is now in this country on a field trip.

"SIR AUBREY," I said, "you have devoted a lifetime to the study of gloating habits all over the world. How do you account for the dearth of gloats with respect to the Watergate scandals?"

"Certain species of gloats cannot be recognized by the untrained eye," Smugg-lyde replied. "There is, for example, a rare type of mountain gloat that becomes indistinct in lower altitudes, such as you have here."

"Gloats also are easily camouflaged. When viewed against a background of pious press releases they take on a neutral coloration that makes identification difficult."

"Beyond that, gloat control pills have now become readily available. Swallowing a pill enables a gleeful politician to swallow a grin for 24 to 48 hours."

"The only way to be sure how Nixon's old political enemies and critics feel about his misfortune is to have them take a gloat detector test."

"SENSORS ARE attached to the subject's heels and he is given two statements to read:

"The first one says, 'The real tragedy of Watergate is the extent to which it has diverted the President's attention from more important matters.'"

"The second one says, 'Whoopie!'"

"If during both statements he registers an impulse to click his heels together, that is proof of gloating."

"Heels never lie."

New ways to get college credits

In addition to a variety of non credit courses and university extension courses, the Harper College continuing education summer program includes two new ways to obtain college credit.

Individuals who may not be able to attend regular class schedules may be interested in "vacation college" and "not for ladies only."

A two-week summer vacation could be used to earn three college credits in either of two courses. Called "vacation college," the program offers general anthropology, June 11-20, and history of American people to 1877, July 9-20. Classes meet Mondays through Fridays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

"Not for ladies only" makes available three credits for one day a week attendance from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. during an eight week period. Course offerings in this program are introduction to psychology from June 11 to Aug. 2 and introduction to sociology June 12 to Aug. 3.

Telephone registration for credit courses will be held June 4-5 at Harper for those who have a letter of acceptance and plan to carry eight semester hours or less, and for students who have attended Harper during the previous semester. Others will register on campus June 7-8.

Incisive analysis will put you on road to victory

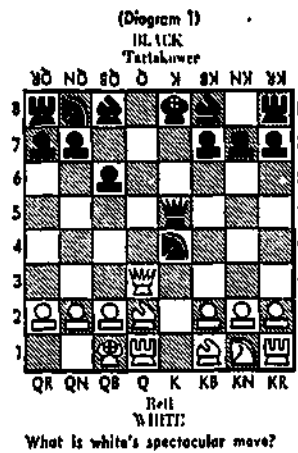

The perception that one has the advantage is the first step in the exploitation of a superior position. For the recognition of superiority is the beginning of analysis and incisive analysis is the road to correct technique. When a position is deciphered, placidly juxtaposed pieces suddenly come to life and awesome power may be unleashed.

Diagram 1

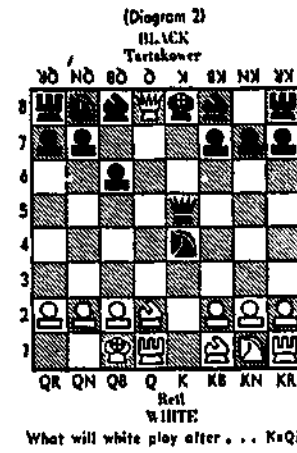

An historical moment is recreated in our first position. Richard Reti (white) is to move against Savielly Tartakower (black) in Vienna in 1910. The unthinking response would be to play R-K1 and win the knight at K5, re-establishing material equality.

But something in the position alerted Reti; probably he began by focusing on the line-up of the rook and queen on the queen file. Without the bishop at Q2, there would be an instant mate with Q-Q8 mate. Yet various bishop moves do not work. (Try them.) Reti's solution has become a model for future play.

Sacrifice the queen for double check! The king must move

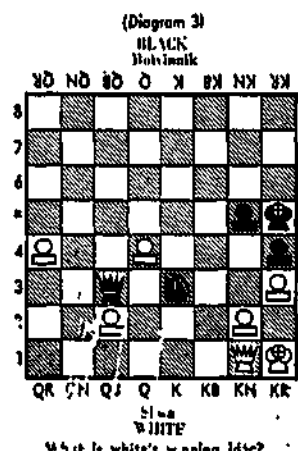

What is white's spectacular move?

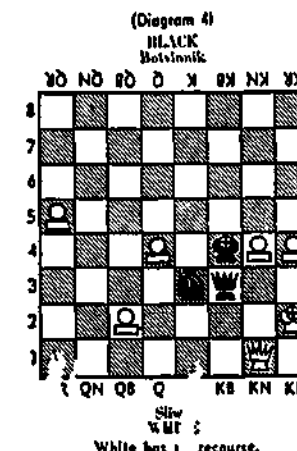

What will white play after ... KxQ?

The moves for the Reti-Tartakower game discussed in today's column follows:

Reti (white)	Tartakower (black)
1. P-K4	P-QB3
2. P-Q4	P-Q4
3. N-QB3	PxP
4. NxP	N-B3
5. Q-Q3	P-K4
6. PxP	Q-R4 check
7. B-Q2	QxKP
8. O-O-O	NxN?
9. Q-Q8 check!!	KxQ
10. B-N5 double check	K-B2
11. B-Q8 mate

What is white's winning idea?

White has a recourse.

Diagram 4
Q-KB6; 48) P-R4 check, K-B5 and white has no effective reply to the threat of N-B8 check. (He must give up his queen.) Botvinnik's intuition and hard work have created a virtuoso finale.

Hearing Tests Set For Senior Citizens

Electronic hearing tests will be given at Beltone Hearing Aid Service offices on Monday and Tuesday.

Factory-trained hearing aid specialists will be at all of the offices listed below to perform the tests.

Anyone who has trouble hearing or understanding is welcome to have a test using the latest electronic equipment to determine his or her particular loss. Diagrams showing how the ear works and some of the causes of hearing loss will be available.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if there is any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told nothing could be done for them should have a hearing test and find out about the latest methods of hearing correction.

The hearing test will be given Monday and Tuesday. If you can't get there on Monday or Tuesday, call one of the numbers below and arrange for an appointment at another time. Shut-in service is available in your home. Just phone the Beltone Hearing Aid Service nearest to you.

Archeologists still looking for Atlantis

by KATHLEEN NEUMEYER

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Plato wrote that the last continent of Atlantis lay beyond the pillars of Hercules, so Maxine Asher figured that would be the place to look.

This summer the blonde audio-visual expert and archeology doctoral candidate is leading an expedition, along with her former history professor, Dr. Julian Nava, to search off the coast of southern Spain for the legendary continent believed to have sunk more than 11,000 years ago.

Nearly 200 persons, including 40 college professors from the United States, England, Ireland and Spain, will take part in the exploration, sponsored by Peppardine University, which will give six units of college credit to student participants.

"After 12 years of researching the common origins of mankind for my doctorate, I was disturbed by how many unknown there are in history, such as languages we don't know the origins of," Mrs. Asher explains.

"THEN, DURING THE big earthquake we had here two years ago, two things fell onto the floor at my home. One was a book about Atlantis, the other was a Cretan goddess.

"I thought to myself, I wonder if this is what I have been looking for?"

Mrs. Asher said she had long been interested in the myths surrounding the lost continent.

"Now, in Plato's Dialogues, he gives a complete description of Atlantis and says it lies just beyond the Pillars of Hercules, which we know as Gibraltar and Tangiers," she related.

"I thought, why not look in the exact spot where Plato said it was?"

ACCORDINGLY, Mrs. Asher made a trip last summer to Cadiz, Spain, and interviewed townspeople, divers and navy personnel about the undersea ruins off the Spanish coast, believed to date back at least 2,500 years.

"People have known about these ruins for years," she says, "but up to now the Spanish government has not permitted much undersea exploration."

Mrs. Asher felt confident that the ruins she could see from the water surface were Atlantean cities.

"I decided then to bring a small program to Spain. I drew up a 100-page course of study, because you can't just go to a university empty-handed and say I want to look for Atlantis. Peppardine agreed immediately to accredit a program," she said.

THE SPANISH government also agreed to cooperate.

Mrs. Asher has recruited professors from various disciplines — anthropology,

THE FINGER of Dr. Julian Nava on the map of the Atlantic marks the spot beyond the Pillars of Hercules

archeology, geology, history, geography, linguistics, oceanography and parapsychology, to take part in the expedition.

"Most people are going because of the adventure," says Nava, a history professor at California State University at Northridge and a member of the Los Angeles school board.

"Some really believe that Atlantis is there, and others think the search alone will be fascinating. Atlantis has always fascinated people."

Nava says he hopes the group will at least "find traces of man-made objects. That in itself would be rather astounding."

"I think we may find Roman, Greek, and maybe Phoenician underwater ruins," he says.

"Maybe even evidence of volcanic or drastic geological upheaval. Atlantis was supposedly a highly civilized society, so

If we found anything very complicated, it would have to be from a pre-Genesis civilization," he said.

"We might even be able to reveal that the Atlantic Ocean was not always underwater. That alone would blow the minds of geologists," he laughed.

NAVA AND MRS. Asher anticipate that whatever they find can be reconstructed on land. "Or," Mrs. Asher speculates, "even encased in a bubble. Someday we may well have underwater cities encased in bubbles. My mother and I have been joking about putting in the first McDonald's on Atlantis."

Now she's reviewing applicants "of all ages from any walk of life, as long as they are high school graduates."

The group will fly to Spain July 9 for six weeks, living in a hotel in Cadiz, with transportation, room and board and scuba lessons and equipment included in the $2,850 tuition fee.

"What we want is highly educated amateurs," Nava says. "This is going to be a renaissance group of people, some specialists and some non-professionals. It's a happy trip, an adventure."

"We'll give equal weight to all evidence, including intuition," Mrs. Asher says.

"There's no reason these all have to be academic types. After all, it was a German businessman, Heinrich Schliemann, wandering around with a map and saying 'Dig here,' who discovered Troy," she says.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read your article about celiac disease. Well, my little boy has it and he is on a gluten-free diet. He has had it for 11 months. He is 24 months old now.

Is there a sure cure for it or will he have to be on this type of diet for the rest of his life? Will my little boy suffer bleeding around his brain with this type of disease?

You mentioned in an article that the patient should not have milk or milk products or sugar. Now my doctors told me he could have them. If he is not supposed to have them just what is left that he can have? At his age he needs milk to grow doesn't he?

Should I ask my doctor for vitamins, for him or just give him the ones on the market today? Trying to find the right food is a problem. Some of the products sold do not tell what the ingredients are. Trying to feed another child without this disease is a problem. The foods she wants, the little one wants also. What is a mother to do?

Dear Reader — There are various degrees of severity of celiac disease and differences in children and adults. In uncomplicated cases the main problem is the allergic-type reaction of the digestive tract to the gluten protein found in all cereals except corn and rice. By eliminating all cereal products except corn and rice from the diet, and any foods that are made with cereal products containing gluten, the problem can be controlled.

Food labeling is a problem. Hopefully that will improve with the changes being announced in food labeling. Flour, which contains gluten, is found in a variety of foods, including commercial ice cream, cold cuts, hot dogs and places you least expect to find cereal. Gluten is present in cream soups, gravy and anything which uses a white sauce or flour for a thickening agent.

In some inadequately treated cases the damage to the lining of the small intestine destroys the normal enzymes needed to split the milk sugar (lactose) and make it impossible to utilize milk.

THE SAME THING can happen to the enzymes formed by the intestine to split double sugars such as ordinary table sugar. These are complications of the primary problem and are not always present. With severe diarrhea and real problems it is wise to eliminate all of these foods until the problem subsides, then see what can be tolerated.

In individuals who respond well to just eliminating gluten from the diet, there is no reason to eliminate milk or sugar. So your doctor is undoubtedly right in the case of your child. He probably doesn't have these complications. He is less likely to develop them because his problem has been diagnosed and he is under proper treatment.

ALONG WITH THE destruction of the lining of the intestinal tract, there may be an overall failure of absorption, particularly of fats, from the intestinal tract. This can cause failure in the absorption of the fat soluble vitamins A, D, and K.

These complications need not occur if the diet is properly managed to begin with, specifically eliminating all sources of gluten. Failure to absorb vitamin K from the intestinal tract leads to a defect in the blood clotting mechanism which can lead to hemorrhages. Let me stress again that this is a complication and is not likely to occur in a patient under proper dietary management.

Atomic power and a berry may wipe out killer disease

VIENNA (UPI) — A small, slimy berry and atomic radiation are two weapons in the battle to wipe out schistosomiasis, a killer disease affecting 200 million people.

The International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), a United Nations branch based in Vienna and set up to find peaceful ways of using nuclear power, says it is working on a vaccine to cure the disease.

The vaccine would immunize people against the disease and the berry, from Ethiopia, would be used to kill its main carrier, a tropical and subtropical water snail.

According to the World Health Organization (WHO), 200 million persons have the disease, which eventually destroys the bladder and liver. WHO says it "saps people's energy and reduces their resistance to other infections."

WHO SAYS, "Schistosomiasis is now considered one of the most important public health problems of man."

The disease is caused by infection with parasites transmitted by snails which live in irrigation canals.

The IAEA says, "Infected and uninfected people are brought together and work in, drink from and bathe in these canals. All too often, human wastes are washed into the same water. This deadly combination is all that is needed for the rapid spread of schistosomiasis, particularly among the highly vulnerable children."

To help stamp out the disease, IAEA scientists are working on a radiated vaccine.

THE IAEA PLAN is to treat the parasites with just enough atomic radiation to keep them barely alive and prevent them from reproducing.

The "atomic parasites" would be injected into the patient. They would spread to other parasitic organisms in the body, eventually killing them.

Another effort to wipe out the disease is being conducted at the Haile Selassie I University in Addis Ababa.

There, working closely with the IAEA, scientists are developing a new molluscicide from the Endod berry, hoping that it will kill off the disease-carrying snails.

ETHIOPIANS HAVE used the berry as a cleansing agent for centuries, but only recently the scientists noticed that no snails could survive in the streams and rivers where native women used the berry as a soap for washing clothes.

The scientists are now working on a way to keep the berry suspended in the canal, thus, hopefully, killing off the snails.

The IAEA says that eventually it hopes the results of the experiments with the berry and the "atomic vaccine" will be used to stamp out other killer diseases such as African sleeping sickness and malaria.

Theory of husband-wife researchers

'Black factor' cuts cancer in whites

by DAVID HENDIN
(Last in a series)

NEW YORK — The blood serum of about 80 per cent of black people contains a substance which may help stop the growth of cancer in white patients when it is injected, according to a husband and wife team of cancer fighters in Seattle, Wash.

The "black factor" appears to unblock a mechanism in cancer patients which previously prevented the individual's body from fighting off the invading cancer cells.

This theory stems from the work of Drs. Ingegard and Karl Hellstrom over the past several years in which they have found clues to fighting cancer in the body's immune system — the same system which rejects a transplanted heart or other organ because the tissue is "foreign."

Work of the two physician-researchers, originally from Sweden's famed Caroline Institute, is based on their findings — now confirmed by others — that most, if not all, cancer tissues contain the foreign substances called tumor-specific antigens. These are not found in normal, noncancerous tissues in a person's body.

USUALLY these foreign substances would cause a person's system to produce antibodies, including certain types of white blood cells called lymphocytes, to fight them.

But the mystery has been in the body's apparent lack of ability to knock out a cancerous growth in this way. The Hellstroms have found that the blood of laboratory animals and many cancer patients does contain anti-bodies that are capable of killing off the cancers which their bodies harbor. And these antibodies do kill cancer cells in test tubes in the laboratory — but not in the patient's body.

This is due to a substance called "blocking antibody," which the Hellstroms have discovered. It appears to protect a cancerous tumor from attack by the body's lymphocytes.

It is this blocking antibody which the black factor seems to destroy. In studies, the Hellstroms repeatedly found that serum from certain donors seemed to unblock the blocking antibody in tumor cells taken from more than 100 patients with a relatively rare type of cancer called melanoma. In other words, serum containing the "black factor" enabled the bodies of melanoma victims to more effectively fight off their cancers on their own.

"WE SOON noticed that we started to recognize some of the names of the serum donors. They were black people who were working with us, or students and technicians," explained Dr. Karl Hellstrom in a recent interview in Nogales,

DRS. KARL AND Ingegard Hellstrom have discovered a "black factor" that comes from the serum of black persons and may help cure some forms of cancer in whites.

Ariz., where the American Cancer Society held its annual seminar for science journalists.

"We then did a systematic study of blacks and whites and found that whites react immunologically to melanomas about five per cent of the time, but blacks reacted at about the frequency of 80 per cent."

As one would therefore expect, melanomas are exceedingly rare in the black population. And when they do occur they are usually on the palms of the hands or the soles of the feet — areas where there is much less skin pigmentation.

The Hellstroms stress that their studies are strictly at an experimental stage. They are currently conducting a project with six melanoma patients who have failed to respond to conventional methods of therapy. This study will be broadened to 60 patients in the next two years. These patients will receive transfusions of blood from healthy black donors in an attempt to determine scientifically whether they can recover better than patients receiving plasma from white donors.

THE RESEARCHERS said they "felt encouraged" about their work, and added that if their experiments do indeed indicate that serum from blacks does help certain cancer patients, it would be possible to treat both potential and actual victims.

"Potential" victims of this and other types of cancers may be detected while the tumors are exceedingly small, and thus much easier to treat, if another part of the Hellstroms' research develops.

Basically, they have discovered that the "blocking antibodies" can be found in a patient's blood serum before a tumor can be detected by any other means. At this time, however, such tests are extremely complicated, time consuming and expensive. "Before anything else, the strategy should be to simplify the very complicated techniques which we are using," Dr. Karl Hellstrom said.

Although the Hellstroms believe that this type of test looks promising, they note that their studies thus far have been small and much broader studies are needed before anyone even begins to think about mass screenings of the public.

The Hellstroms' findings suggest that if physicians can improve a patient's anti-tumor reactions without increasing the blocking antibodies, or if the blocking antibody's effect can be decreased without affecting anti-tumor activity, there will be therapeutic benefits for many cancer patients.

Israeli folk night slated for Saturday

An evening of Israeli folk dancing and instruction will be on tap at 8:30 p.m. Saturday at the Beef and Barrel Restaurant on Algonquin Road in Schaumburg.

The affair is being sponsored by Northwest B'nai B'rith Couples Unit.

A spokesman for the group said the event is being held to help commemorate the 25th anniversary of the founding of Israel.

Admission to the affair will be $1. No previous dancing experience and newcomers are welcome. A cash bar and waitress service will be available.

The local couple unit was formed three months ago and is one of the organizations in the country sponsored by B'nai B'rith that is open to both men and women.

DuBrow on TV...by Rick DuBrow

Networks aren't shying away from controversies

HOLLYWOOD — Astute viewers know provocative programs are available the year-round despite the "regular season" promotion arbitrarily emphasized by the networks for monetary reasons.

All you have to do is keep your eyes open and not pay much attention to what the networks are pushing in any given week, at any time of the year, because their interests very often don't coincide with the genuine interests of viewers.

At any rate, among the provocative upcoming network programs are these:

• Two broadcasts of CBS-TV's "Look Up and Live" series, this Sunday and the following one, about embattled Northern Ireland.

This Sunday's program presents "Leading Irish Catholic and Protestant clergymen arguing their views on the causes of the dilemma and the potential role of churches in reconciling the various factions."

A WEEK LATER, on May 20, the series offers "Catholic and Protestant laymen from Belfast giving their opinions on the current conflict — the problems of social and economic equality and the need to overcome the painful memories of past hostilities. They tell of specific actions they have taken toward bringing people together."

• The NBC-TV "Today" series during the week of June 4-8, when it will emanate from the United Kingdom. There will be origins from London, a Welsh mining town, Scotland, Liverpool and Bath, and a filed report from Northern Ireland.

• A two-and-a-half-hour special, "Portrait of Stalin," this coming Monday on the non-commercial network, with the broadcast trying to put into historical perspective the life of the late Soviet leader.

• The two new courses of CBS-TV's college credit "Summer Semester" series beginning the week of May 20: "The Immigrant in American Life." And "Practical English for Hispanic Americans."

• A rebroadcast by CBS-TV Aug. 24 of its brilliant production of Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman," with Lee J. Cobb, Mildred Dunnock, George Segal, James Farentino, Albert Dekker, Edward Andrews and Gene Wilder. It is a two-hour presentation, and although CBS-TV said recently it would be seen late this spring or early in the summer, it is a welcome addition to a television schedule anytime.

• This Sunday's outing of ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers," in which the news-interview series will offer, in a switch of tone, a talk with the popular singing group The Fifth Dimension, who recently returned from a goodwill tour of Eastern Europe and Turkey on behalf of the State Department.

• "The Last King of America," a June 6 CBS-TV hour in which Peter Ustinov, in a simulated, improvised "interview" (with Eric Sevareid), portrays England's George III at three critical stages of his reign during and after the American revolution. The network says that Sevareid "assumes the view of a colonial journalist of the Revolutionary period."

CBS-TV notes that "Ustinov improves the responses to Sevareid's questions. All the answers are based on fact, however, since the actor extensively studied the man he portrays and the period represented." The same technique was used when Ustinov and Sevareid combined their talents about two years ago in another CBS-TV show, "A Conversation With Lord North," in which the actor portrayed the Prime Minister of George III.

Network summary says the first broadcast and the upcoming one are the initial presentations of a series entitled "The American Revolution," which "in celebration of the United States bicentennial, will continue periodically through 1976," chronicling people and events involved with the fight for U.S. independence.

The Hollywood Scene

by Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD — Bob Hope's outrageous outfits, the sexy costumes of Dean Martin's Ding-A-Lings and Flip Wilson's gaudy threads all come from the same place — NBC's huge wardrobe department.

Some 40 seamstresses work under the direction of Ange Jones, who fills such wacky requests as a special order for a two-headed sweater, or a chicken costume.

"Last year we made five different seagull suits for shows that had sketches of Jonathan Livingston Seagull," Mrs. Jones said.

A WOMAN OF middle years who sews all her own clothes, Mrs. Jones also designs clothes for nightclub acts, including those of Joan Rivers, Kay Ballard, Cass Elliott and Sonny and Cher.

"It's not unusual for us to design and make 60 costumes for a single television special," she said. "We're doing a show titled 'Opry Land' and shipping the costumes to Nashville. The total cost of the wardrobe will be $17,000."

Unless otherwise specified, the beautiful gowns worn by leading ladies in series or on specials are returned to NBC's burgeoning stock of costumes, to be worn again and again.

Occasionally a major star will have a clause written into her contract in which she gets to keep the wardrobe.

AS IN THE case of movies, actresses needn't worry about costumes. It's another matter when it comes to actors. They have to raid their own closets.

"As long as a man is appearing in a contemporary show he is required to wear his own clothes," Mrs. Jones said.

"The reason is that men's suits and jackets and trousers are very much more expensive than women's. Of course, we do make some men's clothes. But stars like Dean and Flip have their own tailors and seldom come to us unless it's for comedy outfits.

"No matter how big the star, they're very cooperative. They don't mind coming in for fittings because they all want the security of knowing they are well dressed and groomed when they're on the air."

MRS. JONES said the first thing a man does to change his television image is switch his wardrobe around. The second is his hair style.

"One of the most difficult shows we do is 'The Hollywood Squares.' They shoot the entire week's shows in one day. The panelists have to change clothes for each show, so that really keeps us hopping.

"What few people know is that the women on the panel just change blouses or jackets. They're sitting down so the audience and viewers can't see their skirts or slacks."

One of the easiest series is "Sanford and Son," with the east wearing sloppy old work clothes most of the time. Mrs. Jones and her crew also keep two soap operas — "Return to Peyton Place" and "Days of Our Lives" — dressed to the nines.

"Our toughest job was making a big bunny costume," she concluded. "Sewing it wasn't difficult, but getting John Wayne into it is another story."

Picture business is junk today'

Gary Lockwood keeps busy, content building his gliders

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — It's no secret that the movie business is pretty rotten these days. Jobs for actors are scarce and even the ones that are available are generally substandard.

You find actors all over, trying to make a buck, trying to keep from getting bored, trying to keep their heads (and their pride) above water.

I ran into Gary Lockwood in a big, sprawling loft above a muffler repair shop in Santa Monica. Hanging from the ceiling were several graceful gliders. This is the home of Seagull Aircraft and Lockwood is a partner in the venture.

"At this stage in my life," Lockwood said, "I'm interested in business ventures. I'm big in the construction business. There are some other things and now this.

That's because the picture business is junk today. I got some offers — I'm not besieged, but I get some — and I turn them down unless it's something I really feel like doing, and there aren't many."

LOCKWOOD'S association with Seagull began one day at the marina. He met a young man named Michael Riggs, who lives on a boat moored there. They talked and Riggs told him about his new thing, hand gliders.

These are devices whereby a person can go on a brief ride in the air, without power, without a tow, almost like flying a kite with yourself as passenger.

Lockwood, who likes to try everything, listened. Riggs said that he had flown thousands of hours in conventional planes — "but 12 seconds in a hand glider hooked me." So Lockwood tried it and got hooked.

Riggs and Lockwood are now partners in Seagull, and are making the gliders which sell for less than $500. They think they are in on the ground floor of something big, that hand gliders may be the next excitement in the sports world.

AS RIGGS and Lockwood explain it, today's hand gliders are descended from models NASA created, as part of the early space program. At the time, space capsules were designed to come down on land, rather than in the ocean, and re-entry parachutes were built to accomplish that. The hand glider of today is based on the NASA design.

"They're very safe," Lockwood says. "They're safer than surfing, which it resembles, except that you glide along on air currents, not waves."

The flights don't last long, for most hand gliderists, perhaps 30 seconds at the most. But, apparently those 30 seconds are pretty exhilarating.

THE GLIDERS are very light and can easily be packed and stowed on top of a car for transportation. Then they are unrolled, or whatever, and they're ready for action.

Lockwood says he's always been a try-anything-once sort of person. He's done it all, but thinks this new sport is perhaps the most exciting.

"I love it," he says, "and Stef (his wife, Stefanie Powers) is anxious to go up, too. My old lady is a gutsy dame and I know she'll love it."

For an actor, these are the times when he must use his ingenuity to keep busy and keep making money. Gary Lockwood certainly has found something new.

Yes, TV can help children learn by United Press International

Television can be an effective tool in helping elementary school pupils learn to read, according to a major nationwide study of youngsters who watched the first year of "The Electric Company."

The year-long investigation and evaluation of 8,363 students was conducted by the Educational Testing Service (ETS) for the Children's Television Workshop, creators and producers of the instructional series for second through fourth graders.

ETS reported that children, who watched the program in their classrooms during the inaugural 1971-72 broadcast year made significant gains over non-viewers in the reading skills the program was designed to teach.

Among the key findings in the study:

• It was an effective classroom supplement for children who were beginning to experience reading difficulty, especially second graders.

• It was successful on first grade classes that viewed.

• It was successful in producing gains for first and second grade classes across its 19 major curriculum areas which were tested by ETS.

• It had a similar effect on all groups who viewed in school — Spanish background, blacks, whites, boys and girls.

• It won a generally favorable reaction from teachers who found it useful in teaching and reviewing certain reading skills.

During the current second season, The Electric Company is being seen by an estimated 6 million youngsters, with about half viewing at school and half at home.

TV notes

NEW YORK (UPI) — William Holden will star in the four-part "mini series" dramatization of Joseph Wambaugh's novel, "The Blue Knight," which NBC will telecast next season.

ABC will have 12 instead of eight of its afternoon "After-school Specials" next season.

Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, who had a radio series for six seasons and were on television weekly for 14 seasons, are returning next season in a Filmways, Inc., syndicated series, "Ozzie's Girls." A pilot of that title was aired on NBC last September.

May restrict seminary admissions

A tight market for nation's young clergymen

by LOUIS CASSELS

A few years ago, churches were severely handicapped by a shortage of clergymen.

Today the situation is reversed. In many leading denominations, there are more ministers than jobs to be filled. With increasing frequency, young clergymen find themselves stuck as assistant pastors at the point in their careers when they formerly could have expected to become pastors with churches of their own.

Some middle-aged and older clergymen are clinging tenaciously to their pulpits even though they know a change would be better for them and their congregations. They stay put because they simply cannot find other openings.

A considerable number — hundreds at least, and probably thousands — have been forced to seek jobs in other professions because they cannot find pastorates.

THE SO-CALLED "mainline" Protestant denominations have been hardest hit by the clergy surplus. During the past 10 years, the number of United Methodist ministers has increased about 10 per cent, while the number of jobs for them to fill has declined 8 per cent.

The Episcopal Church has seen its roll of ordained clergy increase over the past decade by more than 2,600, but the closing or merger of small churches has reduced the number of pastorates by nearly 600.

United Presbyterians in the same period gained 1,200 clergymen and lost about 500 congregations.

The United Church of Christ has 6,000 ordained ministers competing for 5,500 posts.

The Lutheran Church in America reports more than 300 fully qualified ministers "waiting for a call" — which is a polite way of saying they're out of work.

There are obvious explanations for the oversupply of ministers. During the years of the clergy shortage, churches conducted vigorous recruiting drives to fill their seminaries. Now they find themselves faced with a recession of public interest in religion — and have neither the funds nor the congregations to provide jobs for all the men and women they've trained for the ministry.

TWO SOLUTIONS are being discussed in major denominations. One is to tighten seminary admissions, or declare a moratorium on clergy training, until the surplus is absorbed.

Another is to encourage preachers without pulpits to go into so-called "tent-making ministries." The term comes from St. Paul's practice of earning his own living as a skilled tent-maker while preaching the gospel.

The idea is that an ordained minister may earn his livelihood in a secular occupation, while serving nights and weekends as pastor or chaplain to some group which needs him but can't afford to pay him a salary. There are many such. (United Press International)

Christianity under attack in Africa

by RAYMOND WILKINSON

NAIROBI (UPI) — The Christian religion is under attack in Africa.

From the Cape to Cairo, Christians of various denominations have been harassed, beaten, imprisoned or kicked out of countries in recent months.

In Somalia, the government suddenly ordered all Roman Catholic missionaries to leave the country. Catholic officials here said.

Ethiopian police cracked down on Protestant groups, raiding homes, throwing scores of persons into jail and shaving the heads of women as a mark of disgrace, the sources said.

Some 15,000 Jehovah's Witnesses from Malawi have cautiously returned to their homes after they fled into neighboring Zambia last year following widespread persecution.

OTHER INCIDENTS have been reported in Uganda, Burundi, Egypt and South Africa.

"The whole continent is in turmoil and change," says religious writer Norman Hatt. "It is inevitable that the church will get caught up in it."

The Catholic Mirror newspaper said many of the incidents have been inspired by the clash between Islam and Christianity, including the situation in the predominantly Moslem country of Somalia, where, according to Catholic officials, all missionaries were ordered to leave the country.

The exodus has now been temporarily halted pending a review of the situation, the Catholic sources said, but all activity in mission-run hospitals, dispensaries, schools and orphanages has ceased.

IN ETHIOPIA, the sources said, the crackdown against Pentecostal, Lutheran and Baptist groups was inspired by the local and still all-powerful Coptic Church trying to protect its position and prevent the influx of competing Christian ideas.

The police action began last fall, and for the first time spread from the countryside into Addis Ababa. Public meetings were banned but when the groups moved into private homes, police raided these, too. The sources said in one swoop some 200 persons were thrown into jail for months and women had their heads shaved.

There was another religious crisis involving the Coptic Church in Egypt last fall when a series of incidents against that country's five million Copts resulted in the destruction of a church in Cairo and clashes between Copts and Moslems.

President Idi Amin of Uganda, a Moslem, has declared war on Christian groups, accusing white missionaries of being mercenaries in disguise and expelling around 60 of them.

IN NEARBY Burundi, President Michel Micombero in a recent speech blamed white missionaries for last year's massacres in which an estimated 150,000 persons died. Church officials were apprehensive Micombero's speech might herald a fresh crackdown against the church.

The estimated 250,000 Jehovah's witnesses in Africa have been in repeated trouble with governments because their religious beliefs often forbid them to enter into what officials consider essential nation building tasks and duties such as national service paying respect to national flags and singing anthems.

PRESIDENT HASTINGS Banda of Malawi last year called the Witnesses "devil's disciples" and, tacitly at least, encouraged attacks on them.

After reports of killings, rapes and beatings, 15,000-20,000 members fled into Zambia where, according to church sources some 300 persons died from measles and dysentery in refugee camps.

Witnesses in South Africa regularly have been sent to prison for refusing to serve in the armed forces. A recent flashpoint occurred when children were suspended from school in the Transvaal for refusing to pay special respect to the national flag.

Social Security and You

Q. My brother, who's 49, can't work because of a heart condition. He gets income every month from a small apartment he rents, and he claims he can't get disability benefits from Social Security because of this rental income. Is he right?

A. No, even though your brother has rental income, he can get monthly Social Security disability payments if he is found eligible for them. Have your brother call, write, or visit any Social Security office as soon as possible to apply.

Q. I am receiving widow's Social Security payments. If I remarry, will my payments stop? Also, may I qualify for payments on my new husband's Social Security?

A. If you remarry, you may continue receiving widow's payments but at a reduced rate. A remarried widow will receive 60 per cent of her deceased husband's Social Security if it would be more than your widow's payments.

Q. My sister receives monthly checks from Social Security. The checks come in her name. She is not able to sign her checks because of a recent stroke. What should we do?

A. Your sister could make a mark on the check in place of her signature and two witnesses could sign verifying her mark. If she is unable to even make a mark she could touch the pen as someone else makes a mark. This would be a legal endorsement of the Social Security check. However, if she is mentally unable to manage or direct the use of her checks then she should have a payee. If this is the case you should contact the nearest Social Security office and let them help you.

Social Security policy changed

Local Social Security offices will no longer be issuing Social Security numbers, according to Norman R. Thoresen, manager of the Arlington Heights Social Security office.

"This may sound about the same as Lake Michigan running out of water, but the fact is that our office is all out of original numbers," Thoresen stated. There's a good reason for it. "In the future they will be generated by our central computer in Baltimore," he explains.

The change is a part of a continuing program to modernize and update methods used in administering the Social Security program. Computer operations have reached the stage where it is more economical, and in the future will become faster than the former practice of issuing numbers for local offices across the United States.

"All of this means that the person who has never had a Social Security number should apply for one before he has an actual need for it," Thoresen advised. "All our requests for original numbers and duplicates will now be sent to Baltimore for checking and for the actual typing of cards."

"Until the program is fully operational, this will mean an added delay in issuing the number. It will now take from four to six weeks, rather than the week to ten days it used to take," he said. We hope that the public will be understanding, and will co-operate as they have in the past. Anybody who feels he will need a card soon should think ahead and apply for the number as early as possible," Thoresen concluded.

In discussing killing defense, H. W. Keisey points out that any time you create an option for declarer he is likely to go wrong. If you don't give him an option, he can't.

You are sitting East and cover dummy's queen of hearts with your king. It holds that trick and your eight-spot the next, but South wins the third heart lead; plays his nine of clubs and lets it ride.

If you win the trick with your queen and lead back a diamond it is obvious that South will be forced to take the diamond finesse right then and there. He needs every missing face card for his bid.

How can you persuade South not to take that diamond finesse? Easy! Just win that first club with the ace, not the queen. South will now count four spades, three clubs, one heart and one diamond as sure winners. He won't risk the diamond finesse which may let your partner in to cash two heart tricks.

Can this play be expensive. Of course, it can. South may not have counted to nine; may take the finesse anyway and wind up with an overtrick.

Army offering $2,500 bonus to 4-yr. enlistees

The U.S. Army has begun a new cash bonus program worth $2,500 to men enlisting for four years. In addition to the enlistment bonus, there is a training and cash enlistment option that is paid after an enlistee acquires specific skills.

The cash bonus for enlistment is available to qualified men without previous service who volunteer for artillery, armor or infantry. The offer also applies to former servicemen if they have served less than three years and have been out of the service for more than three months.

The bonus is payable upon successful completion of basic combat training, advanced individual training and the award of a military occupational specialty.

The option may be combined with other combat arms opportunities including airborne training, Special Forces, Rangers, duty in Europe, Korea, Alaska, Panama or Hawaii, United States or Germany-based divisions may also be selected.

The training option seeks to meet Army needs for a variety of technical skills such as communications, missiles, radar and electronics and nuclear weapons. This bonus is paid when the enlistee is awarded occupational certification in his field.

Beth Tikvah temple to graduate six

Six young people in the high school of Beth Tikvah Congregation will graduate at the Sabbath services today at the temple, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

The students are Elyce Azriel, Scott Meyer, Jeff Vickman, Larry Weiner, Lori Wayne and Stuart Pevsner. The first four students also will graduate from the high school Hebrew program and be honored at the service beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Instead of a sermon, the high school class will present a program celebrating Israel's 25th anniversary as a state.

Golfers, netmen face district tests

Gold Editor

Fourteen Herald area golf teams are herded into two separate Illinois High School Association State Championship Districts this morning in the first step of the annual post-season classic scheduled to begin at 8:30.

Arlington, Hersey, St. Vitor, Prospect, Fremd, Palatine and Wheeling are seven components of the 15-team Hersey District at Buffalo Grove Golf Club while Forest View, Maine North, Maine West, Elk Grove, Conant, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg take up residence amid a field of 17 teams at the Lake Park hosted district at Indian Lakes Golf Course.

Although the first eliminations — both team and individual — will come after the results of these tests, the standards for advancement into sectional play are very rigid.

Only the first three-placing teams and the three individuals finishing first, second or third will be given the green light for sectional competition May 19.

Each of the 492 downstate and suburban teams entered at the 24 district sites may nominate seven players for the challenge — the top four of which will be figured toward the team scores.

CUTTHROAT AT HERSEY

The seven area members comprising nearly half the field at Hersey boast a sparkling overall record of 59-33. But despite the talent of the local entries, it appears as though they'll be hard pressed to oust perennially potent Barrington and Deerfield.

Also joining in the competition are Cary Grove, Crystal Lake, Highland Park, Lake Forest, Lake Zurich and Stevenson in what could perhaps develop as the stiffest district in the state.

Hersey probably rests as the area's best hope to qualify for the sectionals. The Huskies have already wrapped up the dual-meet portion of the Mid-Suburban League standings with a 10-1 ledger and will have the benefit of playing their own course.

While failing to capture any of the five invitationals it has competed in, Hersey boasts second at Champaign, Conant and Lockport, a ninth at Quincy and the distinction of ending St. Vitor's incredible 59-meet winning streak. Its best nine-hole total of the season was a dazzling 152 against Vitor.

Prospect should be another seasoned tournament team with a superb second in Champaign. The Knights are the only team to beat Hersey in a dual meet this season and own a fine 12-4 overall mark.

Vitor would just as soon play the tournament at its home grounds on Rob Roy where the Lions have been almost invincible and boast an incredible nine-hole round of 147. The Lions' record reads 11-2 on the season.

Arlington has clicked for a low of 157 this season while compiling a 7-7 mark and an impressive third in the Conant Invitational while Palatine, a sectional qualifier last year, will seek to repeat the feat off an 8-3 overall record, a low of 155 and a tie for fourth at Conant.

Wheeling survived the MSL above the .500 plateau at 6-5 and Fremd rests right at the break-even mark with one meet still to be played. Each has had its moments, though, as the Vikings have carded a super 158 and the Wildcats a 164. The trick this morning, though, will be to maintain that pace for 18 holes.

LAKE PARK WIDE OPEN

Slated to tee off with the seven Herald area reps at Indian Lakes are Addison Trail, Driscoll, Fenton, Crown, Dundee, Elgin Academy, Elgin, Elgin Larkin, St. Edward and of course Lake Park which probably means there will be a stampede for the advancing tickets.

Forest View, a sectional veteran from last year, has accrued a 10-4 overall mark this year while firing a 156 for its low nine-hole count. Conant, an eighth-place finisher in its own invite, rests at .500 in the MSL and owns a low of 163.

Maine West is capable of cracking into the sectionals with a consistent team that sported a 6-7 mark in the tough Central Suburban League, but Maine North suffered through a winless season and should only be in contention on an individual basis.

A blanket could be thrown over Elk Grove, Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg as all three teams are nestled snugly in the lower division of the Mid-Suburban standings.

But golf is full of surprises — both good and bad — and as long as there are water holes, sand traps and out-of-bounds markers, there's no telling what might happen.

Fan's Forum

MORE ON CROWD COMPARISONS

Dear Fans Forum:

I rarely feel inclined to write a newspaper but I read the letter in your Fans Forum column about attendance at the Cubs and White Sox games and couldn't agree more with the writer. The only time crowd comparisons are legitimate is from about July 1 to Sept. 15 — when school is out, when the weather usually is pretty good, and when the pennant races start to take on some real meaning. It's ridiculous that one Chicago newspaper bothers to run a box each day now — in May — comparing attendance figures because I can't remember the White Sox having what you would call a real good day for baseball yet at home, a day when it was warm enough, and when there wasn't that threat of rain all day. Despite cold and wet weather over the weekend the White Sox did draw almost 100,000 in three games with the Yankees so that should tell the critics something. The Cubs will probably come home to beautiful weather and then those crowd comparisons become absolutely meaningless.

OVERSIGHT IN GOLF?

Dear Herald:

I was surprised to note the total omission of any mention of our local Arlington High School golf team in the Herald's sports section of this date (Wednesday, May 2). It was interesting to see that Rolling Meadows' 340 total was good enough for a 19th place finish in the second annual Conant Invitational, but how about Arlington's third place team finish and individual honors to Steve Loughman who carded a par 36 and a 40 for a 76 total that was good for a third place finish in the individuals. I'm sure this was a not too frequent Herald oversight.

Arlington Booster
Arlington Heights

You must have been looking at another paper. The May 2 story on the Conant Invitational included the entire Arlington team scoring and finish and a special mention of Loughman's 76. Four paragraphs were devoted to the Cardinal performance.

SUBWAY SERIES

Dear Sirs:

I agree with the letter that was in your paper last Friday from the fan who said this is the Cubs' year. But I think the White Sox are even better. I am a very rare fan who roots for both the Cubs and Sox and can't understand why there are not more like me.

I predict that the Sox will win their division by at least eight games. They are much improved over last year in many ways and have everything it takes. Their toughest competition will not come from Oakland, either. The fat-cat Athletics cannot get along with each other and it is showing in the standings. They are apparently satisfied with their World Series checks from last year.

The Cubs will have a harder time against Pittsburgh, but will win also. They have to be better off without Leo Lipp, and the Pirates are showing so far what a loss the great Roberto Clemente was.

I am already planning my vacation for next October so that I can see ALL the World Series games — without leaving Chicago.

KNICKS 'LUCKY'

Dear Sirs:

I am much dismayed by the way the National Basketball Association playoffs have been going. (I have been watching this, even though a Chicago team is not involved as it is in hockey, because I much prefer basketball to hockey.)

It looks as though the better team is not going to win. The Lakers deserve another title, but the Knicks keep lucking out. First they beat Boston only because John Havlicek was injured. (It was almost tragic to see this great star try to play, but miss easy shots because he couldn't even lift his hands above his shoulders.)

Now New York has received another tremendous break with Jerry West injured. If he stayed healthy it wouldn't even be close. I also feel that the Bulls, with a healthy team, would beat New York (They did so during the regular season.) But the lucky Knicks will win and the nation will be bombarded with books and endless articles about what a great team that is. It has been stated before in your Fan's Forum column that New York teams are usually overrated, and I agree fully.

Kickin' It Around

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

ALTHOUGH THE football game played Saturday evening by the University of Illinois in Chicago's Soldier Field was not an artistic or financial success, the idea behind this spring road show remains a good one and should be continued.

Some schools in the Midwest have initiated similar programs, but it is surprising that more colleges don't advertise their product this way.

One thousand fans turned out on a rainy night to watch an intrasquad game that showcased Illinois prospects for 1973, excluding a talented crop of incoming freshmen that includes youngsters from the Herald area.

With this area contributing so many players to the Illini team, and with such a poor fan turnout Saturday, it might be wise for school officials to forget the city site and consider bringing their game to our suburban high schools.

It was Illini coach Bob Blackman who inaugurated the idea of taking spring scrimmage games on the road. Blackman has been an innovator in many areas, with particular emphasis on putting some life into what can be dreary spring sessions, and he has company now in Big Ten coaching ranks.

Lee Corso, the dynamic new football coach at Indiana University, once played a spring game at Louisville under Canadian football rules and the fans liked it, as at least a change, so he decided to try one in Bloomington.

Corso also put in a rule for the spring game to make field goals worth various amounts of points, something that has been discussed at a professional level. It's the normal three points for any field goal kicked from 30 yards or less, four points for ones 31 to 40 yards in length, and five points for over 40 yards.

"I've never even liked to kick field goals — I want touchdowns," Corso says, "but it makes sense to me that you ought to get more out of a long kick than a short one. I think it would make the game a little more lively. The way we're playing it, you could win with a long kick."

Corso also has another suggestion for the Big Ten which appears sound, particularly now that freshmen are eligible to play with the varsity. He says he favors completely dropping spring football in favor of an expanded pre-season training session in the fall.

This plan would trade the 20 days of spring practice for an extra 10 days of workouts in August prior to the normal start of fall practice.

With an expanded fall practice, incoming freshmen with varsity potential would have a much better opportunity to contribute to the program immediately. They would be more likely to be ready by the opening game.

There was some concern last year over whether freshmen would be able to step into important varsity positions, including the vital quarterback slot. Coaches know now some freshmen can be of immediate help on the varsity.

Another major advantage of this plan would be to allow more football players the opportunity to compete in the normal spring sports of baseball, track, golf and tennis.

"They're worrying about scholarships for the non-revenue producing sports," says Corso. "The first thing this would do would be to free 100 pretty good athletes on every campus to play whatever they wanted in the spring."

Indiana's Corso and Illinois' Blackman have placed a new look on spring practice because they realize it can be a drag for the players.

This plan to eliminate spring practice and extend the fall sessions makes sense because the emotions of the players in the fall are more keyed to the approaching season.

THINKING MAN'S CATCHER. That's what they should start calling Prospect High School product Tom Lundstedt, now a catcher with Wichita of the Class AAA American Association.

Lundstedt, properly of the Chicago Cubs, stole a hit from Omaha shortstop Jose Martinez in a recent American Association game.

After Martinez singled in the eighth inning, Lundstedt asked plate umpire George Grygiel to check Martinez' bat. The umpire found grooves 12 to 15 inches long on the barrel of the bat and Martinez was called out.

"The grooves were hand made," the umpire said. "I showed (Omaha Manager Harry) Malmberg what we had. It's a technicality, but it's part of the rule book."

Martinez said he had made the grooves to stop the bat from chipping.

Lundstedt, who is playing this year in his highest minor league classification, is one of three catchers listed on the Wichita roster. The others are Jim Hibbs and J. C. Martin.

Hopefully, one of these days the Cubs will look at their catching on the parent club, realize it's not as good as advertised, and give a youngster like Lundstedt a well-deserved chance. They could use a few with his attitude.

Jim

I just hope they don't wait until it's too late — as is so often the case with the stand-pat Wrigley organization.

REMEMBER WHEN Jim Bouton came out with his book "Ball Four," which was published in 1970?

The former major league pitcher created quite a controversy with his diary of a baseball season, an honest and often hilarious account which broke all records for a sports book.

The book was so honest that Commissioner Bowie Kuhn thought it would ruin the baseball image and he actually called Bouton into his office for a reprimand.

I just reread the book and found it as delightful and refreshing this time. One part in particular was interesting because Bouton talked about Richie Allen, then with the Phillies and one of the game's controversial players. Allen now is the toast of Chicago with the White Sox.

It showed sagacious foresight.

"There was a rumor abroad in the land that the (Houston) Astros were going to get Richie Allen from the Phillies," Bouton wrote in 1969. "Some of the Astros were against it. They said he's a bad guy to have on a ball club. Humph. I wonder what the Astros would give to have him come to bat just fifteen times for us this season. It might mean a pennant."

"If I could get Allen," Bouton continued, "I'd grab him and tell everybody that he marches to a different drummer and that there are rules for him and different rules for everybody else. I mean what's the good for a .220 hitter who obeys the curfew? Richie Allen doesn't obey the rules, hits 35 home runs and knocks in over 100. I'll take him."

And that was written at a time when it was fashionable to rap Allen for everything he did or didn't do.

If you reread "Ball Four" now, you'll find many more examples of a very perceptive Jim Bouton.

10 years ago...

Prospect and Palatine finished 1-2 in the district track and field meet. Individual winners from the area were Prospect's Tom Bremner in the 100 (9.3), Larry Bogart in the 100 (9.7), Bob Frost in the 800 (1:58.3), and Arlington's Bill Truax in the 1500 (4:15.1). Jim Hogarty and Hank LaRocca of Prospect combined to set down Arlington and Paul Spittorff in district baseball, 6-3. Palatine dumped Forest View in the district tourney, 3-0, on Hal Parmenter's 3-hitter. Arlington tied for the district golf crown with a 319 at Golden Acres. Fred Devin was low with a 78.

Tennis entries to compete at four qualifying sites

Tennis Editor

Can Arlington — winner of 10 straight titles — hold off Prospect?

Will Maine West be able to survive the onslaught of Lake Park and Conant?

Can Wheeling and Maine East avoid last place?

These musings and more will be answered tonight and tomorrow as area tennis teams compete at four sites for the right to advance to the Arlington Heights hosted state tourney May 25-26.

The Forest View District will draw the most attention with Arlington receiving a serious challenge for the championship from Prospect. Both schools will sport strong doubles teams.

If singles players from Palatine, Fremd, Rolling Meadows, Hersey, St. Vitor and Forest View can knock off the Cardinal and Knight entrants, Prospect will have a chance to end Arlington's district winning streak.

Over at Elk Grove it shapes up to be a three-team race with Maine West and Lake Park as the favorites and Conant in the darkhorse role.

Schaumburg, Maine North, Fenton and Elk Grove round out the field.

Wheeling, winner of just one dual meet coming into this week, will be trying to stay out of the cellar at Highland Park. Also entered in the district are Stevenson, Lake Zurich, Lake Forest, Barrington and Deerfield. The latter two and Highland Park are the top teams in this one.

Maine South will be hosting the remaining area team — Maine East. The Blue Demons have just won two meets. Favored Maine South will also be entertaining Elmwood Park, East and West Leyden, Ridgewood and Walther Lutheran.

The matchup between Arlington and Prospect should really be interesting since the Knights' first doubles team defeated Arlington just last week. Two different Cardinal teams will be in action this weekend — Jim Merkel and John Paczkowski will form the top team with Todd Reese and Craig VanGorp also joining forces.

When Prospect's Jeff Risteen and Charles Clemas won 7-5, 6-3, Rex Miller and VanGorp furnished the opposition. Miller will be playing singles along with Don Rodig.

Making up the other formidable Knight team will be singles players Mark Meves and Rob Zimmanck. This means first and second singles players from both teams will be shooting for doubles honors.

JUMPIN' JOHN Andrews of Hersey will be one of the long jump favorites in the Mid-Suburban League meet at Conant today and tonight. Andrews leaped 21 feet, 3 inches in last Friday's Falcon Invitational and that is the top mark in the area this year. (Photo by Bob Finch)

Marcus fans 10; North whips Maine West, 5-3

Behind the 10-strikeout pitching of Bob Marcus, Maine North rose to uncommon heights Thursday afternoon, bumping off Maine West which possible got caught looking past the Norsemen and at today's district opener with Prospect.

The Norsemen never trailed and led by four runs to nothing at one point before settling back for a 5-3 victory.

It was the second outstanding performance in as many days for the Norsemen who are now 4-0. On Wednesday, they lost, 6-5, to defending state champ Niles West. Neal Schawel homered for North in that one.

Maine West head coach Al Carstens never called upon his top pitching duo of Jay Liggett (5-1) or Bill Slapke (2-2) against North. Instead, he opted for seldom used Paul Kosac with Jim Olsen in relief.

The Norsemen jumped a Kosac and were up, 1-0, after he had thrown just two pitches. Kevin Patten doubled and scored on Graham Wiemer's single.

Marcus got into early gear and already had seven strikeouts when North came to bat in the home third. Three hits produced three runs and Kosac's third loss in as many decisions.

All three runs scored after two outs. Schawel singled and went to third when Brian Bradfield doubled. Bill Harrison's triple gave him two RBI's and a 3-0 North lead. Harrison came home when second baseman John O'Connor's relay went wild.

North's final run tallied in the sixth when Bob Kelley launched a wind-aided homer over the left center fence. The blow was off Olsen who relieved Kosac in the fourth.

West got to Marcus on Olsen's RBI single in the fifth and Steve Zuccarini's two-run homer an inning later.

Walther assumes new post; Card grid job open

by KEITH REINHARD

After six years at the Arlington football helm, Bob Walther will be tackling a new challenge next fall.

The veteran coach and long-time educator has accepted the post of Director of Student Activities at Prospect effective at the beginning of the 1973-74 school year.

This will be the fourth school within Dist. 214 that he has been associated with. He joined the Forest View staff when that school opened, transferred later to Elk Grove and replaced Al Allen at the Cardinal grid helm in 1967.

Walther's diversified background makes him an excellent pick for this new assignment. The area coaching ranks on the other hand will be losing one of their most capable members.

Walther has been working within 214 for 10 years. Prior to that his coaching and teaching experience has included the college, high and junior high level dating back to 1952 when he received his B.A. degree in education at Augustana College.

The overall record of teams Walther has coached, including track, basketball, wrestling and golf in addition to football, is 102-54-8. During his six-year stint at Arlington he guided the Red Birds to a 36-11-2 mark including outright league titles in '68 and '70 and a share for the conference crown in 1967.

The 1968 and 1970 Card teams had unblemished records, only the fourth and fifth unbeaten teams in the school's 40-year football history.

In addition to coaching, his sports background includes two-year stints as athletic director, assistant athletic director and intramural director. He served as assistant head line coach at Augustana and coached at Northwest Junior High in Davenport, Iowa and at high schools in Prophetstown and Antioch prior to coming to Forest View.

"In the past I've always thought of athletics and particularly football as the driving force in my life," Walther noted. "But one's philosophy changes over the years. I've come to view sports as just a segment of the total educational program and I've grown anxious to deal with this broader perspective."

Since Walther's background also includes a masters in Education Administration from the University of Illinois, teaching assignments in a number of fields outside of athletics, work in a number of administrative and counseling capacities and association with a number of other professional activities, he should have little difficulty making the transition from football coach to actively director.

Forest View ousts Hersey; Conant bumps Fremd, 5-4

A 15-strikeout performance by big ace righthander Larry Monroe and a seven-hit attack by his mates gave Forest View a 7-3 victory over Hersey in the Falcons' district Thursday. Monroe had a shutout going into the final inning, but the Huskies scored three unearned runs with the help of two errors. Two of them scored on wild pitches.

Mike Broderick collected three hits for Hersey and teammate Casey Frankiewicz, plus Falcons Rick Haaning and Dale Schoenbeck, had two each. Haaning smashed a double and Ed Katzman a triple for Forest View.

Tom Good started for the Huskies and yielded six runs in three innings, half of them unearned. He gave up five hits, walked six and struck out seven. Brian Nelson worked the last three frames allowing two hits, one run, five walks and getting two strikeouts.

Forest View wasted no time with three runs in the first. Craig Stiles was safe on a passed ball after striking out, and singles followed by Bill Millner, Schoenbeck and Gregg Fink.

The Falcons added another unearned tally in the third, again when the hitter (Fink) struck out but reached. A hit batsman and two walks forced in the run.

The lead grew to 6-0 in the fourth on Schoenbeck's single, Katzman's triple and Haaning's double. The hosts' final run was in the sixth on two walks and another hit by Haaning.

Hersey refused to give up in the seventh when Broderick beat out an infield hit, Al Wiechers reached on an error, Bob Marzek walked, Steve Arneri also was safe on a miscue and Frankiewicz singled.

Forest View will take on Rolling Meadows at 2:00 Saturday on the Falcon diamond, with the 10 a.m. game being Arlington vs. St. Viator. The winners will meet Monday at 4:00 for the right to advance to regional play.

Pinch hitter Mark Isakson's infield hit pushed across the decisive run as Conant held off Fremd 5-4 to advance through opening round district baseball action at Barrington.

The Cougars were never headed although they felt some pressure in the final stanza when Fremd rallied to close a three-run gap and had the potential winning run at the plate with two out.

Tim Domek was called in from the bullpen at that point by Conant helmsman Jerry Cunningham and Tim snuffed out the rally to preserve the victory for starter Ken Hubbard.

Viking twirler Larry Coughlin, who had allowed just one run in 27 previous innings of toil this spring, was raked for seven hits including a solo circuit clout and a pair of doubles. He got into trouble right under the gun when he plunked the first batter he faced — Jim Brown — and Brown eventually scored.

Coughlin also walked a batter to lead off the second and be too tallied. Brown in the first frame was sacrificed to second by Jeff Ironside and came the rest of the way when a throw went into leftfield on a steal attempt.

In the second it was Neal Thompson drawing a pass, stealing second and coming in on a single by Mike Atkocaitis. Conant made it 3-0 in the fourth when Tim Dern unloaded a shot over the fence in right center 340 feet away.

The Vikes narrowed the gap to 3-2 in the bottom of the fifth when Jeff Brisson reached on a miscue, was wild pitched to second and scored on another error off the bat of Jeff Hanisch. Hanisch came across too on Bob Burke's two-base blow.

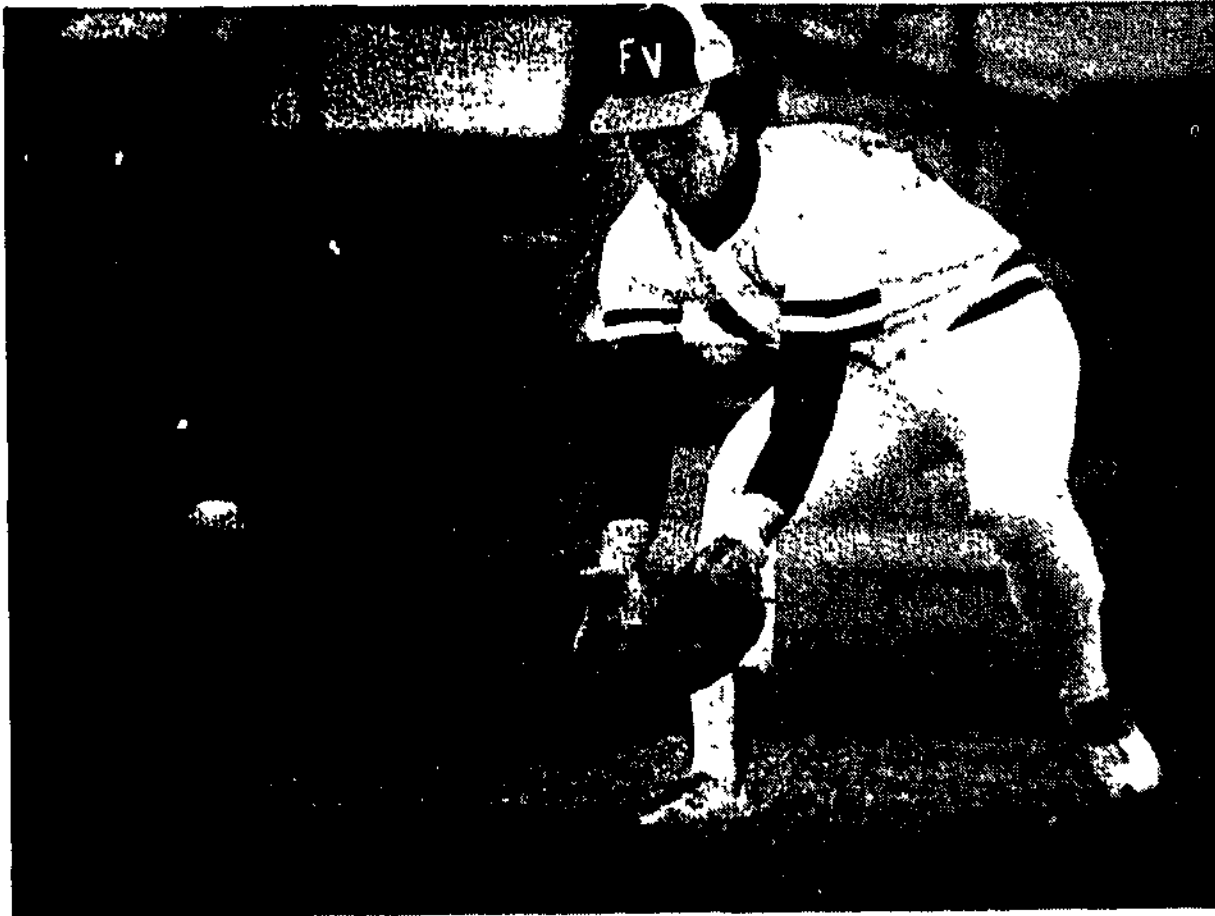

The Cougars reclaimed those two runs in the sixth after Atkocaitis had reached on a fielder's choice. A double by Dave Miller advanced Atkocaitis to third and he raced in on the infield hit by Isakson. Miller also scored while Isakson was stealing second.

A two-run single by Fred Smith trimmed the lead to one in the bottom of the seventh before Domek came in to quell the uprising. Conant will now clash with Schaumburg Saturday at 1 p.m. for the right to battle in the finals.

Elk Grove slams Palatine

Elk Grove rapped out nine hits to back Jim Emslie's nifty pitching effort through six innings and then cut short a Palatine rally in the seventh to win 9-3 in a make-up league contest on their own diamond.

Emslie had a one-hit shutout going when the Pirates opened up in the seventh. It was still too little too late for Al Berman's visiting crew however and saw their four-game winning streak snapped while dropping back to the .500 mark.

The Grenadiers had a healthy 9-0 advantage going into the seventh. In the first frame Scott Scholten blasted a two-out double to center driving in Loren Crites, who had reached on an error, and Frank Bavaro, who has been hit by a pitch.

In the second John Strybel singled, John Romano walked, Mike Emmer sacrificed them along and Crites dumped a single into right center, sending both men across.

Then Grens picked up a couple more in the fourth off Palatine starter and loser

Mike Hughes. Mike Emmer singled in one of them and eventually scored the other when a popup by Crites was juggled.

For good measure the hosts padded their lead by three in the fifth. Strybel banked out his third hit of the contest after Larry Lasplisa had reached on an error. Mike Brandt promptly singled to left, driving in Lasplisa, and Emslie subsequently poked out his first hit of the season — a double off the fence in right — and Strybel and Brandt both came in.

The Pirate rally started with Steve Kirk walking. Lon Marchel then slammed a double to right to bring home Kirk. Kent Mutchmore singled in Marchel and later Andy Knotek drove in Mutchmore with a single to left.

The win was the fourth for Larry Paddy's gang in ten outings. Emslie whiffed 10 in upping his own slate to 2-4.

Cardinal golfers trim Pirates

Knights tune up with sharp effort

Golf Editor

The stage is set for one of the most exciting finishes to the Mid-Suburban League golf season that the 12-team conference has seen in years.

In closing out the dual-meet portion of the campaign, no less than five clubs have thrown their hats into the ring for league honors.

Hersey captured one-half the value of the season by winning the dual-meet portion with a 10-1 record. But Prospect is right behind with a 9-2 mark and Forest View finished in third at 8-3. Both Arlington and pre-season favorite Palatine deadlocked for fourth with 7-4 standatds.

KNIGHTS ON MOVE

Prospect tuned up for its district test on Friday and the league meet on Tuesday by firing a sizzling 156 to top Rolling Meadows' 173.

The Knights followed the example of Rich Carlson who toured Mt. Prospect

Country Club in one-birdie, two-bogey fashion while sporting a nifty 36. Both Craig Ridley and Ron Swanson checked in with 39's while Craig Calkins notched a 42 and Rich Reed a 43.

The setback left Meadows with a 3-8 mark, good for 16th in the standings. Its 173 total was derived from 42's by Carl Schwelkert and Todd Sander. a 43 by John Stahl, a 46 by Tom Carlstrom and a 48 by Tom Schramm.

The Knights parlayed their varsity decision to the frosh-soph level where Prospect dropped the Mustangs, 178-190 behind Steve Spielman's 42. Sharing medalist honors was Mustang Mike Ambrosio.

CARDS BUMP PIRATES

In a battle for fourth place in the standings, Arlington was carried to the fifth-man's tiebreaking score before disposing of Palatine, 213-215. The teams had deadlocked at 169 through the regulation four-man count, but Arlington earned a two-stroke margin of victory.

Steve Siuka wore meet medalist honors for Arlington with a nifty 40 over Palatine Hills' par 36 layout. Jeff Palmer, Steve Ringel and Doug Sandell notched 43's while Steve Loughman's 44 proved the winner.

Palatine countered with 41's by Jim Arden and Bob Capoun, a 42 by John Lorgan, John Capoun's 45 and Jim Sobczynski's 48. Arlington also claimed the frosh-soph battle, besting the Pirates, 180-198.

VIKES CLIP COUGARS

Another intense struggle developed between Fremd and Conant who couldn't decide the outcome from the four scores in regulation play. The Vikings needed a fifth counter to finally emerge triumphant, 213-217.

Joe Murken paced Fremd with a 41 while Lach Frew and Jeff Rubak contributed 42's. Jim Dulch chipped in with a helpful 43 and the Vikes won it on Bob Frank's 45.

Conant was equal to the challenge through four players as Dave Love earned medalist honors at Golden Acres with a 40. Dave Domek carded 42, newcomer Dave Sidin and Mike Profka shot 43's and Kevin Eakins toured in 48.

The Vikings insured a tie for second on the frosh-soph level by whipping the Cougars, 179-186.

GRENS EDGE PANTHERS

In still another five-man "overtime" struggle, Elk Grove outlasted Glenbard North, 239-250. Both teams carded identical 190's to toss the meet outcome into the lap of the fifth men.

The Grenadiers were headed by 47's from Keith Moore and Todd Gander plus the 48's by Scott Walker and Mark Akuma. Mark Christensen's 49 won it for Elk Grove.

Playing Indian Lakes' Iroquois front nine, the Panthers completed a winless season on both levels by bowing to the Elk Grove frosh-soph, 222-237.

Elk Grove only league tennis winner

Two Mid-Suburban League tennis teams were involved in shutouts and another in a tightly fought meet Wednesday. Here are the results:

ELK GROVE 5, SCHAUMBURG 0

The Grenadiers were pushed the distance only once in handling the visiting Saxons. That came in third singles when Tom West won 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 over Mike Passaglia.

Posting straight set victories were these Grens:

Len Greenberg over Mike O'Laughlin 6-1, 6-0; Ken Pollitz over Pete Viohl 6-1, 6-1; Bruce Kian and Scott Holste over Ed Amaldi and Jim Brennan 6-1, 6-1; and Kevin Mutchny and Bill Hatzold over Drew Kron and Gary Wright 6-1, 6-2.

Elk Grove just got by Schaumburg 3-2 on the frosh-soph level.

FENTON 5, WHEELING 0

Taking on the non-conference Bisons at Bensenville, the Wildcats found them too much to handle. These were the unhappy totals:

Steve Pauly over Dave Neukuckatz 6-0, 6-1; Kurt Carlson over Mike Martinez 6-1, 6-0; Curt Jones over Frank Ziegler 6-1, 6-2; Jay Hoskins and Ted Juszczuk over Tim Halvorsen and John Fricke 6-0, 6-2; and Steve Shepsteche and John Kircher over Hal Morris and Leonard Jakacki 6-4, 6-2.

Wheeling also dropped the lower level meet by the same score.

ELMWOOD PARK 3, FOREST VIEW 2

The Falcons could only stop the Tigers in two matches, both singles. No. 2 man Greg Meyer blasted Gary Rathunde 6-2, 6-1 and No. 3 Charles Cooksley handled Steve Angileri 6-0, 6-3.

Setbacks came like this:

Don Kasper over Joe Karwinski 7-5, 6-3; Fred Less and Bruce Tompkins over Jeff Aubert and Chris Phillips 6-1, 6-3; and Dom Buccini and Rich Dizer over Dave Jacob and Randy Router 6-0, 6-2.

Forest View managed a split with a 4-1 sophomore victory.

THE WINNING CAR: 1973 VEGA GT

MOTOR TREND MAGAZINE'S "CAR OF THE YEAR" IN THE ECONOMY CLASS.

We're very proud having the 1973 Vega GT named Motor Trend's Economy "Car of the Year." It's a testament to the award for our little car and a sign of the future for the automotive expert. Since the 1971 model introduction, obviously there's a lot to like about Vega's sporty styling, excellent ride and handling, a roomy interior, bucket seat. Then there are important quality features, an extra cool leather interior, a power window, a rear double-panel roof construction and steel side- and door beams. Visit our showroom soon and let us show and demonstrate our little award winner, the 1973 Vega.

League showdowns

Mid-Suburban, Central Suburban hold track finals

by LARRY EVERHART
Track & Field Editor

The best way — maybe the only way — to predict the outcome of the Mid-Suburban League track meet at Conant today would be to put several names in a hat and draw one.

The names would be Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, Fremd and Hersey and you could put together a case for any one of them deserving the favorite's role when the annual 12-team get-together unfolds with field events at 3:00. Running preliminaries will start soon after and finals are slated to begin at 8:20.

All the marbles are at stake with the whole conference season compressed to about a six-hour period. This meet is all that counts, as has been the case every year, with league duels used only for practice and to give everyone an idea of who's strongest.

The pre-conference meet outlook was far different last year. Just about everyone could easily predict the correct order of finish — Palatine, Elk Grove, Wheeling and Hersey — before the first event was run. This year there are an almost endless number of possibilities.

Complicating the situation is the fact that many top performers in the MSL have been sidelined for various lengths of time with injuries, which seem to have been more common than usual this spring. Most have recovered enough to compete tonight, having pointed for this occasion, but some may not be 100 percent yet.

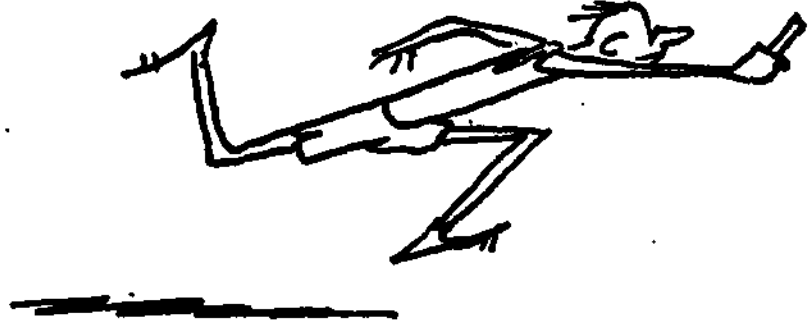

How close they are to top strength, and the state of their all-important mental attitudes, will tell the story tonight but are extremely hard to speculate on.

If Elk Grove wins it will probably be because of its ace hurdlers, Dave Jensen and Steve Busse plus several good sprinters — though they have not been completely healthy.

Palatine is a threat to repeat as long as its brilliant distance runner, Scott Williams, is around. And Pirate Jan Fitzgerald, injured last year, is about due to break loose on the hurdles.

Schaumburg could sneak up and take the whole thing if boys like sprinter Eric Porter, long jumper and 440 man Bob Cummings, the top 880 relay team in the league, and marathoner Arnie Jackson are up to par.

Fremd has good overall depth with the individual leader being Jerry Finis, top man in the area to date in both shot put and discus. Sprinter Tom Wistar posted several area highs earlier in the season, has been injured for some time with a bad muscle pull, but has a clean bill of health now.

And don't forget Hersey, last fall's winner in the cross country conference meet and second in the state. The Huskies have a top pole vaulter in Mark Conard and long jumper in John Andrews, but have been hurt by injuries and a top boy's move out of the state.

For what it's worth, here are conference dual-meet records of the five contenders: Palatine and Fremd 5-0, Hersey 5-2, Elk Grove and Schaumburg 4-2.

But they don't mean anything now. It still figures that tonight's get-together will be one of the hottest scrambles league track units have ever staged.

Here are each event's top entries and times and last year's placers who are returning:

160-YARD DASH

Elk Grove had the only 10-flat sprinter so far, Joe Lawson, plus Don Weadley and Scott Dorsey. Porter has gone 10.1 and four different boys have 10.3's. None of last year's top sprinters have returned.

220-YARD DASH

Wistar posted the top area mark early in the season, 22.3, but will have to recover very fast to approach that again. Porter has 22.6 and the other places are up for grabs, with no one else having gone under 23.0. Last year Porter was fourth (23.2) and Hersey's Dave Kuntz fifth (23.3) and both are back.

440-YARD DASH

Hersey's Dan Lelder, last year's conference champ with 50.5, is back but has not yet been under 52. Again, Wistar's status could be key as he owns the best area mark, 50.7. Steve Drake of Wheeling has run 51.0, Scott Dorsey of Elk Grove 51.7, Hersey's Chris Cooney 51.8 and Schaumburg's Bob Cummings 51.9. Cooney was fifth last year with 51.6.

880-YARD RUN

Drake is a heavy favorite by virtue of his 1:55.3 in last Friday's Falcon Invitational. He has had the top time all season, his previous best being 1:57.5. Palatine's Williams ran 1:57.1 in his only try at this event Tuesday but probably will stick to the mile and two-mile. Freshman Pirate Chuck Bell has a 1:58.4 and Cooney 1:58.9.

MILE RUN

Williams is a heavy favorite as no one else has been close to his earlier 4:20.1. He had a 4:25.5 in last Saturday's Palatine Relays. Arlington has two fine milers — Tom Holub with 4:28.4 and Bill Schmid with 4:31.6. Other fine runners are Schaumburg's Jackson and Palatine's Dave Tehele and Paul Kearns. Last year Williams was third (4:27.9) and Elk Grove's Damian Archbold fifth (4:31.5).

TWO-MILE RUN

Jackson, last fall's premier conference runner in cross country, logically is a definite favorite with his 9:29.9 being easily the best thus far. Neil Haseman of Arlington has gone 9:37.2 with teammates Holub doing 9:38.5 and Bill Schmid 9:42.1. Williams and Jay McCarthy of Hersey have run 9:40 and Tehele 9:39.3.

120-YARD HIGH HURDLES

This shapes up as a real dogfight among Elk Grove's dynamic duo of Busse (15.1) and Jensen (15.2), Glenbard North's Joy Maxwell (15.2), Hersey's Mark Kleiner (15.3), Palatine's Jan Fitzgerald and Fremd's Steve Whitel (both 15.5). Among these only Maxwell placed last year with 15.5.

160-YARD LOW HURDLES

By contrast, this group of hurdlers has a clear favorite — Jensen, because of his several times below 20, including a 19.3 recently. Fitzgerald's best is 19.9, Busse's 20.3, Bailey's 20.5 for Palatine and Gay Leydig's 20.8 for Arlington. This event has the most repeat placers from last year — Jensen, Maxwell, Fitzgerald and Bailey.

880-YARD RELAY

Schaumburg's Bob Cummings, Bob Nommell, Ed Martin and Porter have been the MSL's best unit with a peak of 1:32.8. Following in close order have been Elk Grove, Palatine, Hersey and Arlington. Palatine won last year with 1:32.4.

MILE RELAY

Arlington's Jim Nystrom, Gary Leydig, Mike Dolinajec and Craig Bernhardt posted the area best of 3:28.6 at the Palatine Relays. Previously Hersey went 3:29.0, state qualifying time. Next-best appears to be Palatine (3:30.8). Hersey's 3:27.9 won it last year.

SHOT PUT

This has been the strongest event in the area this year by state standards. No less than seven boys have eclipsed the state qualifying mark of 52.0. Best is Fremd's Finis with 57-9/4, then Wheeling's Bill Chlebek (57-2/4), Rolling Meadows' John Sloan (56-4/4) and Fremd's Ken Vale (55-1/4). Sloan, Vale and Chlebek placed last year when only 51-10 was good enough to win. That probably won't even place this year!

DISCUS THROW

Finis has been the best all season and has hit 159 feet twice, including last week, but Forest View's fast-improving Jim Burke threw 157-3. Palatine's Jim Grab has been over 152 and Sloan, Vale and Chlebek in the 140's. Finis, Burke and Scott placed last year.

POLE VAULT

Wheeling's Bill Pickler hit the area high last week, 13-6, and a few days earlier Hersey's Mark Conard had 13-4. Thirteen-footers include Arlington's Dave Auge and Greg Morand and Schaumburg's Bruce Mahlig. Last year Morand (13-6) and Auge (13-0) placed in the conference meet.

HIGH JUMP

Steve Balogh of Rolling Meadows and Mike Murphy of Palatine have been the only jumpers to reach the state qualifying mark of 6-2. John Shepulis of Fremd has gone 6-1 and Wheeling's John Lortz and Elk Grove's Bill Butler have leaped 6-0. No placers from last year are returning.

LONG JUMP

Hersey's John Andrews, Schaumburg's Cummings and Forest View's Mike Jule are the only ones who have surpassed 21 feet. A host of others have gone over 20, the best being Schaumburg's Ed Martin, Prospect's Ray Nee and Elk Grove's Joe Lawson. Another possibility is Hersey's Dave Kuntz, who was second last year with 21-3. Nee was fourth in '72.

BLASTING DOWN the high hurdles goes Maine West's Bill Klippert, who's favored to win both the 120 highs and 180 lows at Saturday's Central Suburban League track championships. Klippert has recorded season bests of 14.5 seconds in the highs and 19.8 in lows. He was a double winner in Tuesday's CSL South Division qualifying meet. The SCL championships get underway at 10 a.m. Saturday at Niles North. (Photo by Bob Finch)

Powerful Glenbrook North favored in CSL feature

by MIKE KLEIN

Glenbrook North and first-year head coach Bill Buzard appear primed to blast through Saturday's Central Suburban League track championships at Niles North.

Buoyed by eight first places, the Spartans easily won with 84 points in Tuesday's North Division qualification meet for the CSL finals.

Closest challenger Maine East lagged 31 points in arrears. The Blue Demons' league title hopes were probably dashed when still healing injuries forced Mike Bell and Doug Tucker out of action in the 880 and 440 runs respectively.

Bell will not compete Saturday at Niles North. Tucker helped the Demons qualify their 880 and mile relay units.

The comparable South Division meet was won by Deerfield which just nudged past runner-up Maine West, 57-54. The Maine Warriors' 880 relay contingent was disqualified for running out of the lane.

Maine West also lost valuable points when Bob Chapman failed to qualify in the 100 or 220 runs after strong performances all spring.

The Herald area Males qualified for 34 spots and will have three relay teams competing, two from Maine East.

Tucker, Mike Kallal, Scott Peota and John Schmid will carry the Blue Demons colors in Saturday's 880 and mile relay competition.

Those four ran their best time of the campaign with a 1:32.9 in the 880 Tuesday on Glenbrook South's all-weather track. Still, they could finish only third as Glenbrook North won the event in 1:32.0.

Their mile relay time of 3:32 also yielded a third. New Trier West and GBN recorded identical 3:28.9 clockings but the former was given first place.

The other Herald area relay unit will be Maine West's mile contingent. Running on their own slow and wet track in the South Division finals, the Warriors were third in 3:37.5. Competitors were Kevin Skahan, Scott Johnson, Greg Klebe and Scott Pischke.

Thirty competitors will fill the 34 individual spots qualified for by Maines West, East and North. Only four of that group will contest for more than one title.

The very best shot this area has for a conference title is Maine West's Bill Klippert in low and high hurdles. He won twice Tuesday, covering the 120 highs in 14.9 and 180 lows in 20.5 seconds.

Sloppy cinders at West put Klippert well above his bests of 14.5 in highs and 19.8 in lows. He's the standout favorite in hurdles on Saturday.

Part of Klippert's competition, however, will come from Maine North's Tom Leonard who qualified for both lows and highs at the North Division finals.

On GBS' all-weather track, Leonard ran a 15.6 clocking for third place in the 120 highs. That is his lowest timing this spring. He was fourth in 21.9 seconds over the 180 lows.

Maine West's Chip Barbour, a fine distance runner who also competed cross-country, will join the mile and two-mile fields at Niles North.

Twenty seconds under 10 minutes left him second in the South Division two-mile finals. Better at the longer distance, he's recorded a 9:32 two-mile this spring. Barbour's 4:39 mile placed him fourth on Tuesday.

The last double entrant will be West's Jeff Klester who finds himself in the apparently weak shot put and discus fields. Klester placed third in shot with a 44-8 heave and fifth in discus at 103-7 in the South Division finals.

East's Kallal will actually appear three times, adding the 100 dash to his stints on the 880 and mile relay teams. Kallal ran a 10.5 to place fourth (10.4 won) in the North 100 on Tuesday.

Five others were division titlists on Tuesday — two at Glenbrook South. In the North, East's Lloyd Spitzer won the two-mile (9:40.4) and teammate Pat Moyer won the mile (4:24.4).

In the South, West's Greg Klebe triumphed in 2:01.7 over 880 yards and Mark Siksa won long jump competition with a 20-8 leap, a personal best. Ken Meyers won with a 5-10 high jump.

Five other West Warriors will accompany coach Ron Brown over to Niles North. In running events, they are Skahan (third 53.0) in 440-dash; Joe Jobst (fifth 22.8) in 180 low hurdles; and Glen Oland (fifth 4:40.3) in the mile.

Field event entrants include Gregg Gysler (fourth 11-6) in pole vault, and Dave Braun, second behind Siksa (20-2) in long jump.

Maine East's entries include Gary Marshak, third at 3:51, and Bob O'Donnell, fifth at 10:04.8, in the North Division two-mile. Maine North's Bill Pancker was fourth in 9:55.6.

North's Mike Wilson, fifth at 16.2 seconds, will join Leonard and Klippert in 120 high hurdles. North's Bryan Becker (third — 2:05.5) and Jim Balmes (fourth — 2:06.9) will run the 880.

East's Scott Peota (third — 21.2) will join Klippert and Leonard in 180 low hurdles. East's Tim Glanos (second — 4:32) and North's Mike Sharpe (fifth — 4:42.9) will be in the mile.

Remaining local entrants are all from Maine East: John Schmid (fourth — 24.0) in 220-dash; Ken Wolf (third — 43-8) in shot put; Bob Racanelli (second — 129-8) in discus and Brian Monti (sixth — 129-9) in discus. The last are Rocky Reed and Mike Smith who both cleared 6-1 during the North high jump.

Central Suburban preliminaries will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday with finals immediately thereafter.

Harper enters track region

Harper College will enter a very tough field in Saturday's Region meet in Galesburg starting at 10 a.m.

Favored will be Parkland of Champaign, which won a 10-team meet it hosted last Saturday at the University of Illinois. Harper participated in that one and the Hawks' only first place was by Tom Rambo with a 14-foot, 2 1/4-inch pole vault. If he can duplicate that in the Region meet it will be good enough to qualify for the national meet in Houston, Tex. the weekend of May 25-26.

Other Hawks with the best chances of placing in tomorrow's tough competition are Mike DeLaBruere in the two-mile run and Ron Hankel and John Geary in the mile.

Next week Harper will be at home twice, against Triton Tuesday at 4:00 and four other teams (Kishwaukee, Oakton, Lake County and Kennedy-King) Friday at the same time.

Lions' Jarzemsky hurdles to victory

Dave Jarzemsky, St. Victor's fine hurdler, was running into the wind Tuesday but he didn't let that bother him.

Instead, he was one of only two double winners in the eight-team East Division track meet of the Suburban Catholic Conference, winning the 120-yard high hurdles in 15.5 and the 180 lows in 21.3. They were the only firsts for the Lions.

Coach Jim Lyne's squad picked up five other places, four of them fourths. The only second was by John McCabe in the high jump with 6-10. Teammate Tony Gallagher had the same height for fourth but McCabe got the higher place on fewer misses.

Other fourths were by Ralph Bosch twice, with 46 feet, 6 inches in the shot put and 128-4 1/2 in the discus, and by Tom Maher with 10.5 in the 100-yard dash.

Besides the wind, it was a bad day for field events because of rain and muddy turf.

The above Lions will be trying to do as well or better Saturday when 16 teams of both divisions of the conference hold their annual meet at Marmion Military Academy in Aurora. Field events will start at noon with preliminaries following and finals later.

Some of the favorites and boys who were event winners in the East Division meet Tuesday include: Harle of Marist (the only double winner besides Jarzemsky with 10.2 in the 100 and 23.9 in the 220), Carmel's Allen in the long jump (20-7 1/4) and Leccese in the discus (143-11), St. Patrick's Manning in the shot put (49-8 1/4), Kravette in the 440 (51.0), Notre Dame's Tim Riley in the mile (4:32.0) and Lefebvre in the two-mile (10:05.4), Marist's 880-yard relay team (1:33.4) and Holy Cross' mile relay (3:33.3).

Judging from these results, Notre Dame, Marist, St. Patrick and Carmel all have a chance for the team title.

Figures do lie; Lions in split with St. Francis

St. Viator experienced a frustrating day Wednesday at St. Francis de Sales, in the extreme southeast corner of Chicago.

All coach Pat Mahoney's Lions did was outlast the host Pioneers 20-5 in a doubleheader and outscore them 20-6. No way they could have returned with anything less than a clean sweep, right?

Wrong. After walloping de Sales 16-1 in a first-game frolic, Viator suffered a bitter 5-4 extra-inning loss in the second game which surely snuffed out the slim hopes the Lions still had as far as the Suburban Catholic Conference East Division race is concerned.

The split set the Lions' record at 6-4 in the league and 9-5 overall. But the loss was especially galling since St. Viator lost a 3-0 first-inning lead, outlasted St. Francis 4-1 to no avail, and wasted a good pitching performance by Jim "Elmo" Miller, against whom three of five runs were unearned as a result of three Lion errors.

Defense was supposed to be a strong point for the veteran Viator squad, but miscues have hurt in two recent crucial losses (also in another doubleheader split at Holy Cross last Saturday).

One of Wednesday's games was a makeup of an earlier 5-5 standoff in eight innings at the same field in a game in which St. Viator blew a late 5-0 lead. Both games were to have been played at St. Viator, but were switched because the Lions' diamond was still wet from rain early in the week.

Mike Cook starred both on the mound and at the plate in the first game, which was never a contest. The big lefthanded redhead allowed only one hit and the only run against him was unearned. He struck out three and walked two in a five-inning game shortened by the 10-run rule.

As if that weren't enough, Cook also drove in five runs with a two-for-three day. But the leading offensive star was Bob Foster, who was a perfect four for four with four runs scored.

St. Viator led 2-0 after one inning, 6-1 after three and broke the game wide open with a 10-run explosion in the fourth with a succession of singles and walks. Just about every Lion contributed to the rout.

Designated the home team in the second game, St. Viator rapped St. Francis' pitcher fairly hard but stranded a total of 12 baserunners. Twice the Lions loaded the bases without scoring. Jim Bucaro and Tom Chapman led the attack with two hits each.

The Lions jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first and had visions of a repeat of the first-game rout. Stan Bobowski and Bucaro started it with singles, Frank Cliggett doubled them both in, Mark Rickerson singled and Cliggett scored on a delayed double steal on a throw to second.

But the Pioneers were not in a mood to roll over. They picked themselves up with two runs in the second and two in the third, all unearned. The first of two came on an error after a single and hit batsman and the others on two singles, an error and a sacrifice fly.

St. Viator tied it 4-4 in the third when Steve Bobowski walked, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and came in on Rickerson's sacrifice fly.

There was no more scoring until the eighth when de Sales finally scored an earned run on two fielder's choices and two walks forcing in the winner. Viator had the last chance but couldn't come back.

Miller worked all eight innings, allowing four hits and five walks and striking out seven.

St. Viator will begin District tournament action at Forest View at 10:00 Saturday morning against Arlington. Cook will likely draw the important opening assignment with two days' rest. If the Lions win they will take on one of three teams — Rolling Meadows, Forest View or Hersey — for the title Monday at 4:00, with the winner moving on to Regional competition the following week.

SAXON SAILING over the hurdles as part of a shuttle relay team at the Palatine Relays is Mike Jones of Schaumburg. He helped his team finish second in the 400 low hurdles and third in the 320 highs in Class A, with both of those relay events won by LeGrange. He'll be one of many competitors in the Mid-Suburban League meet at Conant this afternoon and evening.

Hawks going for 3rd title

Harper College's tennis team, trying to pick up the pieces from a surprising fourth-place finish at the Region IV meet last weekend, is hoping to regain its winning form this Friday and Saturday.

At stake is the Skyway Conference championship, a title won the previous two years by the Hawks.

The Hawks, who are hosting the tournament, expect to receive their toughest competition from Triton, the only team they've had a lot of trouble beating decisively. The Warriors finished in second place last season.

Playing in the singles spots for Harper will be Paul Stevens, Steve Maresso, Dave Stastny and Jeff Rud. Going at doubles will be Stevens-Maresso, Stastny-Rud and Brian Dillon and Tom Leahy.

At Elk Grove

The Walnuts are second half champions of the Friday Nite Mixed Nuts league at Elk Grove Bowl.

In close-out bowling, Linda Metcalf had the high womens' series and game when she rolled 529-204. Other womens' series-game scores were Jean Davis 470-201, Doris Takeda 455-180, Dolores DeBartoli 451-159, Carol Bachochin 449-166 and Barb Nelson 442-167.

In mens' scoring, Frank Columbo had a 575 for the high series and Gary Thoma 209 for the best game. Columbo rolled a 201 game and Thoma a 569 series.

Other mens' scores were Jim Nelson 532-185, Wally Wagner 495-179, Fred Zielinski 493-178 and Bob Metcalf 488-178.

Bouchee's bat booms two homers

It shouldn't surprise anyone if Chris Bouchee has been eating 100 per cent natural cereal, resplendent with dates, nuts, raisins and other powerful things by Mother Nature.

For on Wednesday afternoon, Bouchee launched a couple rockets off his Louisville Slugger that even he probably couldn't believe.

He was the whole program, homering twice, one a slam, and driving in five runs to pace Maine West over New Trier West, 5-3, in Central Suburban play.

Hitting cleanup, Bouchee came to bat in the first with teammates on all sacks. Roger Blumer had opened with a walk; Jay Liggett reached on an error; and Bill Slapke was hit by a pitch.

Bouchee promptly blasted his first homer, a drive that completely left Duke Childs field and ended up in a sand trap on the Winnetka Park District golf course.

That made it a 4-1 ballgame, New Trier having gotten to Slapke for one run on a hit in the first. Technically, Maine was the home team although the game was played at New Trier.

The score was intact two innings later when Bouchee powered his second homer, a drive to right center that also left Childs field. This one ended up on a diamond being used by New Trier East and Waukegan.

New Trier got to Slapke for single runs in the first, fifth and seventh. He yielded to Liggett in the seventh who came on to strike out the game's final two batters.

Slapke evened his record at 2-2 while striking out seven and walking six.

Abraham, Hannon guide Schaumburg to victory

Schaumburg used the continued batting brilliance of Artie Abraham and pitching of Frank Hannon for a 9-4 victory over visiting Glenbard North in a Mid-Suburban League game Wednesday.

The Saxons of coach Dick Stephens have now won four of their last five after an 0-6 start by an inexperienced team, putting their South Division record at 4-7. They exploded for four first-inning runs, saw their lead cut to one, then pulled away again.

All of Schaumburg's four-run rally in the first started with two outs. Mark Goergan singled, stole second and scored on an error (the first of six by Glenbard). A walk and single by Randy Anderson brought in two more. Rich Kucknia singled and another run scored on a fielder's choice.

Glenbard North had scored in the first on a triple by Brian Campbell following a single by Brian Campbell and made it 4-3 in the third on four consecutive singles. But in the same inning Abraham cleared the bases with his double after a hit by Anderson and two walks.

Schaumburg picked up single runs in the fourth and sixth. The first time, with two outs, Dan Gallagher singled and came all the way around on errors. In the sixth, singles by Abraham and Sam Aiello plus walks to Pete Kowalski and Mark Goergan produced the final tally.

The Saxons will begin District playoff action at Barrington at 1 p.m. Saturday against Thursday's Fremd-Conant winner. The winner of that will be in the championship game at 4:15 Monday against the Barrington-Palatine winner.

Potter, Russo tie; Warriors tip North

Maine West's Jeff Potter and Maine North's Bob Russo tied for medalist honors Wednesday as the Warriors defeated the Norsemen, 168-172, in varsity golf.

Each golfer shot just 39 strokes over the nine holes played at Rob Roy. Other Warrior scorers were Greg Holden 42, Mike Lopata 43, and Glen Dalbke 44.

North's other three scorers were Jim Geishecker 44, Matt Osterholt 44 and Randy Sylvan 45.

The Norsemen are now winless in one dozen matches. West evened its spring record at 7-7 and has now defeated all three of its sister schools in the Maine Township District.

Won-lost breakdowns

Here are some miscellaneous won-lost breakdowns for the Chicago White Sox last season: The Sox were 55-23 at home, 32-44 on the road; 43-31 in day games; 44-36 at night; 65-39 against righthanded pitching, 22-28 against lefties; 6-8 in extra-inning games; 38-20 in one-run games and 15-14 in two-run games.

THE VOLVO 164E BRINGS YOU A SURPRISING NEW OPTION. THE SUN.

Volvo, long famous for its hard top, has finally cut a hole in it. So the sun is now available (for an extra charge) to those who worship it.

To do so, reach up and turn the sunroof's handle. It slides back on metal rails to let in over three square feet of sun.

A wind deflector keeps the sunroof from turning into a wind tunnel. And when the sun goes down our sunroof goes up so that it closes flush with the roof. Surprisingly enough, it's the only factory-installed option you pay extra for.

Come in and see the Volvo 164E. Preferably before sundown.

West's Wild reaches semis in invite Maine West and East failed to produce a champion in singles or doubles play last Saturday in the Glenbrook South tennis invitational which was won by Highland Park.

The best the Herald area could manage was semi-finals appearances by West's Steve Wild in singles plus the Warriors doubles team of John Anderson and Joe Thimm.

Wild was beaten in semis, 6-2 and 6-3, by Skip Gould of Niles North. Thimm and Anderson fell, 6-0 and 6-2, to John Powell and Mike Barr of Highland Park. Powell has been the nation's second ranking player among 18-year olds.

Wild was victorious twice before falling to Gould in semis on the Titans' court. He beat John Lanesman of Evanston, 6-1 and 6-2, then handled Barrington's highly touted Eric Fjortoft, 6-0 and 6-3, in second round championship play.

Anderson and Thimm advanced past the first round by decimating Curt Anstett and Chuck Vogel of Glenbrook South, 6-1 and 6-3. Their second round doubles win, 6-2 and 6-3, came at the expense of Mike Kaur and Dave Richelen of Niles North.

At second doubles, West's Jack Semler and Jeff Trecker advanced into second round championship play by beating Glenbrook's Bill Iverson and Bob Mabley, 6-3 and 6-2.

Once there, however, Semler and Trecker were eliminated, 6-4 and 6-3, by Evanston's Rich Shapiro and Ken Rosenbaum.

West's other singles entrant was Steve Niles who lost, 8-0 and 6-4, to Glenbrook's Dave Snyder in the opening round. In consolation, Niles was eliminated, 7-3 and 6-1, by Eric Frumm of Niles North.

Maine East advanced only Tim Brosnan past first round championship singles play. Brosnan, son of former White Sox pitcher and freelance writer Jim Brosnan, achieved a 6-2, 6-0 victory over Ron Parabuso of Ridgewood.

Young Brosnan was shut out and eliminated by Evanston's Danny Moore in second round championship play.

East's other singles entrant, Ed Pasen, lost his opening match, 6-1 and 6-0, to Fjortoft of Barrington. He was then beaten in consolation by Lanesman of Evanston.

Only East's second doubles unit of Bob Weidner and Dave Mozdren was able to score a point. And that came in consolation.

Weidner and Mozdren opened with a championship round loss, 6-2 and 6-0, to Stu Speyer and Jay Warren of Highland Park.

They retaliated in consolation by defeating Kevin McGowan and Rod Stark of Ridgewood. Weidner and Mozdren were eliminated in consolation by Iverson and Mabley of Glenbrook South.

East's first doubles team, Bill Jensen and Kent Silbert, lost, 6-1 and 6-2, to Bob Wrowo and Bob Pogor of Ridgewood in opening round championship play. In consolation, Jensen and Silbert bowed to Ray Gebets and Bob Neem of Evanston.

Highland Park won its team title at Glenbrook South's invite by totaling 11 points. Following in order were Niles North 6, Evanston 5½, Maine West 5, Glenbrook South 4, Barrington 2½, Maine East 1½ and Ridgewood 1.

On Friday, Niles West defeated Maine West, 3-2, in the makeup of an earlier cancellation. The Warriors' only winners were Wild and Trecker in singles play.

Wild bettered Paul Mishkin, 6-3 and 7-5, at first singles. Trecker prevailed over Steve Rosenberg, 6-3, 5-7 and 7-5, at third singles.

West's Anderson was beaten 6-3 and 6-3 by Steve Rosenberg for his first loss of the year.

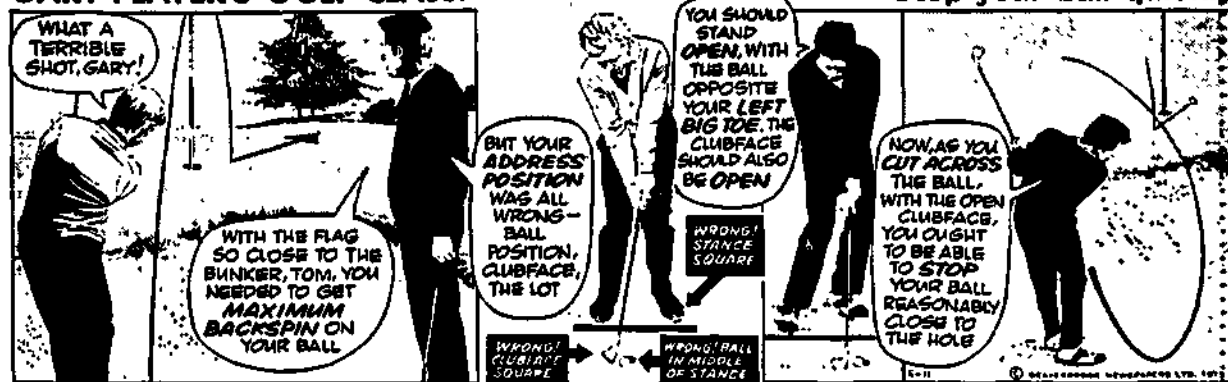

In doubles play, Thimm and Semler lost 6-7, 7-5 and 4-6 to Phil Block and Mike Wolin. At second doubles, Niles and Doug Meister were beaten, 6-0 and 6-2, by Joe Cooper and Ron Lütke.

Niles West's sophomores also prevailed over Maine, 3-2.

Individually, the Warriors new varsity match records are Wild 14-3, Anderson 14-1, Thimm 12-5, Semler 12-4, Meister 7-3, Niles 9-4 and Trecker 8-9.

Central Suburban standings, by team points scored and not meets won, are: Highland Park 33, Deerfield 31, Maine West 26, Glenbrook North 21, Niles East 19, Niles North 18, Niles West 18, Glenbrook South 14, New Trier West 14, Maine South 10, Maine East 10 and Maine North zero.

Harper tennis team registers another easy win

Harper College racked up still another — no-hum — shutout Wednesday at the expense of hosting McHenry, 6-0.

The Hawks, who have blanked Skyway Conference teams five times in six tries this season, gave up just four in their 10-point pro set matches. This was how it went:

Paul Stevens (10-0), Steve Maresso (10-2), Dave Stasny (10-1), Jeff Rud (10-1), Stevens-Tom Leahy (10-0) and Stasny-Rud (10-0).

Ridgewood whips Lion netmen, 4-1

St. Victor continued to have trouble with non-conference opponents as hosting Ridgewood won 4-1 Wednesday.

Jeff Davenport saved face for the Lions with a 6-1, 7-5 victory at third singles.

Absorbing the defeats were these varsity athletes — Tom Wenzel (2-6, 4-6), Mike Revnes (2-6, 4-6), Don Barnak and Jim Bernardini (1-6, 3-6) and Jim Wade and Mike Proffitt (4-6, 5-7).

The frosh-soph team was shutout by the Rebels.

A huff and a puff

Over 2,600 mad pedalists from all over America, Canada and Europe will descend upon Columbus, Ohio, this weekend for the 12th annual Tour of the Scioto River Valley.

The two-day tour, largest in the country, will span 210 miles beginning Saturday from the Ohio state capitol building.

Six mad pedalists from the Herald area will wind through the quiet Ohio backroads. From Arlington Heights are John Kelly and John Kiehn.

Elk Grove residents Wayne and Jean Blount plus Dick and Arden Sorenson will also huff and puff along.

Mini-bike changes

The tremendous explosion in mini-bike sales has prompted the Illinois Secretary of State's office to take a new look at its titling and licensing regulations.

Changes recently finalized will prohibit the licensing of thousands of little like bikes formerly eligible.

Thus, the Illinois Motorcycle Dealers Association has suggested the following minimum standards for registration:

—A wheel rim size of 10 or more inches, wheelbase of 40 or more inches, engine of 45cc or larger and seat height of 25 or more inches.

Any vehicle failing to meet one of these requirements would not be licensed under the IMDA proposal.

See Doug dribble

Millionaire Doug Collins and a whole lot of poorer folk will guest star in a series of classy basketball camps this summer on the Illinois State University campus in Bloomington.

Collins, the ISU All-American and Olympian who recently signed an enormous money pact with the Philadelphia 76ers, will be joined by professionals Jerry Sloan (Chicago Bulls) and Mel Daniels (Indiana Pacers) in the second annual camp sponsored by ISU head coach Will Robinson.

Eleven prep coaches from throughout Illinois plus former Harlem Globetrotter Leon Hillard, will also serve as instructors.

A day camp with instruction three hours per day, four days per week will be held July 2-12 for Bloomington area youth.

Resident camps for boys entering grades four through 12 will be held July 15-21 and 22-28. Boys will reside in campus resident halls.

Cost is $60 for the day camp and $115 for the resident camp. Non-refundable deposits of $30 for the day camp and $45 for the resident camp must accompany application.

For further info, contact Gene Smithson, camp director, at Horton Field House, Normal, Ill., 61761.

From campuses nationwide

—Northwestern University football coach John Pont, who came floating in after the tide took Alex to more fertile waters, will host the annual Wildcat football clinic this Friday and Saturday.

The Illinois High School Football Coaches Association will hold its annual clinic in conjunction with the Wildcat-sponsored affair.

Activities conclude at 2 p.m. Saturday with Northwestern's Purple-White spring game in Dyche Stadium.

—Mount Prospect's Fred Melone continues to have a fine spring for the Northeast Missouri State University varsity tennis team. He has a 16-6 record. Don Martin, also from Mount Prospect, has compiled a 9-7 slate.

—Linda Angeloff of Arlington Heights will compete for Illinois State University in this weekend's national track and field competition at California State College. Her event is shot put.

—Dave Hasbach remains unbeaten on the mound the Miami of Ohio varsity baseball team. The former Palatine athlete is 4-0 with a 1.81 ERA in nearly 60 innings pitched.

—Tom Smith, former St. Viator baseball and football player, is sharing first base duties for the Bemidji State (Minn.) College diamond team this spring. In 10 games, Smith has five hits in 21 at-bats for a .238 average.

—Oakton College's Mike Geldermann has qualified to run the 440-dash in the national junior college finals, May 24-27, in Pasadena, Tex. Geldermann qualified by turning a 48.9 lap as part of Oakton's relay unit.

—Bob Moore of Palatine is a member of the Lake Forest Academy varsity golf team. The Academy is 116 years old and located on a 200-acre campus 30 miles north of Chicago.

Cooper trackmen 2nd in sectional

Cooper Junior High's track teams, led by Scott Campbell and Tom Smith, both placed second in a field of 46 at the state sectional track meet held Saturday at Joliet.

Campbell placed first in both the 50 and 100 yard dashes to lead Cobra scoring in the Class B competition.

Other firsts were won by Paul Venditti in the low hurdles and by the 880 yard medley relay team consisting of Phil Orcutt, Scott Campbell, Mike Williams, and 440 yard star Mark Wilhelm. Wilhelm also placed second in the 440 yard dash.

Cooper's team score of 28 points was excellent, but not good enough to take first place from Minooka, who won the Class B competition with 29 points.

In the Class A competition, Tom Smith led the Cobras with a first in the 50 yard dash and a second in the 100 yard dash.

Other firsts were won by the 440 yard relay team consisting of Smith, Tom Miamilli, Steve Jaske, and Mike Shin (new school record of 49.1) and by Mike Shin in the 120 yard low hurdles. As in the Class B competition, Cooper was again squeezed out of first place by one point, this time by Joliet Gompers.

Come take our new learning system for a free "test flight"

If you've ever wanted to learn to fly, here's how to get off to a flying start.

We're proud to be able to offer aspiring pilots the most advanced and comprehensive total learning system available. We'd like you to come on out and see for yourself how it works.

The heart of our system is the new Piper Instructional Program, an individualized audio-visual program that teaches you flying principles on the ground before you put them into practice in the air.

The system combines movies, animation, slides and sound to help you visualize every lesson. And you can work at your own speed on your own schedule. Periodic self-quizzes check your progress.

See for yourself how this system can work for you; you're invited to come out for a free "test flight."

Please give us a call and set up a date.

$5 Introductory Flight Lesson

You'll pilot the plane along with a government-rated instructor. Includes a "test flight" on the audio-visual system.

World of apple aristocrats

by ELEANOR RIVES

"Jonathan, Delicious, Winesap and I!"

The sales cry of a fruit peddler? A four party orchard rendezvous? A psychiatric study by a Rome Beauty?

None of these. It's the tentative title of a book, very nearly completed, by Marydenise Doak describing the art of apple sculpture. Not "apple craft" but "apple sculpture." There's a difference.

Marydenise's Mount Prospect home at 1845 Boulder, is inhabited by herself and her husband, Donald; their three children, Donald, Jr., 9½, David, 8; and Darin, 8 months; and a host of "Apple Aristocrats," the copyrighted name of her line of apple sculptures.

"THERE'S BEN and Pollyanna and Armand and Jacques, all four to six inches high, including their aristocratic onyx bases. There's Sissy, Miss Ivy, Granny and Maisie, mini-aristocrats only two and one half to three inches high. And a crowd of others. Some under glass bubbles. Some in frames hanging on the wall.

They smile, they frown, they chuckle, they guffaw. Not out loud, of course. They're haughty, they're humble, they're proud, they're demure. They prech, they plead, they chuckle. Silently. In short, they are a Dickens-flavored, caricature slice of life. An apple slice.

Marydenise's apples are outstanding for several reasons. For one thing, she carves the desired features in the raw apple; she doesn't pinch or mold them as the apple dries. Drying is not for the purpose of creating features, but simply to dehydrate the apple so that it may be permanently preserved.

MARYDENISE incorporates the peel and even the stem into her finished heads. The peel becomes a hat, a hood, a collar, a ruff, according to her artistic whim and the character she is creating. She carves teeth in the original raw apple and later paints them white. In the large heads, the eyes are gunshot; in the minis, they are beads.

Her method of preserving the apple once it has dried is a secret — a special lacquering formula given to her by a family friend. So effective, it is almost impossible to tell that the glossy beige faces with their brown peel hats are not ceramic pieces.

She may add leather to LeGree, a brooch to Molly, spectacles to Ben or.

Granny, a wisp of mink collar to Maisie.

SOMETIMES Mrs. Doak models the head after an actual person; sometimes she works from a photograph. Once a couple of her neighbors commissioned her to do applehead likenesses of their husbands. Occasionally she may carve a face and then decide who it will be.

Marydenise began doing apple sculpture shortly after she moved to Mount Prospect in 1970. She exhibited her heads for the first time at the annual "Gallery in the Forest" art fair in Lisle, and to her delight sold a few at about $20 apiece. But the biggest thrill occurred when Simon Kopp, a well known Milwaukee metal sculptor, asked if she would consider exchanging one of her sculptures for one of his.

Would she? Wow!

ENCOURAGEMENT such as this gave her the confidence to copyright the name, "Apple Aristocrats," and place her whimsical heads in a few department stores, including downtown Carson's, where they sold for about $40 each.

"But it really wasn't what I wanted," she said. "Too few people could afford them at that price. I strongly believe that art should be available to all people and not just to an affluent few."

Another direction she did not want to go, and for which she was being pressured, was to hire a staff and mass produce the heads for interested national chains.

"That would defeat the whole purpose," she said. "The quality of the heads, the originality of ideas would be diminished by mass production. Apple Aristocrats will always remain a small time operation."

AS A SMALL time operation, with no two heads ever alike, with each one named and registered and the name never used again, with each finished sculpture dated and signed on a brass signature plate, the possibility of Marydenise originals becoming collector's items is very good indeed. She has already located a 1971 head in a Columbus, Ohio antique shop selling for $88.50. She had originally sold it for $25.

Mrs. Doak's apple sculpture has led her into unforeseen bypaths — lectures and demonstrations for private clubs and organizations. She has turned down requests to teach apple sculpture simply because she hasn't the time. With three children, one of them still a baby, she has had to limit her speaking engagements to areas within an hour's drive. She accepts a few dates a week, certain afternoons and most evenings when her husband is home to look after the children.

IF YOU ARE not fortunate enough to see Marydenise in action, to hear her program, or to own one of her apple sculptures, she suggests you experiment with creating one of these clever characters yourself. She lists the following six steps (but the lacquer formula remains her own):

1. Peel and carve a large red or yellow apple. (Time: 20 to 30 minutes)

2. Dip apple in lemon juice to retard browning.

3. Hang it in a dry place for 3 to 4 weeks.

4. When completely dry, apply any necessary paint for teeth, lips, etc.

5. When paint is completely dry, apply a hard lacquer to permanently preserve the sculpture.

6. After about two more weeks, apple head may be mounted.

Now stand back and admire your work. Perhaps you, too, will find yourself muttering, "Jonathan, Delicious, Winesap and I."

IN THE SHADE of her apple peel hat, Old Anne nods drowsily from her shadow box on the Doak's living room wall. A typical Dickens-type character, she is displayed against an avocado velvet background.

SOME OF HER best friends are apples, and why not? She sculpted them, dried them, painted them and finished them with a secret formula lacquer that produces a ceramic-like glaze and preserves them indefinitely. In Marydenise Doak's hands, apple sculpture is a true art.

APPLE ARISTOCRATS leer, glare, chuckle and grin — silently — each with a name and expression all its own, never to be exactly duplicated. These heads, signed and dated, are mounted on onyx bases. Note Marydenise's ingenious use of apple peel and stem in each sculpture.

WHAT'S UP, Jacques? From his character amuses many a guest as he shadow box on the wall, this apple watches life unfold before him.

'The Legend of Boggy Creek'

Hairy Monster, subject of film

Experiences of the people who live in and around Fouke, Ark. (pop. 350) with a "huge, hairy monster," is the subject of a feature-length documentary film entitled "The Legend of Boggy Creek." It opens today at Elk Grove, Golf Mill Theatre and Mount Prospect Cinema.

Over the past decade "The Fouke Monster" has periodically terrorized people in the small farming and ranching community in southwest Arkansas near Texarkana.

On several occasions nation-wide publicity has focused on the appearance of the creature, described by eye-witnesses as nearly seven feet tall and weighing an estimated 250 pounds, smelling like a "pigpen" and able to walk upright and run on two legs.

THE CREATURE supposedly emits terrifying, earth-shattering screams and its eyes are reported to shine bright red in the glare of lights.

Scores of attempts to track down the "monster" have been thwarted because of its elusive habits and apparent high level of intelligence. It seldom emerges from the thickly wooded forest and swampland of the Sulphur River bottoms and only then under the cover of night.

Traps and other schemes to capture the monster have met without success.

"It would take at least 10,000 men to encircle and sweep the woods to capture him," said film producer-director Charles B. Pierce.

Pierce and screenwriter Earl E. Smith spent months prowling the bottomland around Fouke, accompanied by trackers and at times even animal behavior experts.

A PROFILE WAS built up from the evidence gathered and from extensive interviews with Fouke residents who have seen or heard the creature. The composite picture of the monster that subsequently emerged, is the subject of "The Legend of Boggy Creek" rated G.

The technical film features mostly local people from the Fouke area portraying themselves in re-enactments of scenes where they actually faced the creature.

The monster apparently has a strange fascination with people and periodically shows up in someone's yard, or howls in anger or lonely frustration in the vast, wooded areas of the Fouke countryside.

Man or animal, monster or myth, something is still down there.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

Early this spring, I visited in Kentucky and had a real respite from winter by filling my eyes with the sights of mountain laurel, pink dogwood and redbud in full bloom, and my ears with the almost-forgotten sound of mockingbird song. While we visited in the hillside town of London, Ky., our hostess called her friend, Marguerite, to see if we could come see her home, "a log cabin they built with their own hands," as it was described to us.

Marguerite was agreeable, and so we drove over to a little glen just off the main highway and stepped back into time 175 years the minute we entered the gate.

Marguerite and her husband, a local radio announcer, built the log cabin, which rambles on through several rooms and has a second floor, with their own hands, just like the pioneers. They used old and native materials whenever possible by scouring the countryside for old falcon cabins which were in disuse and by hauling chimney stones and hand-hewn massive beams to their site. Over the front stoop reads the legend "1794 Log Cabin" and they have recreated that year very faithfully.

THE DOORWAYS are low. One must duck to pass through, since research of old cabins showed doorways to be only about 5 feet 6. (People were shorter then.) Although fitted with modern appliances and plumbing, the restoration is so skillful that one is surprised to see there really are electricity and a dishwasher.

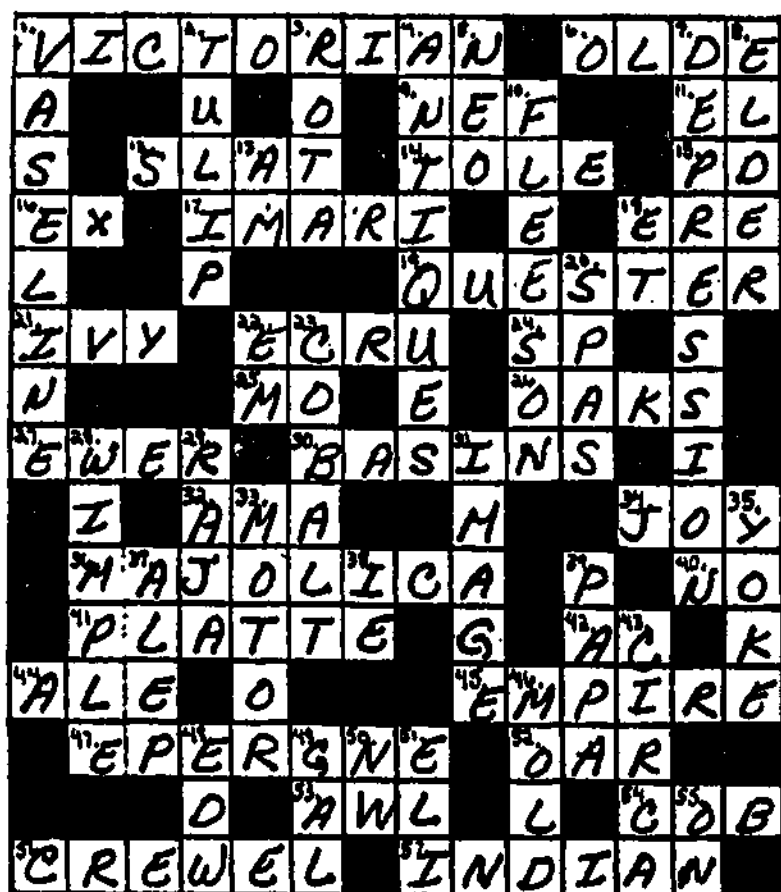

Lintel beams and fireplaces hold rows of picture-perfect canning jars filled with fruits and vegetables put up by Marguerite, many bearing proud first prize ribbons from the county fair. She is a woman of two worlds — an urbane sophisticated dressed in latest palazzo pants with glossy black hair drawn back in a heavy bun, looking like a fashion plate, and on the other hand, a friendly, "Y'all come back" native Kentuckian. Her favorite menu served to guests is "Soup beans (pinto beans) and cornbread and you should see those Yankees dig in!"

THE LOG CABIN is furnished with authentic antiques from the early 1800s, trunks, chairs, cannonball bedsteads and a collectible made of a hand-sawed 300-year-old door. Since this area of Kentucky was largely settled by Swiss immigrants, cheese making was a big thing in the early days, and Marguerite has many "cheese tables," which are large hollowed out trunks of pine, looking something like a large dough mixing bowl. She has another small cabin at the rear of the property, used for an antiques shop, and has customers coming regularly from all over the country, including Arlington Heights and other Chicago-area suburbs.

We had a delightful visit in the 1794 Cabin, almost forgetting the year 1973. When we emerged back onto the highway, we were confronted by a huge neon sign announcing "The original home of Kentucky Colonel Fried Chicken — this is where it all began!" Daniel Boone might not appreciate the traffic and the neon, but he surely would feel at home in Marguerite's cabin.

How did you do on the Quaker's crossword puzzle? Answer is printed below. Don't feel too bad — I didn't get them all, either. If you have questions, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Paddock Publications, Suburban Living, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

The Book Stall

EDWARD HEATH: PRIME MINISTER.
by MARGARET LAING
The Third Press, $10

This is the most readable biography of the British leader to date. It says rather little about his politics and policies but comes on strong on his character and personality. It has one bit of political news.

It seems that Heath was so convinced he would lose the general election that made him prime minister that he had — before the voting — scheduled a meeting with friends to decide on a new career for him. He figured his political career was over. An upset victory over Harold Wilson undid that and gave Britain one of its most unusual leaders.

Heath is a bachelor. Miss Laing discusses this, including unsavory rumors, a politician with no backslapping friends, a Tory leader sprung from the working class, a sailing champion, a man respected by his countrymen for being that rare prime minister who does what he promises. He is understood, probably, by no one, admittedly not even by this bestselling biographer. This book does not place Heath in history but it is the best available guide to the man who has put Britain into Europe.

Richard H. Grawald (UPI)

"POLITICAL PRISONERS IN AMERICA."
BY CHARLES GOODALL
Random House, $8.95

The former New York senator who filled the seat vacated by the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy makes a good case, as befits a good lawyer, for the existence of an American tradition of political trials, going back to John Peter Zenger and Goodall says, true today in cases such as the Berrigans and Dr. Spock.

"DOROTHY THOMPSON: A LEGEND IN HER TIME."
BY MARION K. SANDERS
Houghton-Mifflin, $10

Dorothy Thompson was a study in paradox — an internationally sophisticated journalist who never lost her hard-core Americanism, and a "liberated" woman whose relationship with her second husband, Sinclair Lewis, would make a feminist cringe. Her story is warmly, compassionately told.

"LOVE OF EARTH."
BY HERBERT E. FRENCH
Putnam, $6.95

French really does love the 30 per cent of our planet that is dry land he covered the wet parts in his earlier Of Rivers and The Sea and he writes engagingly and sometimes provocatively about what we have — and how we use it.

"THE COWBOYS."
BY BILL FORBIS AND THE EDITORS OF TIME-LIFE BOOKS
Time-Life, Little, Brown, $9.95

The authors used straightforward, informative prose to unveil "the real face of the American cowboy" in an imitation leather-covered book that makes a good gift perhaps even to yourself for Wild West addicts.

Future happenings on television

NEW YORK (UPI) —Sammy Davis Jr. has signed a long-term pact with NBC-TV, giving the network exclusive use of his talents in all major television appearances beginning with the 1973-74 season. He will be a frequent guest on the new "NBC Folios" series in the fall.

Jackie Gleason will be back with some one-hour specials on CBS next season. One show is definite, date not set, and the comedian hopes to do several others of varied types at irregular intervals.

ABC's "Make a Wish" children's series on Sunday forenoon will return for a third season next fall.

A HOWCO INTERNATIONAL PICTURES RELEASE

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

A nice, warm album is "Diamond Girl" (Warner Bros. BS-2890) by Seals and Crofts. It is the duo's first since their successful "Summer Breeze" album.

The album suffers mainly from its lack of another song like "Summer Breeze." Only one of the new songs is at all outstanding and that is because of its all-aroundness. What makes "Nine Houses" the best new song is its intriguing Mideastern melodies.

Yet, taken as a whole, the album does not disappoint. Simple songs such as "Ruby Jean and Billie Lee," written for their wives, and James Seals' 1964 rocker "Standin' On a Mountain Top" are good in an unspectacular way.

In addition to their pleasing harmonicas, Dush Crofts' mandolin playing remains an important part of their appeal. Second-rate Seals and Crofts, such as this, remains better than most of what's being heard today.

Heads Hands & Feet's "Old Soldiers Never Die" (ATCO SD-7025) has in its first two songs the best one-two punch I've heard in some time.

The songs, "Jack of All Trades" and "Meal Ticket," lead one swiftly into this very fine album. "Jack" quickly picks up its pace from an almost spoken beginning with a burst of strings and sharply traded lead vocals. Soon it glides into "Meal Ticket," an organ and drum dominated piece of boogie.

At least seven of the songs in this album are near perfect. The music is well played, led by Albert Lee's guitar. Most of the writing is handled excellently by Tony Colton and Ray Smith, with help from the other three band members here and there.

ANOTHER OF the group's strengths lies in its diversity of sound and style. They appear to have borrowed liberally but go beyond mere borrowing. The Band's sound appears in the humorous "Just Another Ambush" and "Soft Word Sunday Morning" could easily fit on any Procol Harum album. "One Woman" is a furious piece of boogie that opens side two. There's some country sounds too, like in "Taking My Music To The Man."

The band's been together for four years now and you can hear it — they have enough polish to handle the different styles well. The album should belong in "year's best" lists all over.

Old pro Tony Bennett takes to the Auditorium Theatre stage tonight and tomorrow and for those who can't make it there is "Listen Easy" (MGM/Verve MIV-5094).

This is his best album in some time. Like Frank Sinatra, Bennett has always had perfect timing and phrasing. But recently the songs selected for him haven't been so good. That's changed here — whether it is a Cole Porter tune like "I Concentrate On You" or Burt Bacharach-Hal David's "If I could Go Back." "Tell Her It's Snowing" is another fine song, despite its six-plus-minute length.

THE ARRANGMENTS are by Don Costa in this collection of easy listening.

It has been some time, but the Beatles now have two albums in the Top Ten once again. The albums are the two double anthologies released by Apple Records, "1967-1970" (SKBO-3404) and "1962-1966" (SKBO-3403).

Most Beatles fans will already have all these songs on the original albums. Yet there apparently has been a whole new generation of listeners who have grown up never knowing the Beatles when they were still touring together. Why else the strong sales? It certainly makes one fully realize the slightly over 10 years that have passed since the Beatles first arrived in America.

The first album takes one from "Love Me Do" to "Yellow Submarine," while the second goes from "Strawberry Fields Forever" to "The Long and Winding Road" (Which I always felt should have been the last song on their last album).

IT'S NICE to hear these songs again but I liked all the others they left out too. Guess I'll go put them on the turntable.

Entr'acte

With the various other technicalities involved in producing an exotic Japanese drama set in a simulated rain forest, Village Theatre has the added burden of staging a violent samurai sword fight.

Fortunately Raoul Johnson, a theater director who has appeared before in "Rashomon," has volunteered to coach the combatants, Gene Kaczor and Hank deGroot. In the fine art of sword interplay, he even found the swords.

"They're coming along quite well," announced Betty deGroot, real-life wife of the "bandit." "The only problem is, Hank likes to practice in the kitchen and we've come awfully close to serving flaming sword dinners."

However the practice will soon be moving to the stage when "Rashomon" opens at Hersey High School tomorrow night.

TOBI STAR ABRAMS' paintings, drawings and graphics entitled "Life," are on view through May at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton.

The artist has recently exhibited at the Arlington Theatre, The Mount Prospect Library, Countryside Art Center and the Wheeling Public Library. Her work is also currently on display at the Wheeling Village Hall, 251 W. Dundee Road.

Mrs. Abrams is a member of the Wheeling Art League, Mount Prospect Art League and Countryside Art Center.

Pottery, nature sculpture and collector items will be for sale in a special spring backyard selling in Prospect Heights today and tomorrow.

ORIGINAL TERRA cotta and glazed pots by Marilyn Rix will be available along with nature sculpture by Kent Burgess at 104 Kenilworth.

Across the way Joanne Kuhns will have hanging lamps, furniture, and many patio antiques for sale at 9 N. Parkway. The sale will begin at 11 a.m. each day and continue until dusk.

Auditions for two Pinter comedies will be held Monday and Tuesday between 7 and 9 p.m. at the Fox Trails Theatre Company, 9008 Cary Road on the second floor of the ski chalet.

Fox Trails Theatre Company is a non-profit theater corporation which will present three plays this summer.

Further information is available through director June Pyskacek, 639-3866.

HARPER STUDIO PLAYERS' production of "The Crucible" by Arthur Miller, opens tonight in Room E106 of Harper College. Included in the cast are Glenn Markgraf, Marney

Whitney and Karen Flaxman. There is no admission charge to the drama that will be staged again tomorrow evening.

Sunday at Harper College

Pleased fairgoers ignore weather

Gusty May winds and the continual threat of rain did not dampen community spirits at the professional art exhibit and open market that took place simultaneously at Harper College Sunday.

Over 700 persons turned out to view the fine art exhibited in the fieldhouse and browse through the various crafts, antiques and garage sale items that made up the open market held outside in the parking lot.

One local resident drove up, unloaded all his "antique treasures" and proceeded to stick a for sale sign on his old car.

Other persons did so well with their homemade creations and castoffs that they returned home to gather up more items.

"WE ESTIMATE that there were probably between 75 and 80 exhibits in the open market," said Hope Spruance, student activities adviser at Harper. "Considering the weather and everything, we were really pleased with the turnout and definitely the Harper open market will become an annual event."

While merchandise was changing hands outside, artists exhibiting in the enclosed protected area of the fieldhouse, were competing for cash prizes and purchase awards totalling more than $500.

Assistant art professor at Harper College, Jack Tippens, organized the show and invited Arthur R. Blumenthal, curator of the Elvehjem Art Center at the University of Wisconsin to be the juror.

Kelth Peterson of Rolling Meadows was awarded best of show with a $250 cash prize for his colored pencil drawing, "Pandora's Box." He also received a $50 purchase award for the same drawing.

A $75 purchase award went to Jill Bohannon of Mount Prospect for an oil painting, Sally Jackson of Wheeling received $35 for her colored etching entitled "Memory" and Arlene Boude of Rockford received a $30 purchase award for her oil on bristol paper, "Elements."

Also purchased were "Eat It All," an air brush drawing by Vince Sebastian of Mount Prospect, a mixed media drawing by Tom Cvikota of Rolling Meadows and a photograph by Tom Rizzo of Niles.

The open market and art exhibit were a part of the Fine Arts Festival being hosted by the community college during May.

Harper to host Duke Ellington

Duke Ellington, composer, arranger, pianist and bandleader, will perform Tuesday at Harper College. He will do many of his familiar numbers such as "Satin Doll" and "A Train."

Known originally for his jazz, Ellington's range of composition includes movie and television scores, operettas and ballet music.

In addition to familiar favorites, Ellington's concerts have included more transcendent modern improvisations such as "File," "Black and Tan Fantasy," and an experimental version of "Harlem" which is sometimes tribal and racy and other times dissonant and melancholy.

Ellington has received honors from Invite artists to exhibit

Local artists are invited to exhibit their works in two art fairs taking place this summer in Mount Prospect.

Mount Prospect Plaza's 11th annual Art Fair is being held June 2 and 3 at the Plaza, Rand and Central Roads.

An Art and Craft Festival is being held July 21 and 22 at the Golf Shopping Plaza located at Golf and Busse Roads.

To date 45 artists have already reserved space for the art fair at Mount Prospect Plaza. Applications for space are on a first-come, first serve basis. While the majority of artists are from Chicago and suburban areas, a few artists are coming from Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

An extensive selection of media will be represented including oils, watercolors, acrylics, pastels, sculpture and various crafts.

JUDGING WILL take place on Saturday with awards being presented on Sunday. All works will be for sale.

Artists wishing to display their work should contact Mrs. Adele Jeschke at 1058 Mount Prospect Plaza, Mount Prospect, 60056. Phone 255-0644 or 543-3529. Deadline for entry is Friday, May 25.

The Art Festival at Golf Shopping Plaza is being sponsored by the American Society of Artists, a national membership organization. Additional information and entry forms are available through the American Society of Artists, 737 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, 60611. Phone, 751-2500.

Annual spring concert by YMCA Choralettes

The Northwest Choralettes will present their seventh annual spring concert, "I Believe in Music" next Saturday, May 19, 8 p.m., at the Mount Prospect Country Club and again on Sunday, May 20, 3 p.m., at Mount Prospect Community Presbyterian Church.

The Choralettes, a 45-voice women's choral group from the Northwest Suburban YMCA, feature guitars, string bass, drums, and other rhythm instruments in their concerts. Their repertoire includes both secular and sacred, contemporary and traditional numbers.

Highlighting the concerts next week will be the Mac Davis theme song, "I Believe in Music," a barbershop arrangement of "I'd Like to Teach the World to Sing," "Day By Day" from the rock musical "Godspell," and the traditional Jewish "Hava Nagila."

Adding humor to the program will be the Choralette's free swinging version of "Joy to the World" and a musical melodrama, "Hang on the Bell, Nellie!"

Featured soloists and instrumentalists are Doris Lessick, Jo Sella, Dixie Kurtz, Gloria Strauss, and Erika Seitz, all of Arlington Heights. Also Colleen Crombie of Rolling Meadows; Jean Neubauer, Mary Jane Robertson, Doris Van Schaick, and Sue Fackboner of Mount Prospect; and Ann Janis of Lake Zurich.

Tickets, $1, are available at the YMCA, 300 E. Northwest Highway, Des Plaines, or from any member of the Choralettes.

Director of the choral group is Pat Ferguson of Des Plaines. Accompanist is Harriet Diekhoff of Mount Prospect and narrator is Virginia Lee Schwab of Barrington.

MEMBERSHIP IS open to all women who like to sing. The Choralette roster includes women from Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Park Ridge, Barrington, Lake Zurich, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Schaumburg.

WITH HUSBAND (Gene Kaczor) looking on, Bandit (Hank deGroh) pleads with the Wife (Kathleen Ramker) to run away with him. The scene is from "Rashomon," a drama opening tomorrow night at Hershey High School by Village Theatre. Additional performances are May 18 and 19. Tickets, 259-3200.

Night out

Take steps to reopen Tralee's Vale Theatre

by GENIE CAMPBELL

After a hiatus of two years, the VALE THEATRE, at the old TRALEE FARM on Route 25 in Barrington Hills, will reopen this summer. In previous years, the intimate theater carved out of an old barn on the Tralee Farm served up a menu of light, summertime entertainment.

J. J. BUTLER, who designed the original Vale Theatre and produced shows there for three years, has again been contracted to restore the theater and reopen its doors to summer stock productions.

In addition to the theater, the entire Tralee Farm, including the restaurant, is ful on Wells Street that Producer Bernard Sahlin has decided to open a touring version of the show in Toronto, Canada. The opening is set for June 11.

"Tippicane" opened at Second City's theater at 1616 N. Wells in January of this year. Still playing full houses after nearly five months, the revue is a hodgepodge of the best material presented at Second City during the past three years. It is something to see, particularly if one has not been to Second City before.

Vocalist NICK NOBLE will be featured in the TOP OF THE TOWERS of the ARLINGTON PARK TOWERS HOTEL Tuesday through June 2.

The EVANS BROTHERS, including FRANK, GARY, DALE and RON are currently entertaining in the SHERATON INN-WALDEN'S SOLE MATES' LOUNGE. Musical variety ranges from contemporary styles to show tunes and old standards. The weekend 10 o'clock shows are special — MC'd with "Ding-a-Ling" comedy. All the fellows double in something: trombone, bass, guitar, organ, piano, flute or drums.

The Sheraton Inn-Walden is located at 1723 Algonquin Road in Schaumburg.

Kim Martell

undergoing a face lifting and restoration in order to further feature its colonial atmosphere.

The restaurant is currently in operation under new management and the theater is expected to reopen late May or early June.

Flowers, strolling violinists, and a lobby harp concert will greet mothers dining out this Sunday at the HYATT HEGENCY O'HARE HOTEL. Mother can have her pick of eating spots including the gourmet restaurant, HUGO'S; Hyatt's revolving rooftop lounge, the POLARIS; and the indoor sidewalk cafe, the GARDEN TERRACE.

Mother's Day buffet will again be held in the grand ballroom of the CHICAGO MARRIOTT. Seatings for the buffet are at noon, 1, 3, and 5 p.m. Prime roast of beef, baked ham and roast leg of lamb will be featured.

MILL RUN THEATRE is presenting KIM MARTELL in concert for a special one-night engagement this Tuesday.

A combination of songs and comedy is arriving at the theater-in-the-round Thursday with the dual appearance of JOEL GREY and JOAN RIVERS.

Grey's portrayal of a sardonic master of ceremonies won him the Academy Award Oscar and Broadway's Tony Award as best supporting actor in the film and stage versions of "Cabaret."

Joan Rivers and Joel Grey will appear in tandem through Sunday, May 20.

Students win art awards in national competition

Over 30 area high school students won awards or honorable mentions in the National Scholastic Art Contest recently held in New York.

The 464 art entries which received gold medals and special commendation, as well as the top 20 pieces of photography, will make up the National Exhibition to be held in the Union Carbide Exhibition Hall in New York, June 12-28.

Local students who entered the national competition were screened in a regional show sponsored by Wieboldt's in Randhurst.

Mary Orchell of Schaumburg High School received an honor award in photography.

Michael Sarich of Rolling Meadows High School and Marilyn Winka of Wheeling High School received art scholarships.

CASH AWARDS went to William Helmenan and Thomas Sorensen, both of Rolling Meadows High School.

Art guild fair in Des Plaines

Des Plaines Art Guild will hold its annual Spring Art Fair Sunday, May 20, at the DeVille Annex, 1285 Lee St. in Des Plaines.

Exhibitors are limited to members of the Des Plaines Art Guild and Des Plaines Park District arts and crafts classes, but the show is open to the general public for viewing, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Guild exhibits will be judged and ribbons awarded in three categories: oils, watercolors and other media. Sculpture, ceramics and various three dimensional art forms will be judged in the "other media" classification.

Kermit Lindberg, chairman of the art department of Maine North High School, and a member of his teaching staff will judge the show.

The Spring Art Fair was organized by members of Des Plaines Art Guild Milvi Wheeler and Dottie Roel, in cooperation with Arthur Hansen, owner-manager of DeVille Motor Inn and DeVille Annex.

DPTG stages 'verbal' draw

"The Owl and the Pussycat," a comedy of contemporary morals and manners that turns into a delightful battle of the sexes, is being staged by Des Plaines Theatre Guild as its last production of the season. Tonight is opening night.

The cast consists of two. Catherine Pasowicz of Chicago plays a model. Tom Wagner of Elk Grove is an aspiring young writer. The two would never have met if he hadn't been watching her through high-powered binoculars and reported his observations to her landlord which results in her eviction.

She finds out who is responsible and late one night descends upon him to vent her wrath. A verbal battle ensues between two people with diametrically opposed views of life.

THE SHOW IS being directed by Ken MacCowan of Glenview who has directed several other productions for DPTG including "Boys in the Band," "Wait Until Dark," and "The Odd Couple."

In addition to tonight's performance, "The Owl and the Pussycat" will be staged tomorrow and again May 18, 19, 25 and 26. The Guild Playhouse is located at 820 Lee St. in Des Plaines. Curtain time for all performances is 8:30 p.m.

Three-in-one concert at Harper

A concert at Harper College Monday by the Harper Community Orchestra, Concert Choir and Camerata Singers will feature professional violinist Charles Mikulski.

He will present the first movement of the "Paganini Violin Concerto in D" on the amplified violin.

Having performed with the Indianapolis Symphony, Mikulski was also first violinist with the Houston Symphony.

under Andre Previn and Sir John Barbirolli.

The concert is one in a series of Fine Arts Festival events taking place this month on the Harper campus in Palatine. There is no admission charge to the program which begins at 8 p.m. in the college center.

HARPER MUSIC professor Dr. George Makas, will direct the Harper Community Orchestra in "The Overture to La Roi D'Ys" by Lalo and the "1812 Overture" by Tchaikovsky.

The Concert Choir, under the direction of music instructor Jerry Davidson, will perform a cantata "Babylon" by Darius Milhaud. Other selections will be works by William Billings, David Robertson and Stephen Foster.

A program of madrigals from the English Renaissance will be presented by the Camerata Singers. Highlighted will be works by Morley, Wilbye and Weelkes.

Part-time faculty member Willard E. Thomen Jr. will be directing the singers. Thomen is choir director for the Southminster United Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights.

Another Festival concert by Harper musicians will be performed Monday, May 21, by the Harper Concert Band, Jazz Band and Concert Choir.

Youth Symphony performs May 20

The Northwest Suburban Youth Symphony Orchestra will present its last concert of the season Sunday, May 20, 4 p.m., at Rolling Meadows High School.

The orchestra, which consists of 76 children and teenagers and includes second graders to high school freshmen, will be performing works by Brahms, Haydn, Handel and Riegger.

Dr. Russell Harvey is the conductor of the Youth Orchestra as well as the Chicago Sinfonia, a professional orchestra, and the DuPage Orchestra.

Guest soloist for the concert is Mary Jo Green, harpist for the Lyric Opera Orchestra and Grant Park Symphony. Tickets will be available at the door.

Greenerfields offers women 'mind-stretching' classes

For those who can spend half a day per week this summer on some "mind-stretching" experience, now is the time to register for a course at Greenerfields Unlimited, the continuing education center for women, 318 Happ Road, Northfield.

The four, six-week courses being offered are "Dialogue with Two Artists," conducted by Ron and Susan Dirsmith, beginning June 25, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.; "Transactional Analysis," led by Muriel Adler, beginning June 25, from 1 to 3 p.m.; and "The Female in Fiction," instructed by Thalia Selz, starting June 25, from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

The fourth course, "Advanced Gestalt," has been filled.

The Dirsmiths will explore the arts, ranging through anthropology, philosophy, architecture and the creative arts. Class fee is $30.

MURIEL ADLER, a registered psychologist, will help each student understand why she feels and behaves a certain way and how this affects her relationships with others. Class is limited to 20; fee is $40.

Thalia Selz will examine prevailing attitudes toward women in literature, including such stereotypes as the "saintly prostitute," "wife and mother," and the "lively widow." Class fee is $30.

Informational brochures and registration information are available at the school office, telephone 446-0523.

Community concert members to vote on new officers

Members of the Arlington Heights Community Concert Association will meet June 4 to elect new officers and directors. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Arlington Heights First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 25 E. Campbell St.

Nominated for two-year terms are Donald L. Everhart, president; Mrs. Marvin S. Brand, recording secretary; Mrs. Francois N. Palmatier, corresponding secretary; Mrs. William E. Bally, publicity chairman and Mrs. Karl H. Stedentop, assistant publicity chairman.

Officers serving the second year of their two year term are Mrs. Alroy F. Aschoff, first vice president; Mrs. Donald L. Everhart, second vice president; Mrs. Harold B. Wenzel, treasurer; Mrs. Arthur H. Franzen, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Charles A. Opela, concert chairman; and Mrs. Phyllis Locker, assistant concert chairman.

NOMINATED AS new directors for a one year term are Parker Calahan, Mrs. Helmer Harg, Mrs. James Edy, Frank Schiel and Joseph Weatherby.

Directors nominated for a second consecutive term are Mrs. Oliver Auer, Mrs. George F. Bochum, Mrs. Kenneth M. Brown, Mrs. Kenneth Holste, Mrs. Donald A. Jensen Sr., Dr. George Makas, Mrs. Wesley Neave, Boyd White and Dr. James Young.

Officers for two student directors have been added to the board. Nominated for these offices are Barbara Raitt a student at Harper College and Kim Larsen, a student at Arlington Heights High School.

JANET ZAKER of Arlington High School looks at an acrylic painting by a fellow student at Arlington, Brian Wright. The acrylic, to the right of Brian's is by Janet. Artwork by high school students attending District 214 schools is on exhibit through today at Countryside Art Center in Arlington Heights. Sunday, an exhibit by students in District 211 will open and be hung until June. A reception to meet the young artists is being held Sunday at the gallery, 2-5 p.m.

Ballet patrons see ethnic dances

Two Virginia Davran professional ethnic dancers presented a program of Near Eastern classical dance for members of the Barrington Associates of Mid America Ballet at their recent spring luncheon.

An historical background was presented before each dance by dancers Sharif and Fantasia who explained and demonstrated the intricate movements significant to the Near East.

Anyone interested in ballet and associated dance forms are invited to attend the social functions or become a member of the Mid American Ballet - Barrington Associates.

Future events include a June 8th House Walk and Progressive Dinner to be held in Chicago and the annual Barrington Summer Benefit to be held June 30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wahlborg in Barrington.

New board members that were introduced at the luncheon by president Mrs. Ralph Gilbert, are Mrs. Edward J. Baehlich, Mrs. Daniel P. Filson, Mrs. William Woolway, and Mrs. Alex Rago, all of Barrington. Also, Mrs. William B. Beckwith and Mrs. Charles S. Halasz of Palatine.

Further information about the organization is available through 381-5777 in Barrington or 358-6351 in Palatine.

Dear Dorothy: I tried your lemon pie recipe and was disappointed because it turned out to be a chiffon type of pie. As you might surmise, I'm not that experienced at reading recipes and figuring out what will develop. But next time how about mentioning that a pie is a chiffon type, if it is? Please. —R. B. Medley

You threw me on this one. Went to favorite cookbooks promptly to see what category my recipe would come under. Almost similar recipes — for butterscotch, chocolate and so forth, which I would definitely call chiffon type — are listed as pie recipes, unless there is also gelatin included. I'll try to remember to say chiffon type for the novices like you, but remember that the average cookbook will be of no help.

Dear Dorothy: My 2-year-old daughter likes to wear corrective shoes. As only one pair is prescribed at a time, she wears them for dress and play. Naturally, they get very scuffed; regular polish doesn't help.

I got a bottle of instant white shoe coloring and conditioner. Barely use the conditioner to take the old polish off, then apply several coats of the shoe coloring, mainly on the tips, allowing each coat to dry before applying another. Buffed with a soft cloth, they are like new and good for weeks with an occasional polish job in between. —Mrs. Walter Terrell

Dear Dorothy: What can I use to get baked-on safflower oil from my glass bread pan? —Dorothy Vorse

For regular pans, No. 3 steel wool and the pumice soap will do the job, but for glass you'd better try the cleanser that contains oxalic acid which is powerful enough but ought not to scratch the glass.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Corsages for mom in Buffalo Grove

Buffalo Grove Garden Club will be offering corsages for Mother's Day at both the Ranch Mart Shopping Center and the Buffalo Grove Mall Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

There will be a selection of pink, white and red carnation corsages designed by the club members. The sale will continue until all corsages are sold.

O'Meara-Scheffers rites in red, white and blue

Red, white and blue was the color scheme chosen by Elizabeth Ann O'Meara of Mount Prospect for her wedding day.

Her attendants came down the aisle of St. Mary's Church, Buffalo Grove, in alternate red and white gowns and navy blue and white gowns. The bride carried red tea roses to complement their ensembles.

Elizabeth Ann became the bride of Gerald Warren Scheffers of Arlington Heights the afternoon of April 14.

Parents of the couple are the Donald T. O'Mearas of 1704 N. Beech Road, Mount Prospect, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Scheffers of 2434 Brandeberry Court, Arlington.

A WHITE sateen gown overlaid with appliques of lace was the bride's choice for her wedding ensemble. The lace accented the high neckline, bishop sleeves and the flowing hem with its long train. A pearl crown held the bridal veil, which was fingertip in length, and the bride's bouquet was composed of phalaenopsis, red roses and stephanotis with greens.

Maureen O'Meara was her sister's maid of honor, wearing a red and white ensemble and carrying red tea roses with white baby's breath. The bodice of her dress was in white cotton voile with stand-up collar and bishop sleeves trimmed with lace and red ribbon. The skirt was in a red floral print.

The bride's other sisters, Mrs. Donna Sline of Des Plaines and Patricia O'Meara, were bridesmaids along with Kathleen Knoerl, Livonia, Mich., a cousin of the bride, and Laura Swenson, Glenview, the groom's cousin, as junior bridesmaid.

The girls alternated in red and white ensembles and navy blue and white in identical styles.

ANN O'MEARA of Dearborn, Mich., the bride's five-year-old cousin, was flower girl, wearing a navy blue and white ensemble to match the adult attendants.

Richard Scheffers served as his brother's best man, while another brother, Thomas Scheffers Jr., was among the ushers. Also seating the wedding guests were the bride's brothers, Mark and

Mother's Day: how it began

by GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK—Officially, Mother's Day in this country is one of the youngest of family holiday traditions. It started nationally in 1914 and this year will be observed Sunday.

The tradition that pays tribute to all moms actually has its origins in the ancient Greek worship of Cybele, "great mother of the gods."

But the holiday lost its popularity during the early and middle years of Christianity. In fact, it all but disappeared until 65 years ago when it was revived in Philadelphia and spread throughout the United States and to many parts of the globe.

TODAY, it is observed as one of the most important holidays of the year in Vienna, reports the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

It's popular in Australia, throughout South America and other Spanish-speaking areas. It rates three days of special notice in England and of course sends hundreds of thousands onto the highways in this country headed for mom's or grandmom's house.

The association said the Greeks, and later the Romans, celebrated the day on the Ides of March. The holiday called Hilaria was the Roman counterpart of the Greeks' Feast of Cybele.

IN 17TH CENTURY England, Mid-Lent Sunday became known as "Mothering Day," a day on which apprentice youths who lived within travel distance of their homes were allowed to return to their families for a visit.

Mother's Day as we know it today had its legal origin in 1908. It was championed by Anna M. Jarvis, who wanted to do honor to her own mother. As a result, the city of Philadelphia proclaimed the second Sunday of May 1908 as Mother's Day.

In 1914, President Wilson proclaimed that the second Sunday in May be observed and so it has been since.

Newcomers golf outing at Nordic

Arlington Heights Newcomers will hold its annual couples golf outing Sunday, May 20, at the Nordic Hills Country Club, Itasca, Route 53.

Tea-off time will be at 3, dinner at 7. Reservations are being accepted by Mrs. H. McNeill, 392-0918.

Membership is available to residents of Arlington Heights who have lived in the area 18 months or less. Newcomers provides for social, civic and charitable events and offers a host of activities, some of which are also designed for husbands of the members. Detailed information regarding the club and its activities may be obtained from the membership chairman, Mrs. D. Kilgore, 253-2536.

Corsages on sale in the Meadows

Mother's Day corsages will be sold from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday by the Rolling Meadows Jayceettes who will set up booths in front of the National Food Store, the Ron-Mel Card Shop and inside the mall of the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center.

Put together by the Jayceettes, each corsage will include a cymbidium orchid, ribbon and netting in a variety of colors.

Headstart for the sprouts

Give your garden a headstart this spring! Even if we have a late frost, your seedlings will be safe and warm on your windowsill.

Fill small paper cups three-fourths full of potting soil. Drop a few seeds in each cup. Some of the easy-care, fast growing ones you may want to try are lettuce, string beans, corn, pole beans, onions, carrots, marigolds, petunias and zinnias.

When your seedlings sprout, you can transplant them outdoors. Be sure to keep them watered. Then wait to harvest your crops and pick your bouquets.

THE "YUCCA" or "Adam's Needle" — and they are evergreen as well. The plant does best in a southern exposure and produces a single cluster of white blooms on a long stem in summer.

Well-maintained grounds increase property value

People are often pleasantly surprised to learn that landscaping can be a profitable "investment."

The shrubs and trees on your home-grounds — unlike the quick-depreciating items inside the house — have a substantial monetary value, which grows as the plants themselves grow.

It's not the sort of value that you can go out and "cash in" in the usual sense, but well maintained trees and shrubs do have an uplifting effect on the price of your property when you decide to sell, according to the Ornamental Growers Association of Northern Illinois.

The price and salability of a home, says the O.G.A., depends to a considerable extent on the prospective buyer's first impression of the property as a whole. Good landscaping accentuates and highlights the architectural features of your home.

Further, says the O.G.A., should you suffer storm damage or some other sort of landscape disaster, the destroyed items are entirely deductible as a loss on your income tax.

The value of trees and shrubs is determined in two ways, according to the size and type of plant. With shrubs and ornamentals — plants small enough to be replaced easily — their worth is the "replacement value" at current rates for plants of equal size.

With the larger shade trees — too large to be replaced at any cost — the value is determined according to a formula worked out by a national shade tree organization. To pick a random example, a 30-40 year old pin oak may be worth up to $900-1,000. The formula, properly applied, stands up in tax cases.

Good soil drainage central to well-being of new trees

There's something more central to planting a tree, according to the Ornamental Growers Association of Northern Illinois, than good soil, peat moss or water. That something is drainage.

Without a common sense consideration for well drained soil around the new tree, an otherwise well-planted tree can die from drowning roots even when not "overwatered."

In its new four-color Planting Guide for Northern Illinois, which is available free from 645 N. Milwaukee, Wheeling, Ill. 60090, the O.G.A. cuts through all the misinformation you've heard since childhood about tree planting, and gives you a sure fire technique for balled as well as bare root stock.

Says the O.G.A., the planting pit for balled plants should be dug nine to twelve inches wider than the diameter of the ball of the plant. If the soil is good, the depth of the hole should be the same as the depth of the balled plant, plus one inch.

If you use peat moss — and this is less important than good drainage to the success of the planting — mix it with good top soil at a ratio of one part peat to three parts of soil.

You can forget the drainage problem in good soil, because nature does an excellent job of moving water through top soil with an organic content. In such a case, nature has engineered your drainage plan for you.

In clay soil, however, you will need to be a little more skilled in your planting pit construction. Clay soil, incidentally, is very common around new homes where it is often taken from an excavation and used to make a new grade.

The method recommended by the O.G.A. for achieving good drainage in clay soil is to auger a hole three to four feet directly beneath the ball of the plant, and then filling the hole with washed gravel before setting the plant.

With this technique you eliminate the creation of a clay "pot" in which water collects and drowns the roots.

After setting the balled plant in the pit, fill the rest of the hole with good soil, and saturate the hole with water till all new soil has settled and the ball is wet throughout. Then straighten the plant and backfill to ground level. Form a saucer with the soil, with the rim of the saucer on the outer edge of the hole.

A bare root plant should be installed similarly, except, of course, that the roots should be spread in a loose and natural position.

Take special care to protect and keep moist the roots of a bare-root specimen. Balled plants, too, need water while being stored, of course.

A more detailed explanation of planting technique, as well as planting and pruning illustrations are included in the new O.G.A. Guidebook.

New lawngrass strains available to lawnsmen

Exciting days lie ahead for America's lawns and lawnsmen.

It's excitement bred of spring enthusiasm combining with as comely an array of new lawngrass cultivars as has ever come to market. Incidentally, "cultivar" is the horticulturist's word for an improved variety or unusual strain of plants.

By whatever designation, bluegrasses, fescues, colonial bentgrasses and new perennial ryegrasses will spark more attractive lawns than ever throughout America.

A handful of new cultivars is all that is needed to start a fine lawn along the road to success. In addition to these dandies being offered individually, seed houses mix appropriate combinations of them to provide the turf blends that are so widely recommended for lawns that must receive less than expert attention.

You'll find Arboretum, Arista, Prato and Sydsport bluegrasses and Illahee fescue among varieties doing a bang up job in supporting roles or for special circumstances.

As a rule, one or two bluegrasses blended with a slightly lesser quantity of fine fescue (and perhaps a touch of perennial ryegrass) make an excellent "all-purpose" mixture both for new lawns and bolster seeding.

For unusually shady locations, cultivars tolerant of shade should predominate. Several of the new bluegrasses work out well in moderate shade, but most of the time the burden falls mainly upon fine fescues.

Fescues are noteworthy for enduring well on dry, impoverished soils such as frequently occur under trees. For humid climates with rainy seasons and abundant drizzles, bentgrasses have no peer.

Bentgrasses typically require a bit more attention than do bluegrasses, fescues and perennial ryegrasses, but they stand closer mowing (a 3/4 inch mowing height is usual).

The ryegrasses are great for quick cover, such as when seeding slopes, or where repeated scuffing may occur as with an athletic turf.

In most metropolitan areas, leading grass cultivars can be purchased as sod for "instant" lawns. Don't be misled, however, into believing that a sodded lawn can get by with any less soiled preparation than is needed for seeding. Unless the soil is well loosened, fertilized, leveled, and watering is made ready, neither a seeding nor a sodding is likely to be assuredly successful.

Three new gladiolis win 1973 All-America honors

Three new gladioli have won the judges favor for 1973 All-America honors. The new winners are Big Daddy, Mexicali Rose and Brightside.

Not only do they rate high in beauty appeal and ease of growth, "musts" for every All-America winner, but all three also have something special to make every home gardener want to grow these new glads.

Big Daddy is an unusual name for a gladiolus, and an unusual gladiolus this is! It is the biggest and tallest of all glads grown today. Most giant sized glads are not known for their beauty. Big Daddy is a notable exception to the rule.

It not only has tremendous size but its color, substance and ruffling are outstanding, not to mention its ability to hold those gigantic spikes straight and true regardless of the weather. Big Daddy's color, creamy peach, is a color seldom seen in gladiolus. The seven foot high spikes with nine-ten immense, seven inch florets are indeed fantastic. They begin to show color in about 90 days from the time the bulbs are planted. It is an origination of George M. Ruppel, Bridgehampton, New York.

Mexicali Rose is a graceful, tall medium rose, with a silver picotee on each petal adding to its color appeal. Eight to ten lightly ruffled florets open at once in excellent placement of a total of 20 buds, with nearly all the remaining buds in color. The 60 inch spikes are amazingly uniform, one as perfect as the next. This new All-America winner has tight attachment, holds its color as the buds open, and opens unusually well when cut tight.

A strong grower and a star performer, Mexicali Rose is also a leading candidate for the most beautiful rose gladiolus. Mexicali Rose is nearly always the very first gladiolus to bloom, flowering in 60-65 days. Mrs. George Melk, Sr., Mequon, Wisconsin, is the originator.

Brightside is an extra fancy little gladiolus — a clear, bright yellow surrounded by a very prominent orange-red edging. Six to seven florets, lightly waved and of heavy texture, open at once of a total of 18 buds. The vigorous, deep green plants are 3 1/2 to 4 feet tall.

It is an early variety, blooming in about 70 days. Brightside has a special

Spraying helps control growth of lawn needs

There are many homeowners who can't tell a penny from a poppy, but everyone seems to be familiar with the dandelion. It is all too common and difficult to ignore.

If a yard is neglected, it can take only one season for dandelions to crop up and gain dominance in the battle of the lawn. But the days of getting on your hands and knees and digging out the dandelions are over. At best, this approach was a stopgap measure.

Dandelions develop deep taproots, which means that is is virtually impossible to get rid of them by either pulling or digging. Even if you cut a root with a knife far below the dandelion crown you'll not eliminate the weed, and, as a matter of fact, a circle of new sprouts will grow from the root producing plants which will be as vigorous as the old!

According to H. D. Hudson Manufacturing Company, makers of garden sprayers and dusters, the surest and most thorough way to eliminate dandelions from your lawn is to spray them.

Dandelions, as well as other broadleaf weeds such as plantain and knotweed, are easier to eliminate in spring, but progressively harder as summer moves on. Hudson recommends you begin your spray program when you can recognize the dandelion's all-too-familiar leaf. Young, fast-growing weeds are the easiest to eliminate, but spray weeds whenever you see them throughout the growing season.

Proper application of spray materials is just as important as the material itself. For the average lawn, experts recommend a compressed air sprayer that is big enough for the job, yet portable to use easily and effectively.

With a compressed air sprayer, it's easy to spot-spray each weed or give troublesome sections of the lawn an overall spray whenever it is needed.

A compressed air sprayer has an adjustable nozzle and spray extension to place the spray right on target. To spray weeds, set the nozzle to deliver a coarse spray and apply at low pressure to avoid drift. A positive shut-off valve helps prevent wasteful drenching. For larger yards, a power sprayer, either electrically or gasoline driven, is the answer. Equipped with a boom, it can cover large areas quickly.

For further information on effective weed control in your area, consult your local hardware store, garden center, or state agricultural extension service.

Plants fight air pollution

Man can live only a few minutes without oxygen, yet he's been treating the air he breathes as though it were completely expendable, according to the Ornamental Growers Association of Northern Illinois.

The air of Northern Illinois, says the O.G.A., has long been used as a repository for an endless list of pollutants, resulting in the local — as well as national — air pollution crisis.

Strangely enough, says the O.G.A., one of Nature's most abundant creations offers a means of combating pollution. It is the plant — the simple, green, growing plant — everything from the rattiest, prickliest thistle to the stateliest of ancient oaks.

Plants produce oxygen through the process of photosynthesis which also results in the absorption of carbon dioxide by the plants which they convert into plant food.

The O.G.A., whose members operate nurseries dating mostly to the early 1900's in Northern Illinois, claim to have preached the doctrine of "green survival" long before Lady Bird aimed a foot at her first planting spade.

Without green plants, there would be no oxygen for industrial furnaces, let alone animal life and humans. Whereas automobiles, factories, and jet planes release tons of pollutants into the air, mass plantings of trees and shrubs can absorb much of the carbon dioxide and cushion the detrimental effects of dusts and other gases on the environment.

The crisis in air quality is all the more critical since each factory built requires an adjacent acreage of parking facilities, which eliminates the greenery it needs to combat its noxious exhausts.

What good, you say, would it do to plant one new tree or shrub on your home grounds this spring? The O.G.A. and all of our modern environmentalists say, "Couldn't hurt."

Deep colored lawngrasses

Contrary to the general taste in Europe, where light green seems preferred, Americans usually choose lawngrasses with a deep color. Domestically bred varieties are almost invariably dark green: for example Jamestown fescue, Manhattan perennial ryegrass, the many Rutgers hybrids (Adelphi, Bonnieblue, Galaxy), and other bluegrass selections such as Nugget and Sodco.

Wauconda Orchards holds May Apple Blossom Walk

Apple blossom time will be ten days to two weeks earlier than usual this year. The last estimate for Northern Illinois area is the period, May 5 to 15.

An apple orchard in full bloom is breathtakingly beautiful and fragrant. This is the time when honey bees do their work, flying from one blossom to the other, spreading the pollen throughout the orchard.

Visiting an orchard is an educational experience for young and old alike. In Northern Illinois there are several apple orchards that have a pick-it-yourself program in the fall harvest season.

A special Apple Blossom Walk will be held at Wauconda Orchards, one mile northeast of Wauconda, Illinois, May 12 and 13. Weather permitting there will be tours through the orchard where there are over 9,000 apple trees on 250 acres of rolling land.

There will be rural draft demonstrations of spinning and weaving by Julia Jordan and apple carving by Sculptor Emil Carlson in the Country Apple Store.

Wauconda Orchards is a living history agricultural museum that is open daily year round. Hand operated household and farm tools are seen and demonstrated. In addition to spinning and weaving, candle dipping, cider making, blacksmithing and grading of apples can be seen. Some of the orchards antiques are for sale as are apples, gifts and refreshments. At the historic Cheese Factory on the corner of Bonner and Fairfield Roads, household cheesemaking equipment can be seen along with a wide assortment of cheeses and sausage.

According to orchard owners, Margaret and Richard Breeden, this year's apple blossom festival has been planned as a family fun treat which the entire family will enjoy. Bring your camera and enjoy spring in all its beauty. A glossy photograph of the orchard in bloom is available upon request.

PALATINE, ILL. PHONE 358-2771

HERE ARE THE REASONS WHY:

1. Our sod is 2 year old Merion Blue, guaranteed 100% 1 full year. No weeds or straw grasses. Cut fresh the day it's delivered.
2. Since we deal exclusively with the pallet system, there is no extra charge for palletted sod or fork delivery.
3. A unique process of sod stacking and the use of extra strength cardboard sheets enables us to unload your sod without having to haul away wooden pallets.
4. The whole idea of palletted sod is to save you time, money and a lot of back-breaking work. Now you can landscape your own yard without the drudgery of digging the sod from the sidewalk. After the pallets are placed all you need do is lay the sod — no hauling is necessary! On orders of 400 sq. yds. and over 5¢ per sq. yd.
5. If you do not have enough area to warrant 400 sq. yds., we might suggest you get together with your neighbors to put the total order over 400 sq. yds. We will be happy to make you a delivery at the 5¢ price. All unloading and laying is done with our fork lift.

GRAND PRIZE Lawn & Garden Gypsum breaks up hard clay soil.

Now you don't have to hack and hoe your head off to cultivate your hard-pan soil. With adequate water, GRAND PRIZE works itself into the ground to loosen clogged soil. Just run it on your lawn or spade it into your garden. Jerry Baker says: "Gypsum should be applied to all lawns, flowers, tree and shrub beds if the soil is the least bit hard or compacted. It will break up clay and render it useful, improve drainage, increase fertilizer efficiency."

Before you bust another blister, give GRAND PRIZE a try. Pick up what you need at your garden center or hardware store this weekend.

Before Gypsum:
Heavy, compacted soil slows root penetration; restricts development of plant roots and foliage.

After Gypsum:
Plenty of pore space for air and water; better utilization of rain and sprinkler water; possible savings on water bills.

CHEMICALS DIVISION
UNITED STATES GYPSUM
BUILDING AMERICA

THE "PUBLIC AREA" of the home grounds — or front yard — is the view you give to the community, and is decidedly more "ornamental" than the landscaping in the patio and recreational areas, says the Ornamental Growers Association of Northern Illinois. This family has given their neighbors an interesting landscape to view, featuring pin oaks protected by retaining walls, and near the house itself a variety of evergreens and flowering shrubs.

Tree placement important to residential landscapes

The landscape design for the "public area" of your home grounds (which usually means the part seen from the street) should be approached much the same as an artist approaches his canvas, according to the Ornamental Growers Association of Northern Illinois.

Professional landscape designers, in fact, develop their landscape plans every bit as deliberately as a painter does his subjects.

In residential landscape design, the home itself is the central element of the public area, says the O.G.A., and trees, shrubs, and ornamentals should all be placed to focus attention upon it. The large shade trees and the smaller "ornamental" varieties, such as crab apples and hawthorns, should complement the house and highlight its good points.

The driveway — at the exact spot where it meets the street — is usually the best vantage point in planning your landscape. The reason is that your visitors will have their first solid impression of your home from this spot. It's the dominant view — the one they'll remember.

The driveway vantage point is usually a 30 or 40 degree angle view of the house. Thus the pictures you are attempting to paint with trees and other plants should be a relaxed, informal, and asymmetrical one, rather than a stiffly balanced formal view.

The shade trees, which will grow large and beautiful as the years pass, should be thought of as the "picture frame." They will perform the same visual function for the house that the frame does for an artist's painting.

Shade trees should be chosen, says the O.G.A., on the basis of the size and species which best suits the building architecture, with the added precaution that it's always best to choose trees grown in the locale in which they are going to be used.

Large trees planted behind the house are also an important visual part of the front. Such trees make an excellent setting for the house. It's always better to see a home backgrounded by a copse, or row of trees, than for the house to be silhouetted against open sky which gives it a cold, unfriendly look.

The ornamental trees, and the shrubs, used in the public area, are not intended to frame the home; rather they are best used in "corner plantings" — to soften the harsh visual impact where the vertical line of the architecture meets the horizontal line of the earth — and in "foundation plantings" — where they are unifying elements for walks, drives, lawn areas, and the building itself.

In a purely practical note, the O.G.A. recommends care in placing trees in relation to overhead wires and underground utility lines. If you don't know where the underground lines are on your property, don't dig until the utility company representatives have been consulted.

Agricultural product helps regulate plant growth rate

Certain fruit, nut and vegetable crops will ripen faster, yield more per acre and can be harvested more easily by treating them with a unique agricultural compound which regulates plant growth.

John W. Eckman, president of Rorer-Amchem, Inc. has announced that the product 'Ethrel' plant regulator has been developed and is being marketed by Amchem Products, Inc., a subsidiary company.

He said 'Ethrel' was cleared April 25th for use on tomatoes and cherries by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency. Earlier clearance was obtained in Canada for use on cherries, tomatoes and apples. Clearance followed six years of field testing and studies by Amchem, government, industry and university researchers. Lengthy toxicity, residue and persistence studies were carried out by Amchem and independent researchers.

In addition to cherries and tomatoes, EPA clearance is expected shortly for 'Ethrel' use on apples, pineapples, walnuts and filberts for the 1973 growing season in the U. S., Mr. Eckman stated.

When 'Ethrel' is applied to plants, nature's ripening mechanism is set in motion. Ethylene is immediately released in the plant, and the plant's own mechanism is triggered to produce more ethylene. This naturally occurring agent is the key to the ripening and maturation process in most food and fiber producing plants. Thus, when 'Ethrel' is applied, crops can be ripened on a predetermined schedule.

Eugene A. Snyder, president of Amchem Products, Inc., the Rorer-Amchem subsidiary which is producing and marketing 'Ethrel', forecast a steadily expanding market for the product.

He based market growth on these factors:

Growers using 'Ethrel' can now harvest greater recoverable yield on a schedule of their choosing. For example, usable tomato yields can be expected to increase an average of three tons per acre following an application of 'Ethrel'.

Because crops can be ripened uniformly, a once-over harvest is possible, thus reducing labor and equipment costs.

By scheduling earlier harvests, a grower can reduce the exposure of his crop to insects, disease and weather.

Processors can benefit by scheduling grower deliveries, making more efficient use of plant labor and facilities.

Expected availability for use on a number of crops such as cranberries, blueberries, cantaloupes, figs, citrus, grapes and tobacco.

'Ethrel' is currently widely used as a latex stimulant on rubber trees in Malaysia and to induce flowering on pineapples in tropical countries. 'Ethrel' will now be marketed worldwide for these new food crop uses, and application on other important crops will follow in the future.

Consumers will benefit by having better quality food, both fresh and processed, and in more plentiful supply.

Mr. Snyder emphasized the environmental safety of 'Ethrel'.

"'Ethrel' has been tested with favorable results in all the standard toxicological protocols now required by the EPA. These include tests on rabbits, dogs, fish and wild and domestic birds. Rats and dogs have been fed high levels of 'Ethrel' daily for two years. In addition, intensive metabolism and residue studies in plants, animals, soil and water have been conducted," he said. "The compound breaks down in soil and water to naturally occurring substances," Snyder concluded.

Grow Roses in containers

Spring is a great spectator "sport," but it's even more enjoyable as a participant. If you live in an apartment or mobile home, don't be content to watch this great season from a distance, join in!

The rose firm of Jackson & Perkins advises that roses grow well in containers given the same basic ingredients as garden roses: sun, nutrients, water and good drainage. For both bush and tree roses, containers 13 to 14 inches high will do; the diameter should be 10 inches for bushes and 12 inches for trees.

Wooden containers are best, since they allow minimum evaporation through the sides but keep the soil cooler than other types. Pottery containers are also good. Both types should have at least one large hole in the bottom for drainage.

Use a planting mix of 3 parts sandy loam soil to 1 part peat moss, adding ½ cup of bonemeal or superphosphate fertilizer to the soil at the time of planting.

'Espalier' treatment suited to limited space gardening

Like to include fruit trees in the landscape plan, but find space limited? You can "pancake" a fruit tree up against a wall with considerable success.

Branches of young supple fruit trees can be trained to grow flat against the facade of the house or garage.

This method of training fruit trees is called the "Espalier" treatment, and the most common is the candelabra system. The branches are trained on horizontal wires, starting a foot and one half from the ground and spaced a foot apart to the top of the wall.

Opposite pairs of branches are chosen for each wire, and they are grown along the wire to the outer horizontal limits; then they are allowed to grow upward. This creates a "U," inside a "U," inside a "U," etc.

When training the branches, use soft string, rubber budding bands, or other soft material. Don't use wires; it can cause girdling and the eventual loss of a limb. One reason for planting espaliers is too little planting space for a well-rounded plant.

Be sure to select the right plant for the design chosen. Yews are useful in the fan-shaped designs, fruit trees in the cordon, U-shaped or gridiron designs; plants with long branches like forsythia are suitable for arching designs.

Apples, peaches, pears, dogwoods, and hawthorns are suitable for U-shaped designs, but here one should be extremely careful in bending the young twigs into form for the necessary right angle turns. Early spring is the best time to train the plant, check the places stems are attached to the walls and make new attachments. Walls exposed to the north or east are best.

Many plants can be used, preferably those with small leaves, and many designs are possible. Growing one or two espaliered plants is an interesting hobby and can add much interest to the garden area.

Trees create yard beauty

Trees have a greater influence on the beauty of your landscape than any other single plant.

To function properly, trees should provide shade in summer, protection from wind in winter, and improve property appearance the year around, says the Ornamental Growers Association of Northern Illinois.

Early spring is the best time to plant hardwood trees. Plant them while they are dormant, before the leaves have begun to grow. They may be planted later in the summer, if they get careful treatment and are not allowed to wilt.

The list of trees which are hardy in Northern Illinois is an edited version of what is hardy in the Midwest generally, since our climate is not a carbon copy of any other climate surrounding a Midwestern metropolitan area.

If you're interested in trees for the homegrounds, consult the all-new Planting Guide for Northern Illinois which has a complete list of the outstanding trees which will survive in our harsh Chicago-climate. It's available free from: O.G.A., 645 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, Ill. 60090.

Indoor gardening gaining popularity

With more and more Americans living in apartments, townhouses or homes with postage stamp-size yards, indoor gardening is gaining popularity at an amazing rate. According to a booklet on environmental action published by the American Association of Nurserymen, this is an especially healthful sign. The booklet, titled "It Depends On You," is available free at many nursery garden centers.

During the course of the 23,000 times we each inhale and exhale in a single day, we take in 35 pounds of oxygen, according to the nurserymen's booklet, and we get it all from green plants on land and vegetation in the sea. In the process of manufacturing oxygen (the process is called photosynthesis), the green, growing plant materials and vegetation also absorb huge quantities of carbon dioxide from the air. We are totally dependent on this process for our very lives.

In addition to the atmospheric and esthetic contributions it offers, indoor gardening can provide year-round pleasure for the amateur gardener with a limited amount of effort. A few pointers can contribute to the success of the venture.

Most house plants thrive best in a fibrous, porous potting medium. The grower can mix his own medium of sand, peat, loam or manure; however, it is cleaner, easier and safer to buy the packaged house plant potting mixtures available in nursery garden centers.

Growing indoor plants can be fed every two weeks with a water-soluble fertilizer applied according to package directions.

Plants growing indoors will appreciate a considerable amount of light, in most cases, 15 to 18 hours — natural or artificial — in each 24 hours. The amount of light required may vary with different trees or plants, but the nursery garden center can provide specific information for the different varieties.

Most trees and plants need a period darkness each day, as well, since they deteriorate quickly if lights are left on around the clock. The serious indoor gardener will appreciate having a time control switch which turns the lights over the trees and plants on and off at set times. Without this, the grower who must be away for a day or so should leave the lights off altogether, rather than on for a full 24 hours.

In addition to proper lighting, house trees and plants should be provided with favorable levels of humidity and temperature. For most plants, night temperatures of about 62 degrees and a day temperature perhaps 10 degrees higher are recommended, along with a relative humidity of about 50 per cent.

Along with those fairly technical suggestions, the American Association of Nurserymen has one more tip — perhaps the most important of all for the average amateur indoor gardener. Relax and enjoy your plants. Chances are they'll thrive pretty well with the simplest care — some water when they're thirsty and the light that's available in the room. Bringing the outdoors indoors with inside plantings is one of the least expensive investments available in beauty, pleasure, and a healthier atmosphere.

Toro incorporates 30 improvements on its rotary walk mowers for 1973

More than 30 improvements have been engineered into Toro's line of rotary walk mowers for 1973, for greater safety, convenience, and durability.

Both the Guardian, the Careful Mower, and the Whirlwind will have a new handle that is longer and sturdier — constructed from 7/8-inch tubing, a place of 1/4-inch — and an improved self-propelled drive system.

Changes in the drive system for the self-propelled models include: a new spring-loaded belt tensioning device to solve the "loose belt" problem, and new front wheel pivot arms, for better maneuverability.

The six Guardian models have a new grass bag made from a sturdy poly knit material, "polygard," that stopped nails ejected at more than 100 miles an hour during exhaustive tests. The bag has a full-bushel capacity and a drawstring enclosure. Bagging is standard on Guardian models, optional for Whirlwinds.

All of the Guardian's proven safety features — the result of more than two million dollars in research and development — have been retained in the 1973 line. They include a safety blade guard that skirts the rear of the cutting housing, a safety deflector bar that deflects foreign objects downward and guards against blade contact by hands or feet, a safety shield at the rear of the cutting housing, and a safety switch that shuts off the engine when the bagging chute is removed.

Also part of the built-in safety features of the Guardians are basic instructions for safe operation, printed on the new mowers are located, making it unnecessary for the operator to leave his position behind the mower while the mower is running.

All Toro mowers have an anti-scalp disc, the small cup installed at the center of the blade to help prevent scalping of the lawn when the mower goes over hills and banks.

Both the Guardians and the Whirlwinds have Toro's famous Wind-tunnel housing and aerodynamically designed blades in their cutting systems. A pressure differential created by the design of housing and the action of the blade pulls the grass up vertically to give a straight, even cut. The blade is tilted toward the front to give grass one clean cut without shattering the grass which turns it brown.

Other popular features continued in the 1973 line are four-cycle engines, with separate gas and oil tanks, easy-to-clean air filter (a clean filter is one of the keys to easy starting), self-adjusting carburetion, a topside washout port and snap levers for easy adjustment of cutting heights.

Suggested U.S. retail prices for the 1973 Whirlwinds range from $99.95 for the 19-inch basic mower to $159.95 for a 21-inch self-propelled model. For the Guardians they range from $129.95 to a "fully-equipped" Guardian (21-inch self-propelled, 3.5 hp. with Key-Electric start, the starting system that makes a mower start like a car) at $219.95.

For the homeowner who strives to make a showplace of his lawn, Toro rounds out its line of walk mowers with the Sportlawn, long acclaimed as the world's finest reel mower. Precision-engineered with a high cutting frequency, it shears grass like a scissor, giving a fine lawn a smooth, level, carpet-like appearance.

The 1973 Sportlawn reel mower — available in three models — features new styling and a modification in the controls to incorporate an engine shut-off in the throttle.

Suggested U.S. retail prices for the TORO QUALITY. Toro safety and Toro performance in a rotary for less than $100 — that's the 19-inch Whirlwind mower with fingertip start. It has the same important features found in the other, more expensive models in Toro's walk mower line: Wind-Tunnel housing and the aerodynamically designed blade for Sportlawn mowers are $159.95 for the six-bladed Sportlawn 18-inch Lo-Cut; and $179.95 for both the six-bladed 21-inch Lo-Cut, and the 21-inch Hi-Cut with a five-bladed reel.

A new optional accessory in 1973 for the Toro family of walk mowers is the Toro Lawn Dolly, an all-purpose cleanup cleaner cutting action; lightweight spiral aluminum grass chamber that won't rust; side deflector bar and rear safety shield for greater protection; anti-scalp disc; 4-cycle engine; combined throttle and choke control; snap-lever adjustment for changes in cutting height; easy-to-clean air filter; and topside wash-out port.

car with an adjustable hoop that holds polyethylene disposal bags wide open for easy filling of yard debris. Save time by keeping it close to the mower as a central dump point for clippings. Its suggested retail price is $14.95.

All suggested retail prices are applicable only in Fair Trade States.

'Dwarf' types of lawngrass

Lawngrass breeders are turning out an increasing number of "dwarf" varieties of bluegrass, fescue and perennial ryegrass, — species which traditionally needed to be mowed high.

Colonial bentgrasses like Highland, and creeping bentgrasses such as Pennecross, have always been used for low-mowed lawns. The new bluegrasses, fescues and ryegrasses are "dwarf" only in stature, for they spread vigorously and make an even denser lawn carpet than the older varieties.

Tool house stores gardening supplies

Clearing the clutter of garden tools out of the garage and storing them with mower and wheelbarrow in their own small building eliminates the frustration of finding what you need when you want it.

A garden tool house can be built by the home handyman easily with western wood and other materials available at lumber yards.

Easy-to-use plans for an 8x8-foot tool house are available for 15 cents in coin from Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. P-6P, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Or. 97204.

Pollution barriers

Lawngrasses not only look nice, but they can absorb toxic sulfur dioxide and ozone from the air. At the same time they release oxygen, humidify and cool their environment.

The Liberated Gardener

A SERIES BY Frank J. Taylor

What this home gardener needs isn't a five cent slug but a five dollar x-ray machine that will take pictures of the roots of his trees, shrubs and plants down in the soil. Most other backyard gardeners have the same need.

Since nobody appears about to invent a camera that will shoot through earth, I've had to rely on some other tricks to tell me how the roots are making out. I can do some pretty good guessing about what ails a sick plant when the leaves begin to curl, dry up or drop, and the tips of the branches die back. First of all I look for sucking bugs, but if the leaves are clean and they still curl or drop, I know I have a root problem. How do I get a good look at the roots?

"Bore a hole and see what goes on down there under the top soil," a county horticultural expert advised me.

Whereupon I added a soil augur to my gardening arsenal in the toolshed. It's still hanging on the wall. The first dozen holes I drilled alongside trees and shrubs brought up subsoil all right but it was so churned up I learned next to nothing. So, putting on my Thomas A. Edison hat, I invented a home-made coring tube of strong, thin pipe. It brought up cores of earth an inch in diameter which told me that beneath the foot or so of top soil the roots were trying to push through compacted clay and they were finding it hard going.

"You'll have to break up that clay and let some air into it," my expert said.

He recommended some soil conditioners, such as Ortho and others, in small but frequent applications. That helped solve one soil problem but not two others — the root chowers and the PH, or alkali-acidity balance.

To catch the root pests in the act I dug small holes alongside scattered shrubs and plants with a trowel, carefully trying to avoid cutting the roots I wanted to examine. In one place I found some nematodes. In another cutworms and nests of root aphids. Under the lawn I spotted sod web worms feasting on the grass roots. In fact, the roots under our garden seemed to have more predators than the leaves and buds above ground.

Once I had flushed out these underground enemies it was no trick to lambaste them with the hose turf gun loaded with the right pesticides from The Garden Center — Nemagon for nematodes, Chlordane and Diazinon for the bugs and worms, Dyrene for the root fungus. Nowadays I don't waste time digging holes to locate the enemy: I know he's down there. I give the roots a break and use the turf gun before the leaves begin falling — as root insurance, so to speak.

That left me with the most baffling soil problem of all, the PH balance. Too-acid soil wouldn't give up its nourishment, too-alkaline burned the roots. I turned chemist for a day with my home soil testing kit. The color in the tubes gave me some clues, but to be sure I sent soil samples to college for more reliable tests. Once I had the reports back it was an easy trick to scatter lime or gypsum where the roots cried for less acid soil, or sulphur to counteract too alkaline nourishment. Sounds like work, but it wasn't really, and it paid off big above ground to give the roots the break they deserved down under.

Blue roses: still legendary

There are no blue roses. Like the fabled "Seven Cities of Cibola," they seem destined forever to remain the province of legend. Take, for instance, the "Blue Rose of Persia," a Gallica rose which legend says the Crusaders brought back to France.

A plant named Cardinal de Richelleu whose open blooms are purplish and fade to "blue," is thought to be the rose. The Arabs accentuated the bluish coloring, so the story goes, by the application of an unknown mineral, perhaps cobalt, to the cambium layer of the stems.

According to the book, The Magic World of Roses, an Englishman once discovered a blue rose growing in his garden. Somehow it offended his aesthetic sensibilities and he pulled the plant and destroyed it.

The fact is, hybridizers have only been able to develop roses such as Sterling Silver and Heirloom, mauve or lavender colors that approach the blue end of the color spectrum but don't reach it. In the opinion of William Warriner, plant research director for the rose firm of Jackson & Perkins, that is as close to blue as anyone is likely to get.

Outlining the reasons for his opinion, Warriner says that none of the pigments in the genus rosa is blue and it seems unlikely that any combination of the pigments that do exist, even if treated with sugar or metal ions, will produce a blue rose. Even radiation, he says, is not likely to alter chromosomes in such a way as to reproduce a blue rose.

Lavender colors are something else. Initially, lavender colors were difficult to work with, notes Warriner, for a couple of reasons. One is that some of the early lavender plants were very weak in nature and therefore, a lot of hybridizing was necessary to develop strong strains.

How to get rid of these lawn spoilers (and a dozen more) as you fertilize your grass

All you do is spread TURF BUILDER PLUS 2, Scott's weed-n-feed. It gets rid of dandelions, easily and surely. Makes them curl up and disappear, root and all. And not just dandelions. PLUS-2 also clears out plantain, buckhorn, chickweed, clover and many other common lawn weeds.

Fertilizes too. When the weeds are gone you'll notice that the lawn is greener and thicker than before. That's because every bag of PLUS-2 also contains a full feeding of Turf Builder, which helps your grass fill in where the weeds used to be.

When to use. You can spread TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 anytime after dandelions come in bloom. You won't see any sudden results. But one day you'll realize the weeds have simply vanished. And your lawn is thicker and greener. It's as easy as that.

Spring ushers in trees, shrubs and ornamentals

Nothing cheers the hearts of Northern Illinoisans as much as that first impressive rush of color which follows the warming breezes of spring across our Chicagoland landscape.

With winter over, the Ornamental Growers Association of Northern Illinois says April, May, and June will bring that fanciful parade of pastel colors to our best trees, ornamentals, and shrubs — a magnificent display against the backdrop of the soft, new greens of spring foliage.

The O.G.A. has just completed work on a new book, titled Planting Guide for Northern Illinois, which lists all the early bloomers and describes each one — in addition to all the other trees, shrubs, and evergreens which do well in this area.

For those who write O.G.A. direct, the book, which includes many full color photographs and illustrations on landscape planning, is available for free. Write the O.G.A. at 645 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, Ill. 60090.

The reason Northern Illinois needs its own book, explains the O.G.A. is that subtle variations in our climate here require the careful tailoring of any list of recommended plants. The O.G.A. list is the result of many years of research by the O.G.A. and its members.

According to the O.G.A., one of the commonly mistaken impressions the general public has is that flowering effects are limited to a few small trees, shrubs, and herbaceous plants.

Actually, however, all deciduous plants (which shed their leaves in winter) as well as broadleaved evergreens have flowers. Even maples and oaks but they are inconspicuous.

Among our very large trees, says the O.G.A., the following have spectacular flowering effects:

Buckeyes and Horsechestnuts. Generally, these are massive, broad, round-topped trees with spectacular spiked flowering effects.

Tuliptree. This is a very large shade tree with showy, greenish-yellow, tulip-like flowers blooming in spring. Tuliptree, however, is hardy only in the lower reaches of Chicagoland.

Catalpa. A favorite of your grandmothers, this tree is currently out of favor because of all the organic matter it drops in the course of a growing season. It's classed as messy. However, it is beautiful when covered with white blooms.

An ornamental is generally considered to be a small tree (or large shrub) whose flowering, fruiting, and/or foliage effects are particularly spectacular. Here's the O.G.A.'s recommended list of early blooming ornamentals.

Cherry, Plum, and Almond (Prunus species). Many variations of this beautiful class of trees are hardy in Northern Illinois and all are early bloomers. Newport Plum is a favorite, with its white flowers followed by reddish-purple foliage. Others include European Bird Cherry (white flowers), Yoshino Cherry (pink flowers), and Japanese Flowering Cherry (double white blooms.)

Crab Apple (Malus species). This is perhaps the largest species of magnificent early bloomers available for the Chicago area, and the array of coloration is absolutely astounding.

The list of possibilities is endless, but a few which the O.G.A. list include Almey Crab (large red blossoms), Arnold Crab (pink flowers), Siberian crab (white), Prairie Crab (our native crab, which has beautiful single pink flowers), Aldenham Purple Crab (semi-double crimson flowers), Sargent Crab (clusters of pure white blooms). A much more detailed list is contained in the O.G.A. Guidebook.

Redbud. A magnificent, small, native Midwestern tree with an absolutely incredible display of showy, pink-to-purple flowers before the heart-shaped leaves appear in spring. A white-flowered variety is also available.

Shadblow. One of the most neglected species of absolutely hardy, magnificent early bloomers. A shadblow in bloom is reminiscent of a snow storm, so thickly covered are its branches with delicate little blooms.

Dogwood. Several tree form varieties of dogwood are hardy here, though our best local bloomer is probably Pagoda Dogwood, with white flowers.

COMBINE NEWSPAPER WORK ADVERTISING AND TELEPHONE SELLING

And you have the ingredients for a fascinating, rewarding job. We have an opening in our Classified Advertising Department for an intelligent, enthusiastic woman to begin training for this permanent, full-time position with a secure future.

You'll be working for an advertising Manager and a company who really cares about people. It could be the most rewarding and enjoyable position you've ever had. Sound interesting? You bet it is!

Ability to type and spell correctly, any previous experience in sales, public contact or phone work helpful but not necessary. A pleasant outgoing personality, a little determination and a good telephone voice is what it takes. We'll train you to do the rest. This is not a commission type job but added incentives mean you can easily make more than the set wages. Your extra earnings will largely depend on how well you personally perform. Many liberal company benefits. Come in between 9 a.m. and 12 noon and fill out an application. Ask for Larry Bell, Classified Advertising Manager, or call 394-2400.

Before I joined the Payroll Savings Plan all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 3½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4½% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

What's the strongest you have — it's for Mother's Day right after my six grandchildren, their two dogs and cat leave.

Ford seeking to cut motorists' errors

Nobody'll admit it, but all drivers are guilty of mistakes

DETROIT (UPI) — Everybody makes mistakes behind the wheel of a car, even the driver who thinks he's above average.

Nine out of 10 drivers regard themselves as better than average. They are quick to criticize others and feel their "above average" skills keep the "crazy drivers" out of trouble.

"The average motorist isn't careless or reckless. He obeys the laws. But he makes mistakes every time he gets behind the wheel."

That's the opinion of Phil Gram, manager of Ford Motor Company's Employee Skilled Driving Program, who added:

"What we're trying to do is reduce the errors, make them less critical."

Gram cited statistics that have nothing to do with car production, such as 1,000 deaths a week caused by vehicle crashes; another 76,000 persons injured each week, and an economic loss that amounts to $200 a year for each person in the country.

THE LATEST program is an attempt to put it all together in a package that Ford can use to assist driver training schools, courts, state agencies and corporations.

"We're not teaching anyone to drive — we're teaching them how to drive better. We try to leave them with the thought that you never stop learning," Gram said.

With that thought in mind, a group of newsmen were invited recently to take part in a two-day classroom and driving program similar to one in which 1,052 Ford employees are taking part. The instructors, "rented" from the American Academy of Transportation in Ann Arbor, Mich., had no intention of flattering the newsmen.

This correspondent's instructor was Steve Furr. With him in the passenger's seat, we drove around Dearborn where Ford's world headquarters is located. He was trying to get an idea how I handled a car.

"City" habits such as following too close, weaving in and out of traffic on a freeway and not taking a look before changing lanes were my more obvious faults.

AFTER CLASSROOM instruction which included lectures and entertaining slide shows, it was streets and freeways with instructor Irene Tader in the back seat with a specially built electronic device that measured how often the steering wheel was "jiggled" or made minor corrections — too many turns serving as a danger signal. It also indicated how often the brakes were "tapped" and the gas pedal depressed.

A mother trying to drive her car with a couple of screaming kids in the back seat is not an uncommon driving situation. So, to put the student in a minor stress situation, Mrs. Tader asked her one letter every 20 seconds.

The task proved too much for some of the drivers who just stared at the clock, instead of watching where they were driving.

Back in the classroom, it was evident from the electronic printout that the "stress" situation resulted in far more minor steering corrections, along with more braking and acceleration.

The Ford employees, all volunteers receiving regular pay while taking part in the program are assigned by a computer to four size groups. Teaching methods in each group are different.

Professor Clean does battle with pollution

by EDWARD S. LECHITZIN

DETROIT (UPI) — There's the white-mustached Professor Clean. He's a good guy. And there's Harry Hydrocarbon, Charlie Carbon Monoxide, Ollie Oxide of Nitrogen, Sam Sulfur Oxide and Pete Particulate Matter. They're the bad guys.

That's the cast of characters in a booklet entitled "What Is Air Pollution — A Story of Air Pollution and Cars." Written for elementary school children, it's probably just as good a primer for their parents.

The colorful booklet which says most air pollution is caused by the five "pollution demons" is the idea of General Motors Corp., the company with more cars on the road than any other. But many of the thoughts came from children themselves.

Students at two Detroit schools were asked to draw pictures of what they think pollution is or write a poem.

"WE WERE AFRAID all we'd get was a lot of black smoke," said Gwen Small, a 24-year-old GM artist who coordinated the illustrations and layout. "We let them use their imaginations and we went from there."

When they asked 11-year-old Carla Wilson what pollution was, they got this for an answer:

"Pollution is here; pollution is there. Wherever you go, it is always there. Pollution is there when you throw things in the air. And that is why we have pollution everywhere."

From the poems and drawings, Miss Small began work on the booklet, first creating Professor Clean, a dapper, bespectacled gent in a blue jumpsuit with a red necktie who threads the booklet together. He also bears a strong resemblance, the kids say, to Tom Macan, the GM technical writer who prepared the text.

What is air pollution? According to Professor Clean, it's something like this:

"The things that make air dirty are called pollutants. Some pollutants are easy to see. Like soot and dust and smoke from chimneys. Other pollutants are invisible. These are called gases. Gases come out of the exhaust pipes of cars, for instance."

PROFESSOR CLEAN explains that pollutants come from things being burned — oil and coal, and gasoline and other fuels burned in engines to make cars, trucks, boats and airplanes go.

As a result, the "pollution demons" appear. Harry Hydrocarbon and some of his friends escape being burned while Ollie Oxide of Nitrogen likes things hot. Sam Sulfur Oxide makes the air dirty when people burn coal or fuel oil. Pete Particulate Matter comes in different shapes and too much of Charlie Carbon Monoxide in one location is not a good thing.

It's kind of an answer to this thought from 10-year-old Brenda Holliday: "Flowers, flowers, pretty and gay, waiting for pollution to go away."

GM has already printed a half million copies of the booklet and is mailing copies to 62,000 elementary school principals across the nation with the offer to provide free copies in classroom quantities. Many of them probably will find their way home to mother and father.

Would you tell me all you can about William Shatner? Please print his picture. Why was STAR TREK taken off the air? Is there any possible way to get it back on the air?

K.J.

Rolling Meadows

William Shatner

Shatner, a native of Montreal, was a senior in McGill University's College of Commerce when he decided upon a theatrical career. He had previously enjoyed his first taste of acting at age eight. At ten, he enrolled in the Children's Professional School and it wasn't long before he was doing juvenile roles on the radio. By the time he enrolled in college in 1948, his was a familiar voice on the Canadian airways.

William was one of the first Canadian actors to join the repertory company of the Stratford Shakespeare Festival. Once he assumed the role of Henry V on three hours notice. A major turning point occurred when he appeared in the production of "Tamburlaine." The play was so well received, that it was taken to Broadway. He accepted the offer to star in a TV play, "Dreams," which he had written months before. For 18 months he starred in the Broadway production of "The World of Suzie Wong."

As time allows, Shatner will write and direct for TV and feature films. In keeping with this plan, he has formed his own company, Lemli Productions, Inc. (name is derived from the given names of Shatner's three daughters). Shatner's offscreen hobbies include, playing the guitar, singing, riding horseback, motorcycling, archery, and waterskiing.

STAR TREK was destined in its second season to be stopped from the network schedule, but it was reinstated for a time after thousands of letters poured into network offices. Since that time, the series has become syndicated and is still enjoying tremendous success in the markets that have bought it. The power of the viewers' response can be felt!

I'd like to know where I can write to Johnny Carson and Ed McMahon. Could you print a picture of both of them?

Ken D.

Arlington Heights

Ed McMahon

Both Johnny and Ed can get their fan mail sent to them in care of NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020. We hope that you will be satisfied with a picture of Ed—our space for pictures in TV Mailbag is somewhat limited, so we picked Ed's for you. He likes a little publicity too!

I read your column every week. I have a few questions about Shirley Booth who plays in HAZEL. Is she in any way related to John Wilkes Booth, the man who assassinated Abraham Lincoln? Please tell me about her and print her picture.

N.R.

Rolling Meadows

Shirley Booth

In no way is Shirley related to the assassinator. Her given name at birth was Thelma Ford. Shirley took her present name at the age of 12, when she joined the Hartford Stock Company against the disapproval of her father. For the next six years, with her mother's approval, her life as an actress was like many others—there were periods of unemployment, along with roles in various stock companies.

Her career shot up when she debuted on Broadway with a leading man, who at that time was also unknown—Humphrey Bogart. Having appeared in numerous plays, Shirley became popular with the radio program "Duffy's Tavern" in which she played Miss Duffy. Movies have also been a part of the award winning personality — Tony-Oscar-Emmy winner! Many still remember her in her famed title role in HAZEL. Now she is starring in another series—A TOUCH OF GRACE.

Miss Booth has remained unmarried since her investment counselor husband, William Baker, died in 1953. In both of her homes, she indulges in her hobbies of gardening, cooking and collecting antiques.

My friend and I are wondering if Robert Conrad and Ross Martin are really good friends when they are together.

E.I.

Arlington Heights

They must be friends, together or apart! They certainly do a good job of faking friendship, if they are not. Friends are great, no matter what degree of friendship is involved!

I read TV Mailbag every week and would like to know if you would print a picture of Randolph Mantooth. How old is he and is he married? Does he have any children? I am a big fan of his and think he is cute. Where may I write to him?

P.T.

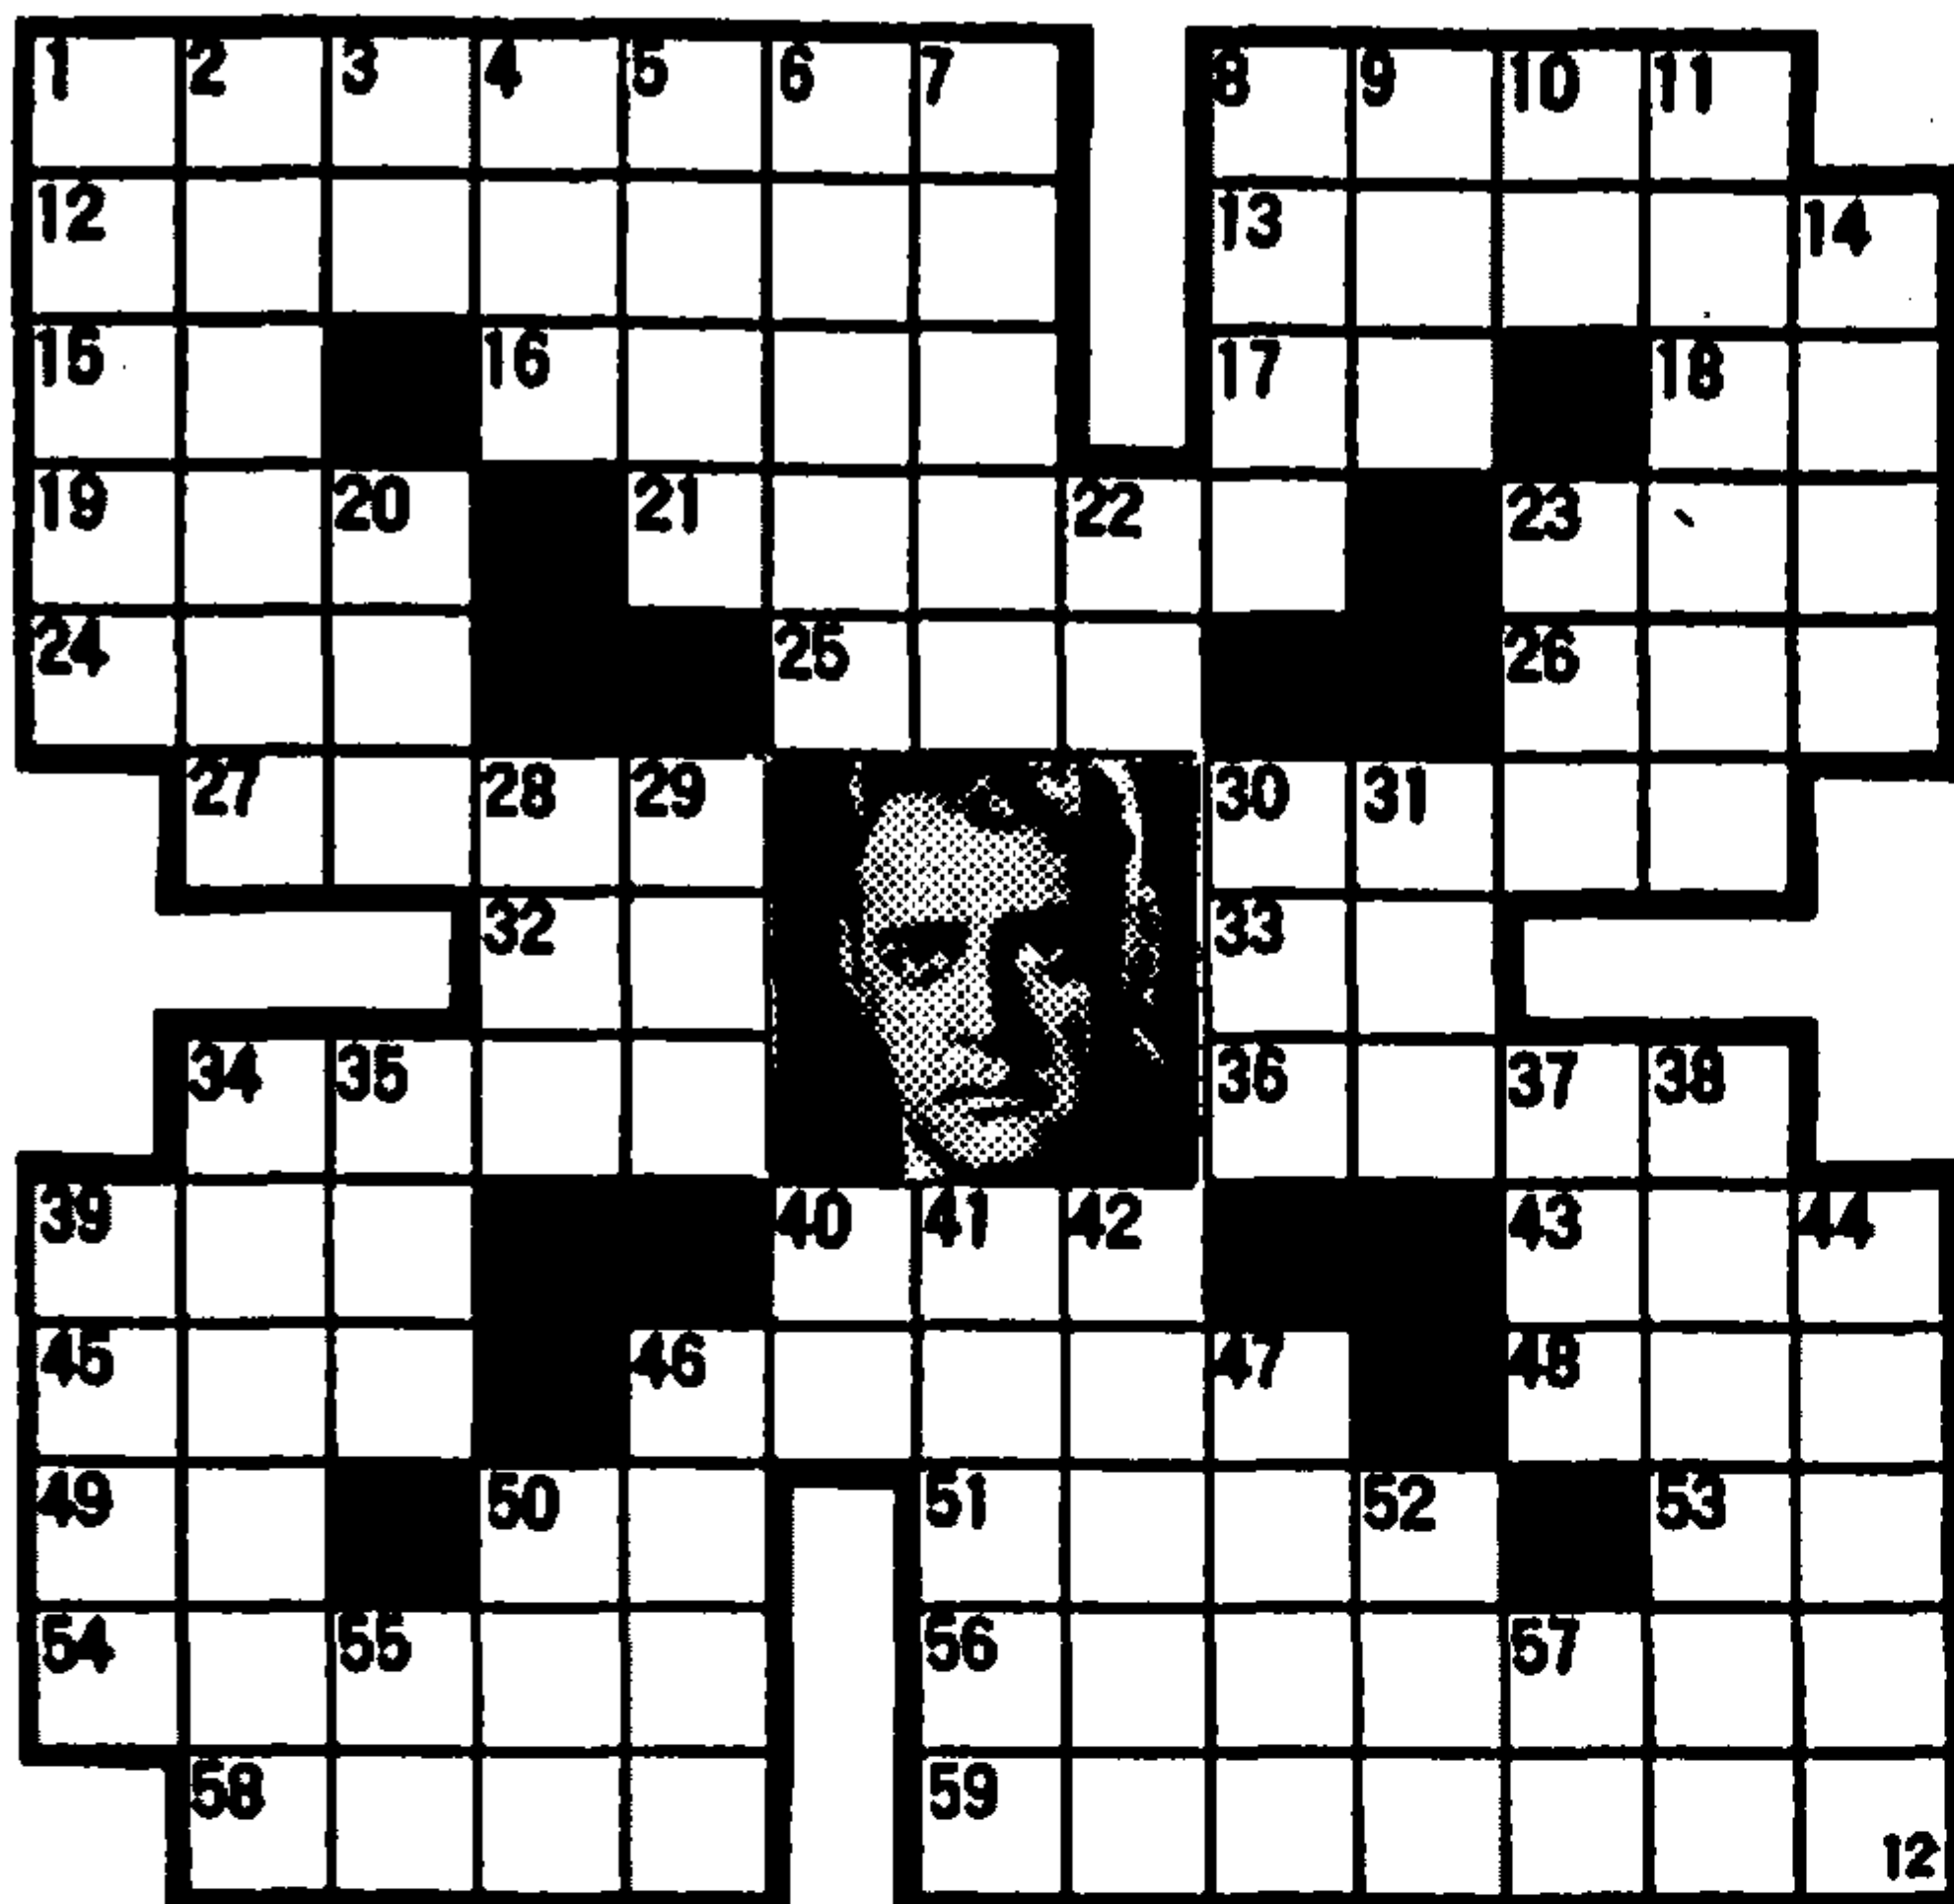

Hoffman Estates

Randolph Mantooth

Since you are such a faithful reader, we'll print Randy's picture for you! Twenty-seven-year-old Mantooth is still a "bachelor." You may write him in care of NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020.

HAVING TROUBLE?

"Come on, Pop - Get it started! The RED BARON is getting away."

We know the story, you received a nice looking "Cox Stuka," Cox Dune Buggy or maybe a Testor's "Cosmic Wind Trainer" for Christmas or your birthday. Or maybe you sold newspaper or magazine subscriptions to get it and there it sits in your closet or basement because you couldn't get the engine started. Dig it out and bring it in to our shop and we'll show you how to start it "Free," regardless of where or when it was purchased.

Big business for 'Bandstander'

Mention the name Dick Clark to most people, and their thoughts would probably turn to "American Bandstand," the long-running youth song-and-dance series. The show has survived every dance craze and teen fashion for the past 20 years. And Clark has survived the program too, albeit its success has tagged a stereotype on the man.

GLANCING THROUGH a biography of Clark, one discovers that he has all kinds of irons in the fire. He's starred in several movies...has made the talk-show circuit...his Tour Productions hosts an array of musical talent (Raiders, Aretha Franklin, Supremes, Osmond Brothers, among others) and other entertainment ventures (Barnum & Bailey Circus, "Mame" road show, Royal Lippizan Stallions among them). In short, the fella who was so instrumental in familiarizing us with the Hulley-Gulley, the Mashed Potato, tan shoes with pink shoelaces, et al...this same guy is a real businessman.

Dick Clark

Does the "youth" stereotype bother the 44-year-old Clark? Not at all, he claims. "Bandstand," which he persuaded Philadelphia's WFIL-TV to debut back in 1952, "has meant magnificent good fortunes for me," Clark says.

MEETING OVER lunch in Chicago recently, where he flew into for a few hours to help promote CBS' new morning game show, "The $10,000 Pyramid," which he hosts, Clark left no doubt in my mind that he is indeed a most articulate and perceptive businessman. He revels at keeping abreast of today's rapidly-changing technology, especially in the communications field.

"You have to stay in tune with what's happening," Clark says. To help him do that, Clark is seemingly always on the road, on the go. After taping his "Bandstand" in California, Clark commutes to New York each week to do "Pyramid." He tapes five of those game shows in a day, then is back to the West Coast, many times stopping over on business in other major cities.

PERHAPS IT'S THE pace that has kept Clark's appearance and outlook youthful. Much like the young person who has an opinion on everything, Clark is quick to chime in when queried on a range of topics.

The State of Music Today? "Can't argue with a multi-billion dollar business. Music now offers more of a varied diet...something for everyone."

State of Youth Today? "Right now they're becoming more passive, especially about politics after being so involved several years ago. They feel like they've been beating their heads against the wall ... there have been too many grandstanding politicians."

Health of RADIO-TV? "Pretty good. Television will continue to make big strides, as will FM radio."

Do you like game shows? "Sure do, but they're the roughest program on TV to do. What's a 'good' game show? One that lasts over a year!"

What future projects on the horizon? "We're working on a 'Bandstand' Anniversary Show (to air June 19 on ABC). Also, preparing a 20-year history of rock 'n roll for film. And, oh yes...we're producing a show in Canada which could be a big hit in syndication in this country. It's an 'advice' show based on 'The Sensuous Man.'"

And that's a far cry from being a pusher of bobby sox, blue-jeans, and Fabian in Philly. Not that Clark regrets a combination like that...

Ask change in master plan; Lieberman seeks rezoning

by JOE FRANZ

Local real estate broker Stan Lieberman has again asked Buffalo Grove to deviate from its master plan and grant rezoning for business on a 3/4-acre site on Dundee Road.

Lieberman, of Stan Lieberman Realty Inc., 150 W. Dundee Rd. asked for the zoning change so he can construct an additional building next to two others he is planning.

Lieberman said he recently obtained an option to buy the additional land which is on the north side of Dundee Road, west of Golfview Terrace. He will buy it if he can get the zoning change and annex it to the village, he said.

Last month the village board approved a rezoning request by Lieberman on a 1.07-acre site which adjoins the property he now plans to buy.

THE BOARD'S action overruled the plan commission which rejected the rezoning request two months earlier. At that time, the plan commission said they were against changing the zoning of the property to business use because it contradicts the village master plan.

The master plan calls for residential development along Dundee Road. Some members of the plan commission said the zoning change could set a precedent for unlimited commercial development of Dundee Road.

If the village approves the latest rezoning request it will be the third time the village has deviated from the master plan in regard to the development of Dundee Road. Last month the board also granted a zoning change for construction of a bank, medical center and office building west of Kingswood Methodist Church.

Some residents have argued that the land on Dundee Road is much too expensive and is not conducive to residential development. They have said the master plan is a guideline and does not have to be rigidly followed.

LIEBERMAN TOLD the village board at a public hearing in February that he wishes to move his realty office to the new complex. His present office is no longer adequate due to expansion, he said.

Lieberman also said he wants to stay in Buffalo Grove, but would be unable to without a new office. "We feel there is a serious need in the village for office space," he said. "We have no choice but to build if we are to remain in Buffalo Grove."

Adjacent land owners are pleased with the proposed project, Lieberman said. He added the project will be "well landscaped" and attractive.

"We want Dundee Road to be an attractive front door to the village," he said. "I'm an inside developer as opposed to an outside developer and am interested in making the buildings an asset to the village."

Lieberman said the project will be done in two phases. Construction of the two buildings, which have already been approved, is scheduled to begin in July and probably be completed by the end of the year.

The third building, which is now in question, will be constructed at a later date. Lieberman said the third building will only be constructed if he is successful in renting the units in the first two buildings. He said he has received "firm commitments" from several doctors and professional persons who plan to rent office space in the buildings.

New high school principal to speak at PTA meeting

Dr. Chick Miller, principal of Buffalo Grove High School, is scheduled to discuss plans for the new facility at the final meeting this year of the Cooper Junior High School PTA Monday, May 21.

The meeting is set for 8 p.m. at the school, just off Arlington Heights Road on Plum Grove Circle in Buffalo Grove.

All interested persons, in addition to Cooper PTA members, are invited to attend. Miller will talk about the construction schedule for the new building and present an orientation program for parents whose children will attend the school.

The Cooper PTA meeting is one of several sessions Miller has said he plans to conduct in the next few months to acquaint parents with the operations of the new high school.

Cooper's seventh grade chorus will present a program as entertainment at the PTA meeting. The chorus, under the direction of Cheryl Siedentop, will perform choral arrangements which won it a first place rating at the recent state music contest in Zion. It will be accompanied by Mrs. Kolls on the piano.

Officers for the 1973-74 school year will also be elected at the meeting. Those slated for election are Robert McKenzie, president; Josephine Tessare, first vice president; Stephanie Skot, second vice president; Julie Schott, recording secretary; Arlene Rimeron, corresponding secretary and Janet Walters for treasurer. Nominations for all officers will also be accepted from the floor.

Don't panic - rusty water can be cured

Buffalo Grove officials yesterday said residents should not become alarmed if they discover rust-colored water coming from their faucets. The discoloring caused by the annual flushing of village fire hydrants, William Davis, public works director, said.

Davis said flushing of the hydrants churns up the water in the village water system that brings the rusty water into homes. Residents can get rid of the rust by allowing their faucet to run for three to four minutes, Davis said. The water is completely safe and does not need to be boiled, he added.

Davis said the hydrant flushing is currently being done in the Lake County section of the village. The entire village will be completed in a month and a half he said. Since the hydrants are being flushed out between 11 p.m. and 5 a.m., rusty water is most prevalent in the morning, Davis said.

Cooper students to present 'Rehearsal '73'

Selections from four popular Broadway musicals are included in "Rehearsal '73" to be presented this weekend at Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove.

Performances of the show are scheduled for 8 p.m. tonight and tomorrow night at the school, just off Arlington Heights Road on Plum Grove Circle.

The show will feature material from "Annie Get Your Gun," "The Flower Drum Song," "My Fair Lady" and "The King and I." It will be directed by Mrs. Robert Kolls and Cheryl Siedentop.

A group of 25 dancers will perform in the show, joining a chorus of 100 students to complete the cast. Several students will also present solo numbers.

Tickets, at $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for children will be available at the door for both performances.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Former Nixon administration cabinet members John Mitchell and Maurice Stans were indicted yesterday on charges they sought to obstruct an investigation by a federal agency in exchange for a secret $200,000 cash contribution to Nixon's reelection campaign.

President Nixon has named CIA director James Schlesinger to replace Elliot Richardson as secretary of defense. He also named John Connally as special adviser.

The Pentagon Papers trial was brought to the verge of dismissal of charges when an FBI report indicated that Daniel Ellsberg's telephone conversations had been tapped but that information was withheld throughout the trial.

Most electronic systems aboard Skylab and its rocket were checked and found free of lightning damage, and the countdown proceeded unhindered toward Monday's launch.

In a major attack against President Nixon's Indochina policy, the House blocked a transfer of funds at the Pentagon to relieve money shortages caused by the bombing of Indochina.

Former White House counsel John Dean III said there was "a concerted effort to get me" but he would refuse to shoulder the blame for others implicated in the Watergate affair.

The state

A measure designed to offset last year's U. S. Supreme Court ruling which held abortions are legal in the first three months, has passed the Illinois House.

Judge Julius Hoffman of U. S. District court has been removed as the judge who will try an explosive Chicago police scandal. Judge William Bauer was assigned to try the case.

Gov. Daniel Walker announced his support for the Oakley Reservoir near Decatur. Construction could begin as early as July of 1974.

The world

Lebanese air force planes again went into action to silence Palestinian guerrilla positions by bombarding the Kofat air base near Lebanon's northern border with Syria.

The Viet Cong have accused the South Vietnamese government of murdering 25 civilian prisoners who were supposed to have been released under Vietnam peace accord terms.

Fly a kite, win a prize at fish fry

Go fly a kite next Saturday at the Wheeling Park District's "Kite Fly and Fish Fry" and you might win a prize.

Prizes will be awarded to the person who enters the best kite in his age group in each category of the contest at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

Age groups include children age 7 and under, children age 8 through 12, those 13 to 15 and anyone over 16. Prizes will be given for the best two-stick kite, three-stick kite, box kite, novelty kite, largest smallest, most artistic and highest flying kites in each age range.

Homemade kites must be made of paper, string and wood. No metal may be used in their construction. Prizes for the most artistic kite and the best novelty kites in the contest will be awarded only to persons entering homemade kites. All kites entered in the competition must fly.

Registration for the contest will be conducted this week and next at Heritage Park. There is a 25-cent fee. In case of rain, the contest will be conducted Saturday, May 26.

Participants in the kite competition may bring a sack lunch or purchase fried trout. The charge for the trout will be 75 cents for a fish dinner or 50 cents per fish.

Plan tea to honor retiring teachers

Three School Dist. 21 teachers, who will retire at the end of this school year, will be honored during a tea at 4 p.m. May 24 in Cooper Junior High School, Buffalo Grove.

The teachers are Emily Schupner, who teaches second grade at Kilmer School in Buffalo Grove, Minette Sprain, fourth grade instructor at Riley School in Arlington Heights and Ralph Beasley, learning disabilities instructor at London Junior High School in Wheeling.

The three are the only Dist. 21 teachers who are leaving the district because they have reached the legal retirement age.

Ray Lee, principal at Sandburg School, also plans to retire this spring, after 35 years in the field of education. He will be honored June 1 at a dinner at Hans' Bavarian Lodge in Wheeling given by the Sandburg staff.

FLAGS AT THE Wheeling Park District are flying at half staff in honor of former Park Comm. Alf Wilson. Wilson died Wednesday at Chicago's Northwest Hospital after suffering an apparent cerebral hemorrhage last Sunday. Visitation will be from 3 to 5 p.m. today at the Wheeling Funeral Home. Funeral services will be in the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd tomorrow, with burial at the Memory Gardens Cemetery in Arlington Heights.

Gifted children programs extended

Pilot programs for academically and creatively gifted children have been extended for another year by the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 school board.

Both programs were started on a pilot basis this year. The program for the academically gifted involved 16 students in the fourth and fifth grades at Eisenhower School who were chosen on the basis of an intelligence test, achievement tests and their teachers' recommendations.

To qualify, the children had to be rated at least three grade levels above their classmates in one area.

Once accepted, students were allowed to spend two hours each day in an "idea lab" working on independent projects.

THE CREATIVELY gifted class was an outgrowth of the program for the academically gifted. It involved 20 students from the first through fifth grades at Eisenhower School.

The academically gifted class cost the district $3,200. However, the district will be reimbursed by the state for this cost next year. According to Supt. Edward Grodsky, state title programs allow pilot projects the first year a school district is given funds.

Then funds are provided for the second and third years to increase the program and disseminate results. "Once you get established, they want you to assume the costs," Grodsky said. "The district eventually will have to start assuming a larger portion of the bill."

THE CREATIVELY gifted program costs the district nothing since the teachers and volunteers donate their planning periods to conduct the special classes.

Next year, the district plans to continue the pilot program at Eisenhower, but in the third grade rather than fourth and fifth. The academically gifted program for fifth graders will be extended to all the schools in the district, Grodsky said.

According to Grodsky, one person would be appointed in each of the schools to handle the gifted children. This person would be given a half-day each week to do the work. The funds for the volunteer would come out of the substitute program, Grodsky said.

In other business at Wednesday's meeting, the board directed the administration to look into having a crossing guard placed at the intersection of Rand and Camp McDonald Roads. Several parents have complained that the intersection is a dangerous one.

Also at the meeting, the board officially approved the appointment of the board's attorney, Henry Valley, as a negotiator for the board. Valley has been working on negotiations for several weeks. However, because the board failed to make his appointment at the recent board reorganization meeting, members did it officially Wednesday. Valley has been hired at a cost of $30 per hour.

Northgate students to attend Eisenhower

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board has approved a temporary boundary change that will send students in the Northgate subdivision in Arlington Heights to Eisenhower School next year.

Currently, students from the subdivision attend John Muir School, which is facing a problem of overcrowding. The school, on Drake Terrace in Prospect Heights, has experienced an increase in students as more and more homes have been completed in Northgate and in the Ivy Hill subdivision, also in Arlington Heights.

According to Muir Prin. Jim Finke, Muir now has 296 students in attendance, with a capacity for 310. According to Finke, the school cannot hold students from both Northgate and Ivy Hill.

Since there are now only eight students from the Northgate subdivision now attending Muir, the administration felt it would be better to transfer the children from Northgate rather than Ivy Hill, which has 60 students attending Muir.

Eisenhower, at Camp McDonald and Schoenbeck Roads, has three classrooms that are not being used and the school will not be adversely affected by the change, according to school officials. The students will be bused, as they are to Muir.

Because of the increase in housing projects in the Dist. 23 area, the administration is now gathering statistics on the possible need for a sixth elementary school and an addition to Muir for the 1974-75 school year.

Grodsky said the study should be completed in July.

School tax rate to dip 30c per $100: official

The 1972 tax rate for Prospect Heights Dist. 23 has been lowered 30 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, according to Supt. Edward Grodsky.

Grodsky said he learned of the lower rate from the Cook County Clerk's office Monday. Last year's rate for the school district was $3.10 per $100 of assessed valuation. The reduction means that now the rate will amount to only $2.80 per $100 of assessed valuation.

According to Business Manager James Hendren, the lower rate is the result of an increase in assessed property valuation in the district plus an elimination and reduction of several of the school fund levies.

According to Hendren, the board has eliminated the capital improvement fund and the levy for special education. The Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund (IMRF) has been reduced to a nominal amount and the working cash, life safety, insurance and transportation funds have all been reduced.

The lower rate was the result of an intentional effort on the part of the board, Hendren said. "There was an effort on the part of the board to show the community that they are watching it. We feel pretty good about it," Hendren said.

However, the rate does not necessarily mean that tax bills for residents will be lower than last year. The school levy is only one portion of the total real estate tax levy.

'Coffeehouse' plays tonight at Stevenson

Two original one-act plays will be featured in a coffeehouse program to be presented at 8 p.m. tonight in the Adlai Stevenson High School commons.

The program, sponsored by the school's "Wit" magazine staff, will also include dancing, songs and poetry.

Tickets, at $1 each, may be purchased at the door. Proceeds from the production will be used to defray some of the expenses of publishing the "Wit," a literary journal.

The program will feature "An Absurd Drama" by Diane Didier and "About Man" by Lisa Iseberg. Song and dance entertainers include Liz Wenner, Marie Moody, Lori Greff, Lynn Sommerfeld, Dennis Simpson, Marcella Fush, Pam Ervin, Amy Borgstrom, Julie Fournier and Laura LaPlaca.

Tina Segalla is in charge of an artwork display, which will be shown during the program.

Mobile driver test unit at Randhurst May 14, 15

A mobile driver's testing unit, staffed by two Illinois driver's license examiners, will be at the Randhurst Shopping Center May 14 and 15.

The secretary of state's licensing facility, a converted bookmobile, will make its debut here, the first stop on a 15-city tour throughout Illinois in May and June.

The license examiners will give written, vision and sign tests and "will be just like a full driver's testing station except there will be no actual driving test," a spokesman for Secretary of State Michael Howlett said yesterday.

The Herald urged such a mobile driver's testing unit in the Northwest suburbs more than a year ago, after plans for a permanent driver station here were delayed. Howlett's aide said the stop in the Northwest suburbs was chosen first because of the public sentiment for a local licensing facility.

He said no site for a permanent facility in the area has been selected. A three-man committee is now searching for a new site.

LAST YEAR, the secretary of state's office announced that a station would be built near Quentin Road between Northwest Highway and Dundee roads north of Palatine. But it was determined a substantial portion of the land was unbuildable.

The mobile unit will hit all the large population areas in the state during the next two months, according to the Howlett spokesman. It will visit Rockford, Moline, Champaign and Lawrenceville this month.

Besides administering the written tests, the state examiners will have records available of all drivers in Illinois and will renew licenses and correct those with misinformation.

School district to lose $520,350 in revenue

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62 won't receive as much revenue as it expected for the 1973-74 school year.

Cuts in federal and state aid and changes in property assessment practices will result in a loss of about $520,350 for education spending next year.

Two federal programs, one for children of migratory parents and another for educationally disadvantaged children, were cut off from about $50,000 in federal funds when the government changed guidelines for these programs earlier this year. The district has decided to continue and pay for the programs on its own.

Declining enrollments at Dist. 62 also result in a decrease in state aid. Last year the district lost about 200 students and enrollment is expected to drop by 250 students next year, a decrease of about 4.2 per cent. The decrease will result in a loss of about $195,350 in state aid next year, according to Harold Brieschke, director of business services.

ACCORDING TO a census taken by the school last fall, enrollments will continue to decline at about 300 students per year. To keep the size of the teaching staff in line with the enrollment decline, the district plans to reduce its staff by about 10 teachers next year, a decrease of 2.6 per cent. The size of classes in the district will be maintained at 25.8 students per teacher.

Changes in county assessment practices which resulted in a decrease of expected local tax money to Dist. 62 came as a surprise to school officials. The tentative budget for next year shows $5.3 million in tax revenue but more recent reports from the county assessor reduce that figure by about $275,000 said Brieschke.

Due to construction of buildings in the district, the assessed valuation of property usually increases about eight per cent each year, said Brieschke, but the expected increase this year is only 1.7 per cent. The district is now levying at its maximum tax rate per $100 assessed valuation, $1.81 for education spending and 37½ cents for building.

WALTER PRYBLO, supervisor in the tax division of the County Clerk's office, told the Herald the expected increase in assessed valuation came up short this year due to four changes in assessment practices.

The homestead exemption, which allows taxpayers over 65 to claim a $1,500 exemption, resulted in a decrease in assessed valuation. Disabled veterans also were allowed to claim a $15,000 exemption last year, said Pryblo. Personal property of individuals was taken off the tax rolls in 1972, he said, and the taxing of buildings on land that is exempt from taxes was ruled illegal by the courts last year.

Total expenditures listed in the tentative Dist. 62 budget are $9.12 million; revenue is $8.99 million. The district plans to borrow money from its working cash fund to make up the difference, said Brieschke, and doesn't plan to issue tax anticipation warrants. Next year's expenditures are an increase of only about one per cent over this year's budget of $9 million.

THE INCREASE IN expenditures is due primarily to planned increases in teachers' salaries, said Brieschke. The district budgeted $4.6 million for teachers salaries this year but next year's budget projects $4.8 million for teacher salaries.

Brieschke said the increase is an estimate, based on normal increases under the present salary schedule. That figure could change after contract settlements with teachers this year, he said. So far school officials haven't reported any progress in teacher negotiations which began a few months ago.

The budget shows a decrease of about 14 per cent in the building fund from this year's budget. This year's budget included $225,000 for an addition to Algonquin Junior High School. No buildings, outside of normal maintenance and improvements are planned for next year.

Only one dissenting view

June 9 school referendum studied

Only one person offered dissenting opinions during an informal panel discussion of the $1.25 million bond referendum that will be conducted June 9 by Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59.

The panel was part of the Dist. 59 School Community Council meeting Wednesday night.

Taking part in the panel were school board members Judy Zanca, Emil Bahmaier, Al Domanico and Charles Knaup; Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration; Leah Cummins, district community relations specialist and Joseph Stecker, SCC member.

The bond issue, if passed, would be used for the remodeling of Grove and Dempster junior high schools. Included in the remodeling is replacement of heating and ventilating systems, relocation of certain classrooms and small additions to both schools.

ACCORDING TO district figures, the referendum, would increase real estate tax rates by three cents per $100 assessed valuation. The current rate for the bond and interest fund is 56 cents per $100 valuation. This rate is scheduled to drop to 47 cents per $100 valuation in next year's budget. Even if the referendum were passed, the tax rate would still be below current levels.

Stecker said some of the remodeling is needed, but the referendum includes unnecessary and expensive plans. He said, "I can't fully support the referendum. I favor the needed remodeling, but are we getting our money's worth? Are we getting $1 worth of goods for every $1 spent?"

Stecker agreed that the heating and

Arson suspected in high school fire

An arson investigation is under way into a fire that caused some $1,300 damage to a concession area of a Maine West High School gymnasium, 1755 S. Wolf Rd., late Wednesday, according to the Des Plaines Fire Department.

According to Fire Chief Frank Haag, the blaze was confined to a concession cabinet and was extinguished by firefighters before being able to spread.

A neighbor reported seeing smoke coming from the south end of the gym shortly before 9 p.m.

Firefighters also later found a towel smoldering in a locker room of the gym. Haag believes both fires were deliberately set.

ventilating systems have to be replaced and the learning centers in the schools need improvement. He said, however, that he is opposed to the relocation of rooms and the building of additions, especially at Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

According to Stecker, when Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines is ready, Dempster's student population will drop by about one-third. Friendship School is expected to open in September.

DOMANICO COUNTERED Stecker's objections by saying the relocations and additions would improve the "production" of the teachers and counselors.

He agreed that Dempster's student population would decline, but said the school is now over-crowded.

"It is really unfair — in some cases unhealthy — to have Dempster and Grove exist as they do now," said Domanico.

Perry said when Dempster and Grove were built in 1960 the district was growing rapidly and was forced to build schools "as fast and as cheaply as possible." He said the district did a "commendable job" in building the schools considering the circumstances, but now the schools have to be improved.

SINCE THE SCHOOLS were built, Dempster has had five additions and Grove has had four. Perry said that after so many additions, "the buildings and the educational programs don't match together very well."

About 40 persons attended the SCC meeting, the last regular meeting for the current school year. New officers were elected for the coming year.

Elected were: Nita Stamm, president; Claran Stecker, first vice-president; David Bell, second vice president; Mary Kloster, third vice president, and Mary Ann Wood, secretary.

The president's race was the only contested election. Mrs. Stamm defeated Dolly Burton, 15 to 11, in the voting.

Resident reports break-in Tuesday

Burglars forced their way into the home of William Rieck, 725 Fifth Ave., Tuesday, according to Des Plaines police but nothing was reported missing from the house.

Rieck told police he was outside at the time of the apparent break-in but noticed a pair of youths running from the house.

The two youths were described as 14 to 16 years old, according to police reports.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Former Nixon administration cabinet members John Mitchell and Maurice Stans were indicted yesterday on charges they sought to obstruct an investigation by a federal agency in exchange for a secret $200,000 cash contribution to Nixon's reelection campaign.

President Nixon has named CIA director James Schlesinger to replace Elliot Richardson as secretary of defense. He also named John Connally as special adviser.

The Pentagon Papers trial was brought to the verge of dismissal of charges when an FBI report indicated that Daniel Ellsberg's telephone conversations had been tapped but that information was withheld throughout the trial.

Most electronic systems aboard Skylab and its rocket were checked and found free of lightning damage, and the countdown proceeded unhindered toward Monday's launch.

In a major attack against President Nixon's Indochina policy, the House blocked a transfer of funds at the Pentagon to relieve money shortages caused by the bombing of Indochina.

Former White House counsel John Dean III said there was "a concerted effort to get me" but he would refuse to shoulder the blame for others implicated in the Watergate affair.

The state

A measure designed to offset last year's U. S. Supreme Court ruling which held abortions are legal in the first three months, has passed the Illinois House.

Judge Julius Hoffman of U. S. District court has been removed as the judge who will try an explosive Chicago police scandal. Judge William Bauer was assigned to try the case.

Gov. Daniel Walker announced his support for the Oakley Reservoir near Decatur. Construction could begin as early as July of 1974.

The world

Lebanese air force planes again went into action to silence Palestinian guerrilla positions by bombing the Kileat air base near Lebanon's northern border with Syria.

The Viet Cong have accused the South Vietnamese government of murdering 25 civilian prisoners who were supposed to have been released under Vietnam peace accord terms.

DES PLAINES

Paint a litter barrel

The Des Plaines Park District's annual Litter Barrel Painting Contest will be held on the field at Rand Park on Dempster Street, Saturday at 1 p.m. Litter barrels and paints will be provided, the only equipment needed is a good idea.

Entry blanks are available at the park district office or may be picked up at the contest on Saturday.

Nursing homes open house

The Graceland Des Plaines Nursing Homes invite residents to come to the annual open house on Mother's Day, May 13, from 2 — 4 p.m.

The people of Illinois will be celebrating Illinois Nursing Home Week from May 13 — 20. The doors of both homes are open to visitors who wish to visit with residents and learn about rehabilitation programs.

Craft work will be on display and for sale. All proceeds go to missions.

Junior Olympics starting

The Des Plaines Park District will hold the annual Junior Olympic program beginning Monday, May 14, with activities for boys and girls from 4th through 8th grades. Competitive events include track and field, wrestling, swimming, tennis, gymnastics and bike races. Competition will be held on May 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18.

Applications and entry blanks are available at all the elementary schools in Des Plaines or at the park district office.

Dempster concert

The Dempster Junior High School bands will present their 1973 spring concert at 6 p.m. Sunday at Forest View High School, 1221 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights.

Featured bands will be: beginners, prep, concert symphonic and jazz. Guest soloist on drums will be Tom Kinkaid, a 1972 graduate of Elk Grove High School who is now a student at Northern Illinois University.

All of the bands are under the direction of Richard Falato, band director at the school. For the fourth consecutive year, the symphonic band received a 1st division medal this year in the Illinois Grade School Band and Orchestra Contest.

Donations for the concert will be $1 per person, children will be admitted free. Tickets will be available at the door. For ticket information, phone 437-8674.

'Hot Line' needs volunteers

Maine Township Hot Line is conducting an annual volunteer recruitment program. An introductory presentation "What Is Hot Line?" will be given at Franklin School, Park Ridge, Monday at 7:30 p.m. Applications will be taken from anyone interested in joining the organization.

Applicants will be screened and selected volunteers will receive additional training. Requirements are that volunteers be a senior in high school or older, a good listener and willing to give of themselves to meet the Hot Line commitment.

The Hot Line organization has been in existence for 2 1/2 years and has received over 5,000 calls regarding drug abuse, dating relationships, family counseling, pregnancy testing and counseling, loneliness, school and health problems. When the immediate concern cannot be dealt with on the phone, callers are referred to professional agencies in the community.

Hot Line office is open every day from 4 p.m. to midnight. For further information, call the Hot Line office, 625-0660.

Parks swim club meeting

The Des Plaines Park District will hold a meeting for parents of children in the park district's summer swim club program Tuesday, May 22 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held in the faculty cafeteria of Maine West High School, 1753 S. Wolf Rd. The purpose of the meeting is to introduce Jim Borowski, summer swim club coach and to give practice and meet information. For more information call 296-6106.

Wins PTA scholarship

Suzanne G. Sciez, 1864 Welwyn Ave., Des Plaines, was awarded the Illinois PTA Golden Jubilee Scholarship at the PTA District 21 pre-convention conference held recently at the Glenview Community Church. She is one of 36 students to receive this award.

Suzanne, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sciez, is a senior at Maine West where she ranks in the top 1 per cent of her class. She plans to attend Northwestern University for a degree in special education and hopes to teach young people with learning disabilities and language problems.

The Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers Golden Jubilee Scholarship program was started in 1950 in commemoration of its 50th anniversary.

Despite defeat of bill

Hopes for juvenile court still alive

Supporters of a defeated legislative bill that called for the organization of a juvenile court in the Northwest suburbs said the court may still be established.

Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, co-sponsor of the bill with Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette, said Wednesday she was "disappointed" that the bill failed to win committee approval, but that a juvenile court might still be formed by an order from Cook County Circuit Court Chief Judge John S. Boyle.

Mrs. Macdonald said a meeting has been scheduled between Boyle and officials from Rolling Meadows, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect at 3 p.m. today in the Civic Center.

Boyle said he would meet with the officials after he learned of the proposed bill. As chief judge, Boyle has the authority to organize a branch juvenile court.

CURRENTLY ALL juvenile cases are heard in the Audy Home at 26th St. and California in Chicago.

Boyle, through an administrative assistant, told Mrs. Macdonald he would be willing to meet to discuss forming a juvenile court to hear cases in the suburbs.

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case, who testified in favor of the bill Tuesday, said Wednesday he would attend the meeting along with Mayor Roland Meyer and representatives from

Security guard nabbed on theft, drug charges

Des Plaines police arrested a Wieboldt's security guard Tuesday in connection with the theft of some $440 worth of stereo equipment from a company warehouse at 300 S. Wieboldt Dr.

Michael Woolfolk, 22, of 1259 S. Troy Ave., Chicago, was apprehended by fellow security guards early Tuesday after police said he was seen loading the components into his car.

The guards then turned Woolfolk over to police who said they found marijuana in his possession and a pistol in the glove compartment of his car.

Woolfolk was charged with possession of stolen property, possession of marijuana and illegal use of weapons. He was released on $2,200 bond and has been scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court June 7.

School board seeks legal ruling on pay hike meet

Oakton begins futures class

A career program in agriculture marketing-commodity futures will be introduced at Oakton Community College for the 1973 fall term, according to Kathleen Arns, assistant dean of instruction for vocational programs.

One of four new career programs which will be added to Oakton's vocational/technical curriculum next fall, the agriculture marketing-commodity futures career program will prepare students for positions as commodity analyst assistants and settlements clerks as well as for back office operations at the commodities exchanges.

Studies indicate that during the past decade the commodity futures trading industry has experienced a 400 per cent growth rate, Mrs. Arns said. The industry now faces a dilemma because of the shortage of trained, competent personnel.

Mrs. Arns said that the graduate of this two-year associate degree program will be prepared to assume entry level positions in the commodities industry. In the Chicago area the industry is centered on the two major exchanges: The Chicago Board of Trade and the Mercantile Exchange.

A certificate program will provide those already working in the commodity future industry an opportunity to take specialized courses, Mrs. Arns said. It will also prepare them for the registered commodity representative certification exam.

In addition to agriculture marketing, a new associate degree program in electronics technology and apprenticeship programs in automotive services and machine technology will be offered at Oakton for the fall term.

Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

"I want very much to be there," Mrs. Macdonald said Wednesday. "It will be an historic meeting, I feel."

Mrs. Macdonald said she sponsored the bill as a way to deal more realistically with juvenile crimes in the suburbs. "I was disappointed in the failure of the bill to pass," she said.

THE BILL WAS presented before a judicial subcommittee Tuesday where it failed on a 3-2 vote. Voting against the measure were Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, and Duff. Although Duff co-sponsored the bill, he reportedly voted against it because he preferred the juvenile court be formed through Boyle's office rather than through an act of the Illinois General Assembly.

"I am really much encouraged that the bill did at least highlight our long-standing need for a local juvenile court," Mrs. Macdonald said. She said the bill was not regionally-oriented to the Chicago area and that Rep. W. Joseph Gibbs, R-Springfield supported the bill strongly.

"It didn't pass but it was a victory," said Case, who along with Arlington Heights Police Capt. Maurice English, testified for the measure. "Even though it failed in committee, it was a success because it has called our attention to Judge Boyle."

"DECENTRALIZATION OF the family courts will serve both the witnesses and the accused," English said. "It would also give the local community a better understanding of those problems with juvenile offenders. Because of the huge caseload, family courts should be organized on the same lines as the Circuit Court."

"My rationale for this was that there are circuit courts all over but only one court to handle thousands of juvenile cases," Case said. "If we can call this to the attention of Chief Boyle, I think it is great."

Circuit Court Judge Anton Smigiel said the defeat of the bill for the suburban juvenile court in the legislature will "be of little significance because the need is still there whether the bill is passed or defeated."

Smigiel said Judge John Boyle and police officials are working separate and independent of the Illinois General Assembly, adding that it doesn't make sense for the legislature to dictate to the circuit court what type of courts they will maintain.

The proposed extension of the Cook County Juvenile Court is still possible and his recently appointed committee of five suburban juvenile officers will still be conducting their study of why the court should be established.

Hines, school board attorney, will attend the meeting. Nita Stamm, an active parent in the district and third vice president of the School Community Council, also will attend the meeting as an "interested party."

No definite time for the meeting has been arranged. It is expected to be sometime Tuesday or Wednesday in the office of Roza Gossan, assistant state's attorney, in Niles.

The April 13 meeting was called to discuss the superintendent's contract. By a 4-3 vote, the board approved a 10 per cent pay hike for Ervitt.

The raise boosts Ervitt's salary to about $35,000 annually for the remaining two years of his three-year contract.

BOARD MEMBER Judy Zanca has contended that the meeting was illegal because notice of the meeting did not fully comply with the law. She contends the pay raise should not be granted since it was approved at that meeting.

Allen Sparks, board president, said the board had received an opinion from Hines on the legality of the meeting, but decided to get an additional opinion from the state's attorney's office.

Sparks said the meeting with the assistant state's attorney was requested "to discuss the whole situation."

Sparks said if the opinion of the state's attorney is that the meeting was legal, he expects the pay raise to remain in effect.

If the assistant state's attorney says the meeting was illegal, Sparks said he expects the pay raise to be nullified. He said the raise would have to be brought up again at another board meeting.

MRS. ZANCA was one of the three board members who opposed the superintendent's raise. Gerald Smiley and Ervitt Poklaski also voted against the raise.

Two of the four members who approved the raise, Harry Peterson and Sharrille Hildebrandt, were lame duck board members. They did not seek reelection and were replaced on the board three days after the April 13 meeting.

Joining Peterson and Mrs. Hildebrandt in supporting the raise were Sparks and Al Domanico.

KIMO DOESN'T seem as eager to play as his dogmate Beggar, two of the animals available for adoption at Mickie Young's home. Mrs. Young already has more than enough dogs to keep her busy, with 31 canines of her own in the farmhouse near Lake Zurich. Two other dogs and 10 cats are available for adoption "only to good families," Mrs. Young said.

Mickie digs dogs—they really dig her

by JULIA BAUER

Mickie Young's heart is bigger than her pocketbook, and her biggest weakness is dogs — all sizes, all kinds and all in the house.

Although her attachment to canines began when she was a child, the real boom in the dog population around Mrs. Young started when she discovered animal shelters and anti-cruelty centers were killing dogs and other animals if no one appeared to adopt them.

As she made the rounds of police stations and shelters searching for homeless dogs, Mrs. Young began accumulating an array of animals, until now her own pets include 31 dogs, even more cats and an occasional bird or fox. And there's a personable old steed thrown into the throng, grazing in the front yard.

She won't part with any of her own animals, but Mrs. Young took on an additional burden recently. She agreed to keep several animals for Save-A-Pet, a Highland Park organization which keeps deserted animals indefinitely, until good homes are found. Mrs. Young's job is finding such homes for the dogs and cats she is keeping for Save-A-Pet.

A NUMBER OF the animals have already been given away, but there are still four dogs and 10 cats available for adoption.

"I would like to keep them all myself," Mrs. Young admitted. But she says she simply can't afford to take on the extra dogs and cats. It costs $15 a day now to feed her own animals.

When Mrs. Young isn't driving a school bus, she and her mother make the rounds cleaning the cages where cats and some of the dogs who are not housebroken are kept, feeding the crew and giving each animal some individual attention.

"I don't believe in animals running loose," Mrs. Young said. During the day, a few of the dogs are allowed in the yard, on 20-foot chains. And there's a mesh runway for some longer-distance exercise. But Mrs. Young is too concerned for the animals' safety to let them loose on the countryside near Lake Zurich.

A year and a half ago Mrs. Young and her husband rented a farmhouse at Quin-tan and Cuba roads to provide more room for their brood.

MRS. YOUNG BLAMES irresponsible pet owners for the unmanageable boom in the animal population. If she had her way, only licensed breeders would be allowed to breed animals for profit, eliminating the novice breeders who buy a pair of purebred dogs to breed them for the pin money realized when the puppies are sold. The current practices result in puppies being sold to unfit owners. And unfit owners frequently wind up giving their pets to an animal shelter or dumping them in the country, Mrs. Young said.

"These dogs can't speak for themselves. So we have to speak for them. They don't want to die," Mrs. Young said, as the tears welled up in her eyes at the thought of an animal being put to death.

All of her animals, including those to be given away have all had required shots, Mrs. Young said.

"Every veterinarian in the area knows me," she said.

And nearly every Saturday means baths for at least five of the dogs.

Just cleaning up after the pets requires a monumental effort. Mrs. Young said she and her mother change the papers in the cages about seven times a day. Fleas and other pests are controlled with flea powder sprinkled under the newspaper in the cages. Most of her dogs are housebroken.

RIGHT NOW her biggest concern is getting good homes for the extra pets. Mrs. Young said the financial strain is just too great to put up with much longer, but she won't "dispose" of the pets to anyone but families who really want them.

There are at least 100 other dogs available for adoption through Save-A-Pet, Mrs. Young said, adding that some of the older, calmer animals would be ideal for elderly couples seeking the companionship of a pet.

Potential pet owners may call Mrs. Young at 438-8198 to learn more about the four dogs and ten cats needing homes. Blue-eyed Kimo, one of the pets, is still a puppy, looking something like a combination of German Shepherd and Husky. Then there's Beggar, a small black dog with big brown eyes. But despite their individual differences, all 14 animals have one thing in common — they need their own family.

Big festivities to mark nation's, village's birthdays

Elk Grove Village will have a summer-long celebration in 1973 to salute the 200th anniversary of the nation and the 20th birthday of the village.

"I hope every organization, church and individual will participate in the celebration in some form — from block parties to community-wide events," said Trustee Nanci Vanderweel, celebration committee chairwoman. She said yesterday that planning of the affair probably will begin this fall.

Mrs. Vanderweel said she would like groups such as churches, PTAs and Scouts to develop their own ideas for the celebration, and her committee would coordinate all the efforts. The committee will try to avoid situations in which events are duplicated or functions are scheduled for the same weekend, she said.

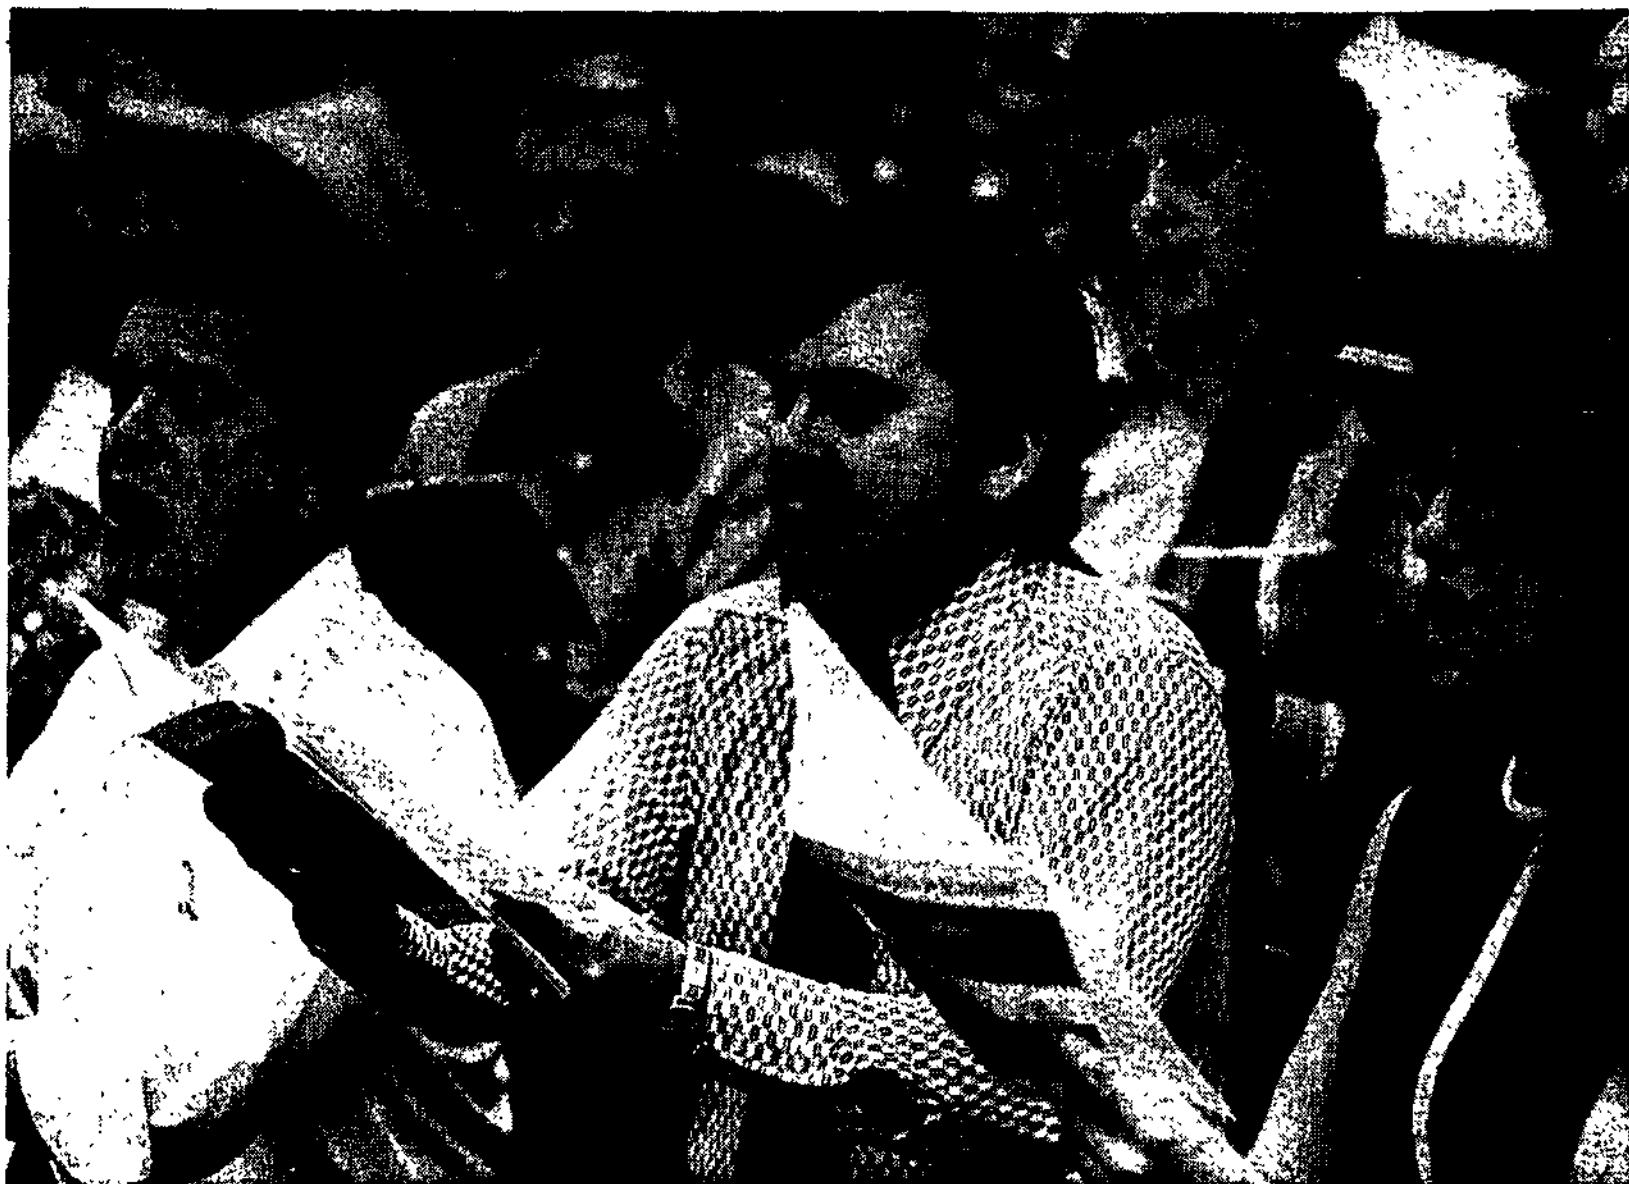

ONE OF the first duties of the committee will be to choose a theme for the celebration that will relate the two anniversaries to each other, she said.

"I truly believe that the coincidence of the 200th and 20th birthdays is significant, and I'm happy the village and the nation will be celebrating our birthdays together," Mrs. Vanderweel said. "We're a young community, and this is a young nation."

Mrs. Vanderweel said she sees the celebration as a time to reflect on where the village and country have been and where they are headed. "Personally, I like birthdays and I'd like to see the village go all out to celebrate this one," she said.

Although the committee has yet to develop an overall plan for the festivities, Mrs. Vanderweel suggested that churches and other local groups could start to form special committees to plan their individual functions over the next three years. She added that local groups will be contacted for their ideas this fall, and the events would then be coordinated.

Vets to be cited at concert

A special tribute to Vietnam veterans and their mothers will be included in the Elk Grove Festival Chorus and Northwest Symphony Orchestra of Chicago concert for Mother's Day.

The concert will be at 3 p.m. Sunday at Elk Grove High School, Arlington Heights Road and Elk Grove Boulevard.

Concert selections will be Johannes Brahms' "Liebeslieder Walzer" (Love Song Waltz), George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and R. Vaughan Williams' "Donna Nobis Pacem" (Grant Us Peace).

Michael Madden and his mother, Eleanor Madden, will symbolically represent all Vietnam veterans and their mothers at the concert. Michael is an Infantry veteran from Vietnam. His father, Edward Madden, is commander of Elk Grove Village VFW Post 9284.

The chorus and orchestra will be under the direction of Anthony Mostardo, Clearmont School principal.

Featured soloists for the concert will be: Laura Kendall, soprano, and Ralph Cole, baritone, for "Donna Nobis Pacem"; Renee Kemmer, soprano, Marvin Kinney, tenor, Camille Tholl, soprano, Diane Danta, alto, Lois John, Tenor, and Clark John, bass, for "Liebeslieder Walzer"; and Beverly Jarosch, piano soloist for "Rhapsody in Blue."

Tickets for the concert are $2 for adults and $1 for students. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

"DONA NOBIS PACEM" (Grant Us Peace) will be one of the selections presented by the Elk Grove Festival Chorus and the Northwest Symphony Orchestra at a special Mother's Day concert at 3 p.m. Sunday at Elk Grove High School.

The concert will honor all Vietnam veterans and their mothers.

Only one dissenting view

June 9 school referendum studied

Only one person offered dissenting opinions during an informal panel discussion of the $1.25 million bond referendum that will be conducted June 9 by Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59.

The panel was part of the Dist. 59 School Community Council meeting Wednesday night.

Taking part in the panel were school board members Judy Zanca, Emil Bahmaier, Al Domanico and Charles Knaup; Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration; Leah Cummins, district community relations specialist and Joseph Stecker, SCC member.

The bond issue, if passed, would be used for the remodeling of Grove and Dempster junior high schools. Included in the remodeling is replacement of heating and ventilating systems, relocation of certain classrooms and small additions to both schools.

ACCORDING TO district figures, the referendum, would increase real estate tax rates by three cents per $100 assessed valuation. The current rate for the bond and interest fund is 56 cents per $100 valuation. This rate is scheduled to drop to 47 cents per $100 valuation in next year's budget. Even if the referendum were passed, the tax rate would still be below current levels.

Suspect in auto theft captured

A man being sought by Chicago police for auto theft was arrested Tuesday after police said he sped away from a Des Plaines service station without paying for a $4 gasoline purchase.

Elk Grove Village police apprehended the man, Kevin Walker, 27, of 1200 W. Sherwin, Chicago, shortly after he left the Town and Country service station near Mount Prospect Road and Oakton Street and turned him over to Des Plaines police.

Police said they learned after taking Walker into custody that the auto had been stolen late Monday from a north-west side Chicago garage.

Walker was later turned over to Chicago police. Charges of theft against Walker were dropped in lieu of the Chicago charges, police said.

Stecker said some of the remodeling is needed, but the referendum includes unnecessary and expensive plans. He said, "I can't fully support the referendum. I favor the needed remodeling, but are we getting our money's worth? Are we getting $1 worth of goods for every $1 spent?"

Stecker agreed that the heating and ventilating systems have to be replaced and the learning centers in the schools need improvement. He said, however, that he is opposed to the relocation of rooms and the building of additions, especially at Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

According to Stecker, when Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines is ready, Dempster's student population will drop by about one-third. Friendship School is expected to open in September.

DOMANICO COUNTERED Stecker's objections by saying the relocations and additions would improve the "production" of the teachers and counselors.

He agreed that Dempster's student population would decline, but said the school is now over-crowded.

"It is really unfair — in some cases unhealthy — to have Dempster and Grove exist as they do now," said Domanico.

Perry said when Dempster and Grove were built in 1960 the district was growing rapidly and was forced to build schools "as fast and as cheaply as possible." He said the district did a "commendable job" in building the schools considering the circumstances, but now the schools have to be improved.

SINCE THE SCHOOLS were built, Dempster has had five additions and Grove has had four. Perry said that after so many additions, "the buildings and the educational programs don't match together very well."

About 40 persons attended the SCC meeting, the last regular meeting for the current school year. New officers were elected for the coming year.

Elected were: Nita Stamm, president; Claran Stecker, first vice-president; David Bell, second vice president; Mary Kloster, third vice president, and Mary Ann Wood, secretary.

The president's race was the only contested election. Mrs. Stamm defeated Dolly Burton, 15 to 11, in the voting.

The nation

Former Nixon administration cabinet members John Mitchell and Maurice Stans were indicted yesterday on charges they sought to obstruct an investigation by a federal agency in exchange for a secret $200,000 cash contribution to Nixon's reelection campaign.

President Nixon has named CIA director James Schlesinger to replace Elliot Richardson as secretary of defense. He also named John Connally as special adviser.

The Pentagon Papers trial was brought to the verge of dismissal of charges when an FBI report indicated that Daniel Ellsberg's telephone conversations had been tapped but that infor-

Most electronic systems aboard Skylab and its rocket were checked and found free of lightning damage, and the countdown proceeded unhindered toward Monday's launch.

In a major attack against President Nixon's Indochina policy, the House blocked a transfer of funds at the Pentagon to relieve money shortages caused by the bombing of Indochina.

Former White House counsel John Dean III said there was "a concerted effort to get me" but he would refuse to shoulder the blame for others implicated in the Watergate affair.

The state

A measure designed to offset last year's U. S. Supreme Court ruling which held abortions are legal in the first three months, has passed the Illinois House.

Judge Julius Hoffman of U. S. District court has been removed as the judge who will try an explosive Chicago police scandal. Judge William Bauer was assigned to try the case.

Gov. Daniel Walker announced his support for the Oakley Reservoir near Decatur. Construction could begin as early as July of 1974.

For school buses

Gasoline supply expected to last

by STEVE BROWN

The area's faithful yellow school buses should continue to roll for the rest of the school year, but they may have to sputter through the last few days.

With gasoline supplies dwindling, comments from school districts, transportation companies and gas suppliers were cautiously confident.

Generally, it appears that gas supplies should hold up through the end of the school year in this area, but little information is available for the start of classes in September.

A Herald survey of school districts indicated they have been assured by suppliers that gas will be available.

Suppliers polled offered similar responses, but many said they were operating on a week-by-week basis.

"WE SHOULD BE able to fulfill commitments now, but we expect the situation to become more critical by next fall," said Gerald Messenson of Bell Fuel Fuels in Chicago. The company supplies High School Dist. 211 serving Palatine and Schaumburg townships.

Suppliers also indicated substantial price increases may be in the offing, but added that no firm information is available now.

Walter Fiene of Schaumburg Transportation Co. said that his buses will be able to serve Schaumburg Elementary Dist. 54 for the remainder of the school year.

Fiene's supplier, Lake Cook Farm Supply, reaffirmed this, but said the situation is very tight.

"We will be hard-pressed to meet the needs of the customer through next month, but we think that we can do it," explained Lake Cook's Tom Hillard.

He said it is just too early to offer any information on the situation next year.

OFFICIALS OF Ritzenthaler and Davidsmeyer bus companies said they will be able to operate through the remainder of the year.

"We have been warned by suppliers about the shortage, but we are told that needs can be met," one spokesman said. Another warned of increased gas prices.

School officials in Districts 59, 57, 23 and 28 have also been assured their students will have transportation.

In some cases, such as Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, less fuel is being used than has been allocated.

William Colburn, assistant superintendent for business affairs, said Dist. 15 is allocated 24,000 gallons of gas a month and the district is operating below that level.

DES PLAINES area schools, served by United Motor Coach and Scholastic Transit Co. have also been assured they have enough gas to complete the school year.

An official of United Motor Coach said their supplies have been cut about 25 percent, but there should be enough gas to fulfill obligations.

In general, the area gas situation for school transportation appears adequate and not nearly as severe as that facing one bus company which serves the Northbrook-Wilmette area.

A spokesman for the Henkels and Lethenberg Bus Co. said their wholesale supplier was forced to cut them off this week.

"We have been buying our gas at the local service station at about triple the price," he said, adding that he does not think the station can continue to meet their 1,000 gallon-per-day needs much longer.

"I am not sure what we are going to do," he said.

Drums, cash stolen

Some 50 one-gallon drums and $460 in cash were stolen Monday in two separate thefts in Elk Grove Village.

Police said burglars entered Mallory Bottery Co., 2028 Delta Ln., through a window on the northeast side of the plant and stole $460 from two cash boxes.

In another incident thieves took 50 one-gallon drums, worth a total of $100, from Garth Industries, 188 Seegers Ave.

Kenna, Chernick appointed to liquor advisory panel

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek appointed trustees Edward Kenna and Ronald Chernick to a liquor advisory committee this week to help make decisions on issuance, suspension and revocation of liquor licenses.

Zettek said at a village board meeting Tuesday that he was forming the unofficial committee because he felt it would be better to have more than one man making licensing decisions. According to state statutes, the village president is the liquor commissioner in towns of less than 25,000 population.

Also at the meeting, the board repealed a boundary agreement with the City of Wood Dale and passed a new agreement at Wood Dale's request. The new agreement made minor changes in the wording but no alteration in the boundary. According to the agreement, Devon Avenue is the dividing line between the village and Wood Dale in most places.

IN OTHER business:

• Authorization was given to purchase 80 feet of 72-inch storm sewer pipe from Armo Steel Corp. at a cost not to exceed $2,410. Also C. B. Construction Co. was authorized to install the pipe at a cost not to exceed $1,200.

• The village attorney was directed to draw up an ordinance requiring inspection of all sanitary and storm sewers with closed circuit television equipment before the village accepts the sewers from the developers.

• A special-use permit was approved to allow Illinois Bell Telephone Co. to erect a 118-foot communications tower at 10 N. Scott St. The tower is part of an area paging system.

• Trustee Ted Stoddler was appointed

BELEATED ARBOR DAY ceremonies were conducted Wednesday at Clearmont School. Jim Cross and Mark Funk "pitched in" to help plant two trees on school property. The trees were purchased with funds donated

Evaluators single out trades program

by WANDALYN RICE

High School Dist. 211 received some good marks and some suggestions for improvement from a state team that evaluated its vocational education program recently.

The 15-member team spent three days in the district interviewing teachers, administrators and students involved in the district's vocational programs. When it was finished, it submitted a report that singles several areas of the district's program out for praise.

In addition, according to the summary report given district officials, "It must be observed that the team voiced no outstandingly intense criticism of the district. Not only is this unusual, it does indicate a commendable operation on the part of the district."

Evaluation teams visit each school district in Illinois to survey its vocational education program. The Dist. 211 evaluation was its first since the state vocational plan was implemented in 1970. Next year, High School Dist. 211 will be evaluated by the same kind of team. Team members are from high schools, colleges and industry.

ONE OF THE AREAS praised by the state team in Dist. 211 was the building trades program at Schaumburg High School. In that program students are now building a house in a subdivision near the school. The house will be sold after the students finish it.

The team also praised the objectives the district has set up for each one of its programs and the objectives teachers establish for their students. The district was urged to work in improving both the objectives and the understanding teachers and students have of them.

The report also says the district needs between teachers, students and administrators and said improvements should be made in communication with elementary school district vocational programs.

District officials said they are not upset by the criticisms and were taking steps to improve some areas even before the report was made.

"I had the feeling the criticisms that were made were so general they could be applied to any large organization," Associate Supt. Bruce Allergott said.

DONALD HOWARD, vocational coordinator for the district, added, "I don't think they told us a lot that we didn't already know. Many of the things we were planning to do before the evaluation started are solutions for the problems they pointed out."

Among the "solutions" the district had planned in advance are programs this summer to increase the communications between the home economics and industrial education staffs in the high schools and those in the Palatine Township Elementary Dist. 15 and Schaumburg Township Dist. 54.

One of the criticisms that did surprise the administrators was the statement, made several times in the report, that teachers and students in the vocational areas do not feel they are accepted by the rest of the school.

"I THINK THAT'S a carryover," Howard said, "and I think the times are changing this. Vocational education is becoming more readily accepted but you don't change feelings overnight."

Allergott added, "If you remember the post-Sputnik era, not only were you no one unless you were going to college, you were no one unless you were in math and science. I feel we've come a long way since then."

Ten of the district's own staff members, including teachers from some of the schools, have taken part in evaluations of other school districts. Even so, Howard, Allergott and Assistant Supt. Keith Shelton said they have some reservations about how effective the evaluation process is.

"I think the team did a good job taking a look at us in three days," Howard said, "but you've got to remember they only had three days."

In addition, Allergott said he is concerned because all districts are rated on whether they are fulfilling their "potential" as defined by the evaluation team. "I'd like to see a chart ranking us against other school districts. I think we'd come out pretty good," he said.

The state evaluation reports have a reputation for being tough and highly critical, the officials said, and when Dist. 211's report came in they all breathed easier. "The two areas these teams generally pounce on are objectives and guidance," Howard said. "They didn't come down on us too hard so I feel pretty good about it."

Tosto retains his two-year trustee seat

Michael Tosto retained his two-year trustee seat in a recount of the first contested election in Elk Grove Village history.

In a recount of the votes Tuesday by village trustees, Tosto received 1,053 votes to 1,046 votes for his opponent, Alvin Krasnow. The original tally showed Tosto leading Krasnow with 1,054 to 1,049 votes.

The trustees accepted the recount as the official total in the election, and Tosto was reaffirmed as the winner.

Krasnow, who requested the recount because of the close election, said later he was relieved the recount was over and was satisfied the election judges did a good job.

"The recount wasn't to beat him (Tosto), but it was for my own peace of mind because the count was so close," Krasnow said.

Krasnow said that after the votes were counted Tuesday, Tosto came over to him and said, "Al, I promise I'll do a good job for you." Krasnow added he thinks Tosto will do a good job and will work hard as a trustee.

As a member of the plan commission, Krasnow said he will continue to be active in local government.

At the recount Krasnow was represented by attorney Frana Biederman. Richard Dowdle represented Tosto.

Only six of the nine precincts were actually tallied in the recount. The remaining three precincts were counted in a partial recount two weeks ago, and the results of that recount were accepted as valid by both candidates.

Settlement terms unrevealed

2 largest property owners settle Colfax Street suit

Owners of the Wood Street Apartments, who were to pay the largest chunk of any property owners for the proposed W. Colfax Street improvements, yesterday reached an out of court settlement with the village.

Owners of the Palatine Transportation Center, one of the most heavily assessed, also pulled out of the Cook County Circuit Court lawsuit in which they were challenging their share of the $1.4 million road improvements.

The out of court agreement in the two cases was announced in the fourth day of a special assessment trial by attorney LeMoine D. Stitt, representing the two property owners.

Specific terms of the settlements were not disclosed, pending resolution of the remaining 33 companion suits. The jury was told only that the two parcels of property were no longer involved in the trial.

The remaining suits challenge Palatine village officials' decision 2½ years ago to assess Colfax Street property owners 30 per cent — or $419,000 — of the road improvements through special assessment, while the village would provide the remaining 70 per cent — or $979,000 — through motor fuel tax.

THE BREAKDOWN was set on the village's contention that the value of property along the street, between Smith Street and Quentin Road, would be enhanced because of the improvements.

The improvements include widening the street from two to four lanes and installing storm sewers, street lights, sidewalks, curbs and gutters.

Based on the proposed charge of $50 per frontage foot of property, Wood Street Associates, owner of the 132-unit Wood Street apartment complex at the southeast corner of Wood and Colfax streets, would have paid $18,591.20.

L. F. Draper and Associates, owner of the shops adjoining the Palatine train station, was earmarked for an $11,215.76 payment.

Stitt confirmed that the two property owners will pay less than the amount projected originally, but would not say how much.

The compromises were finalized during the lunch break in yesterday's hearing.

Other large property owners still fighting the village include Sparks and Company, owners of the Georgetown apartment complex, which under the 70-30 cost breakdown would pay $15,971; the Delmar R. Zingelmann house at 620 W. Colfax St., $11,503; and Palatine Die Casting Corporation, 300 W. Colfax St., $11,138. Assessments of the other 30 parcels still involved in the suit range from $638 to $8,369.

In yesterday's session, real estate appraiser James J. Curtis Jr., on the stand for the second day as a witness for the property owners, completed his evaluation of the 33 parcels.

CURTIS ESTIMATED market value of nine of the parcels would go up, from .3 improvements. In most cases, he attributed the increase in value to flood relief provided by the proposed storm sewer.

Circuit Court Judge Helen F. McGillicuddy, out of the presence of the jury, denied village motions to throw out Curtis's testimony and to grant a directed verdict (immediately deciding the

Some Sanborn students stage walkout

A handful of students walked out of Gray M. Sanborn School in Palatine yesterday in protest of the suspension of a fellow student.

Martin Moon, principal of Sanborn School, refused to reveal the nature of the student protest stating "this is a confidential thing." Moon's description of yesterday's activities was "some students broke some rules they shouldn't have." He refused to elaborate.

A spokesman at the Palatine Police Department said the department received a call from school officials for assistance in dispersing the students. By the time the police arrived the group had already disbanded and there was no confrontation. Moon denied that the police were called to the school.

Moon said no additional suspensions had been made as a result of the walkout and he was meeting with the students involved and their parents. Things were reported to be back to normal by the close of school.

Mobile driver test unit at Randhurst May 14, 15

A mobile driver's testing unit, staffed by two Illinois driver's license examiners, will be at the Randhurst Shopping Center May 14 and 15.

The secretary of state's licensing facility, a converted bookmobile, will make its debut here, the first stop on a 15-city tour throughout Illinois in May and June.

The license examiners will give written, vision and sign tests and "will be just like a full driver's testing station except there will be no actual driving test," a spokesman for Secretary of State Michael Howlett said yesterday.

The Herald urged such a mobile driver's testing unit in the Northwest suburbs more than a year ago, after plans for a permanent driver station here were delayed. Howlett's aide said the stop in the Northwest suburbs was chosen first because of the public sentiment for a local licensing facility.

He said no site for a permanent facility in the area has been selected. A three-man committee is now searching for a new site.

LAST YEAR, the secretary of state's office announced that a station would be built near Quentin Road between Northwest Highway and Dundee roads north of Palatine. But it was determined a substantial portion of the land was unbuildable.

The mobile unit will hit all the large population areas in the state during the next two months, according to the Howlett spokesman. It will visit Rockford, Moline, Champaign and Lawrenceville this month.

Besides administering the written tests, the state examiners will have records available of all drivers in Illinois and will renew licenses and correct those with misinformation.

JOHNNY MORRIS, former receiver for the Chicago Bears and now a sportscaster for NBC-TV, talked to students yesterday during Career Day at Lincoln School in Palatine. Morris was one of several speakers at the school representing a variety of professions and skills.

Signup to see 'Oliver'

Registration begins Monday for the first special summer event with the Palatine Park District, a bus trip to Mill Run Children's Theater to see the musical "Oliver."

The trip is scheduled for June 12, with the bus departing from the park district office, 262 E. Palatine Rd., at noon and returning at approximately 4 p.m. Cost of the trip is $2.60 per person.

Registrations may be mailed or made in person at the park district office from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays, and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. Forty spaces are available for the trip.

Palatine youth indicted for murder

Israel Pequeno, the 18-year-old Palatine youth charged with the murder of his girlfriend in Rolling Meadows, was indicted for murder this week by a Cook County Criminal Court grand jury.

Pequeno will stand trial for the murder of 17-year-old Sharon Soyka, who was found shot to death in her home at 3717 Oriole Ln. on March 26. Pequeno, who lives at 503 Westwood, Palatine, allegedly shot the girl after police said the two quarreled over Miss Soyka no longer wanting to date the boy.

A court date has not yet been set for the case. Pequeno is being held without bond in Cook County Jail pending trial.

$45,100 for remodeling, renovation of schools

Remodeling and renovation work totaling an estimated $45,100 at seven schools in School Dist. 15 has been included in the tentative 1973-74 building-and-grounds budget.

The board approved the allocation on Wednesday and authorized the architectural firm of Del Bianco, Schwartz and Donatoni to prepare plans and specifications for bidding so the work can be completed before the start of the 1973-74 school year. The work includes:

- Remodeling of the kitchen, transportation and faculty rooms at Stuart Paddock School in Palatine to provide facilities for the Department of Instruction. Estimated cost is $15,000.

- Remodeling and converting a section of the main office at Paddock School into a faculty room at an estimated cost of $3,000.

- Remodeling the cafeteria serving facilities at Paddock and Pleasant Hills Schools in Palatine at an estimated cost of $3,000.

- Remodeling the kitchen at Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows to provide facilities for a band room and relocating the cafeteria serving facilities, at an estimated cost of $4,000.

- Expanding the resource center at Pleasant Hill School. Estimated cost is $1,200.

- Classroom renovations at Jonas Salk in Rolling Meadows and Virginia Lake School in Palatine at an estimated cost of $5,600.

- Completion of the resource centers at Willow Bend School in Rolling Meadows and Lincoln School in Palatine.

Salt Creek parks to offer tennis class

A special group mini tennis lesson plan for residents of Palatine Township is being offered by the Salt Creek Park District in cooperation with the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club.

The lessons will begin the week of May 21 at a cost of $14 for beginners' classes and $15 for other classes.

Beginners' classes will be held Mondays from 8 to 9 p.m., Tuesdays from 10 to 11 a.m. and 9 to 10 p.m., Wednesdays from 1 to 2 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m., and Thursdays from 9 to 10 p.m.

Advanced beginners' classes will be held Mondays from 9 to 10 p.m., Tuesdays from 11 to noon, and Fridays from 1 to 2 p.m. An intermediates' class will be held Fridays from 2 to 3 p.m.

For registration information, call the district at 250-6890.

Joins honor society

Barbara Jean Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, 306 W. Illinois Ave., unincorporated Palatine Township, was recently elected to Gamma Pi Epsilon, a national Jesuit Honor Society for Women, at Marquette University.

Miss Miller was one of 33 women chosen for the honor, based on outstanding scholarship, service to the university and loyalty. She is a senior in physical therapy training and is completing her internship at City of Hospitals in Memphis, Tenn.

Gets Good Conduct pin

Navy Aviation Machinist Mate Third Class John J. Juskey, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Juskey of 3100 Thrush, and husband of the former Penney Cahill of Rolling Meadows, recently received his First Good Conduct Medal for four years of exemplary naval service.

case in favor of the village).

The village's attorney, Kenneth O. Stonesifer, challenged Curtis's credibility, terming his testimony "completely contradictory" and "an affront to the court."

Stonesifer pointed out that Curtis would benefit from the road improvement increase in the property value in knowledge of the properties along Colfax, but failed to project corresponding most cases.

James Brandvik, attorney for the 33 property owners, defended Curtis's testimony as "well-founded," saying that the widening of the road would make no difference to the value of the property. Twenty of the parcels are used for small businesses or manufacturers, seven for houses, and three for apartments. Three of the lots are vacant.

IN TODAY'S session, a real estate appraiser is to testify on behalf of the village. He is likely to uphold the village's contention that the value of the 33 lots would go up by at least 30 per cent because of the road improvements.

Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun also is expected to testify briefly.

Final arguments-instructions to the 12-member jury are tentatively scheduled for Monday.

The jury is to evaluate each of the parcels and to return separate breakdowns for sharing the cost of the road improvements, based on what it considers the increase in value, if any, to the properties.

The jury cannot, however, assess the property more than the 30 per cent amount set by the village.

Baumgartner gains Eagle Scout award

Jim Baumgartner has received the Eagle Scout rank in Scout Troop 48.

Baumgartner, 18, lives at 264 Old Plum Grove Rd. in unincorporated Palatine

Library use increased over last year

More persons used the Palatine Public Library during the last year than in the previous year, with book circulation up by nearly 3 per cent.

The library's annual report, released this week, showed that almost twice as many questions about the use of the library were asked and answered in 1972-73 than in the year before.

Other growth in use of the facilities, at 149 N. Brockway St., came in the children's services department programs and several adult programs.

Friends of the Library, a volunteer group of library patrons, has increased its membership from 10 families at the beginning of the year to 50 families now, according to the report. During the year, the Friends had two book sales, raising money to purchase a set of sculptures that can be checked out from the library for home use.

Administrative librarian Donna Grove told library board members this week that she anticipates expanding the library's business section during the coming year. Other objectives of 1973-74 include adding more adult and children programs and purchasing furniture for the library that can be transferred to a new building if voters approve a referendum to construct a new library.

LOSS OF BOOKS at the Palatine library has been unusually low, compared to other libraries, Mrs. Grove reported. Palatine has a one percent annual loss of books.

New library materials are chosen by librarians holding particular specialties. Staff members at the library currently have subject specialties in business, science, history, literature, fine arts and children's literature.

A microfilm reader-printer was another addition to the library equipment, along with study carrels and new book stacks purchased in the past year.

The current library lacks shelf space for the number of books recommended by the state for a town the size of Palatine. Library officials are planning a building referendum for this fall, to finance a new library on a 1.5 acre site on Benton Street, south of Northwest Highway.

Welfare officer Phillip Prete resigns post

Phillip Prete, Rolling Meadows welfare officer, has submitted his resignation effective June 1.

The announcement of Prete's resignation came this week from Mayor Roland Meyer.

Prete yesterday declined to elaborate on his decision to resign but indicated the controversy which erupted last month concerning the welfare department and the Northwest Opportunity Center was in part responsible.

The controversy surrounded a request from the center for a $2,000 funding contribution from the city. City officials differed sharply on whether to grant the money, with opponents saying the city had its own welfare department to handle problems of the needy and did not need the center's services.

The council eventually voted against the funding and instead increased the city's welfare budget from its 1972 level of $3,000 to $10,600.

"I WOULD prefer not to elaborate on my reasons," Prete said. "I would just as soon have the controversy surrounding the welfare office die out."

"Frankly, this is one of the main reasons why I wanted to resign," he added. He said if "there are people who feel someone else could do better," then he would rather leave the position.

He did not say who he referred to, but indicated he was angered at those who called his position a "patronage" job.

The reference was to charges made at a stormy city council meeting last month when Ald. James Huddleston (4th) said Prete and Assistant Welfare Officer Nicholas Schmitt were Meyer-appointed patronage workers.

MEYER SAID yesterday he regretted Prete's decision to resign but would not try to convince Prete to stay against his will. "I've known Phil a long time and he wouldn't submit his resignation unless he had given it a lot of thought," Meyer said.

Meyer had praise for Prete, calling him a "good man" whom he would "like to keep. I have not given a lot of consideration to who to appoint in his place," Meyer said.

Prete, who was appointed welfare officer last August, said he will not suggest to Meyer a successor because such a move might be misinterpreted by some city officials.

$45,100 for remodeling, renovation of schools

Remodeling and renovation work totaling an estimated $45,100 at seven schools in School Dist. 15 has been included in the tentative 1973-74 building-and-grounds budget.

The board approved the allocation on Wednesday and authorized the architectural firm of Del Bianco, Schwartz and Donatoni to prepare plans and specifications for bidding so the work can be completed before the start of the 1973-74 school year. The work includes:

- Remodeling of the kitchen, transportation and faculty rooms at Stuart Paddock School in Palatine to provide facilities for the Department of Instruction. Estimated cost is $15,000.

- Remodeling and converting a section of the main office at Paddock School into a faculty room at an estimated cost of $3,000.

L'I' ABNER, Daisy May, Mammy Yokum and the rest of the Dogpatch clan will be at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex this weekend for the park district's 3rd Annual Ice Spectacular. Shown

Paradowski. "L'I' Abner" will be performed at 7:30 p.m. tonight and tomorrow and 1:30 p.m. tomorrow and Sunday. Tickets for all performances are $1.50 for adults and $1 for children.

City's fuel supplies are cut 20 pct.

The major supplier of fuel for Rolling Meadows' city vehicles has notified local officials that fuel supply will be cut this year to 80 per cent of last year's total.

The cutback in supply, however, is not expected to affect normal city vehicle operation, according to Supt. of Public Works John Hennessy.

Hennessy said yesterday the city would not have used as much fuel this year as last year because of new department fuel use guidelines adopted this year. The guidelines call for no more unnecessary engine idling, a move which alone can save the department 20 per cent in fuel consumption, Hennessy said.

THE CUTBACK WAS announced by the Union 78 Oil Co., which supplies the city with diesel, regular and high octane gasoline fuel. The cut so far has affected only the diesel supply, according to the public works department.

The Petrolene Co., suppliers of the city's propane fuel, which is used in police cars and some public works vehicles, has not said a cut will be made, but Hennessy said an increase in the cost of that fuel is expected.

WORD THAT Union Oil would be cutting back on the fuel supply was sent to the public works committee, according to committee chairman Ald. Daniel Weber (4th). Weber said the city will be supplied with only 80 per cent of last year's total fuel supply.

Public works department records do not have figures for the city's fuel consumption last year, but figures indicate an average monthly consumption of 4,000 to 5,000 gallons of regular octane and ethyl gas and 2,000 gallons of diesel fuel. Propane fuel is consumed at a rate of about 1,200 gallons monthly.

THE CUTBACK, which begins this month, so far has been limited to the diesel fuel supply. Hennessy said the quota delivered to the city for May was 1,450 gallons, or about 80 per cent of last year's May supply of 1,800 gallons. The

In the Pentagon Papers trial, Judge Matt Byrne put off for another day the decision to dismiss all charges. An abrupt end to the trial seemed imminent after it was disclosed from FBI reports that Daniel Ellsberg had been wiretapped during 1969 and 1970. That information had not been made available during the trial.

The U.S. Steel Corp. yesterday announced a price hike of 4.8 per cent on just under a third of its raw products. The move was expected to boost the cost of materials used in producing cars and appliances from $8 to $12 a ton.

Former Nixon administration cabinet members John Mitchell and Maurice Stans were indicted yesterday on charges they sought to obstruct an investigation by a federal agency in exchange for a secret $200,000 cash contribution to Nixon's reelection campaign.

President Nixon has named CIA director James Schlesinger to replace Elliot Richardson as secretary of defense. He also named John Connally as special adviser.

Land for shops, homes

1st OK for annexation plan

A special Rolling Meadows Zoning Commission has approved plans to annex land for a small shopping center and homes near Emerson and Plum Grove roads.

Final approval must come from the city council.

The plan was presented Wednesday by Elmer Barnes, a real estate developer who lives in Palatine adjacent to the property, Barnes told the commission he also is negotiating with a savings and loan institution which would like to build on the property. The savings and loan institution would be the first in Rolling Meadows, Barnes said.

A junior shopping center consisting of small shops would be included on the commercial site, Barnes said.

Barnes also proposed building apartments on the residential section of the site to consist of several one-bedroom and studio apartments. But the commission told Barnes it did not want such construction and would prefer to see instead condominium, townhouse or medical center construction.

THE LAND, which is located north of Plum Grove School, has a present tax yield of $1,200, Barnes noted. He said with his proposed improvements the tax yield could be increased to $4,500 to $5,000. If a shopping center is built on the site, sales tax rebates would also come to the city, he added.

Commissioner Richard Blane asked Barnes if building on the land, which is partially flood plain, would cause flooding problems for Plum Grove School. Barnes said he intended to extend a 12-inch storm sewer from the Meadowedge apartment project north of the site to the area in order to avoid flooding problems.

He added that if city officials requested it, he could include retention lakes on the property.

No variations from the city zoning code were requested by Barnes.

The commission agreed to recommend the annexation and rezoning of the site as a planned development, which requires the entire parcel to be developed as a unit.

Mobile driver test unit at Randhurst May 14, 15

A mobile driver's testing unit, staffed by two Illinois driver's license examiners, will be at the Randhurst Shopping Center May 14 and 15.

The secretary of state's licensing facility, a converted bookmobile, will make its debut here, the first stop on a 15-city tour throughout Illinois in May and June.

The license examiners will give written, vision and sign tests and "will be just like a full driver's testing station except there will be no actual driving test," a spokesman for Secretary of State Michael Howlett said yesterday.

The Herald urged such a mobile driver's testing unit in the Northwest suburbs more than a year ago, after plans for a permanent driver station here were delayed. Howlett's aide said the stop in the Northwest suburbs was chosen first because of the public sentiment for a local licensing facility.

He said no site for a permanent facility in the area has been selected. A three-man committee is now searching for a new site.

LAST YEAR, the secretary of state's office announced that a station would be built near Quentin Road between Northwest Highway and Dundee roads north of Palatine. But it was determined a substantial portion of the land was unbuildable.

The mobile unit will hit all the large population areas in the state during the next two months, according to the Howlett spokesman. It will visit Rockford, Moline, Champaign and Lawrenceville this month.

Besides administering the written tests, the state examiners will have records available of all drivers in Illinois and will renew licenses and correct those with misinformation.

District won't exercise option for school site

Palatine Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 will not exercise its option to buy a school site in the northwest corner of the district.

The board voted Wednesday to release Kassuba Development Corp., owners of a 40-acre parcel north of Dundee Road and east of Long Grove Road, from an agreement to sell four acres to the district at $6,000 per acre.

Kassuba had donated two acres adjacent to the four-acre parcel to the district and the board will return this property to Kassuba. In lieu of the land, Kassuba will donate $18,000 to Dist. 15. The donation is to help relieve any hardship the proposed Kassuba apartment development there will create because of the tax lag between when the district receives children from the project and when it receives money from the project.

THERE WERE several factors in the board's decision not to exercise its option, according to Joe Kiszka, deputy superintendent. He explained the land, referred to as "the elephant's trunk," was long and narrow and would have been difficult to build on; six acres is not really sufficient for a school site; and soil borings had revealed there was water a foot under the ground.

The board does not own a school site in the northwest corner of the district at this time. His area is largely undeveloped but zoned for apartment and condominiums and expected to be built on soon.

It is believed the board will approve the purchase of a site in this area at its June meeting. The approval was expected last night but was delayed because bad weather prohibited the taking of soil borings. Details on the location and size of the site are not being released until the purchase is finalized.

supply to be delivered for June will be about 2,400 gallons, or 80 per cent of last year's 3,000 gallon June supply.

Union Oil officials said the cut was due to the current gas shortage. Hennessey said he did not know whether the cutback might be increased at a later date but said the department is presently not worried about its supply.

"We're not worried about it," Hennessey said. "We will be able to operate even with the cutback." Hennessey said the department had begun fuel conservation efforts even before the announced cut.

"We don't let engines idle unnecessarily anymore," he said. He said public works vehicles formerly were left with motors running while employees worked on a job, but as of Jan. 1 Hennessey issued an order that motors were to be turned off in such cases.

HE SAID EVEN police department squad cars have been complying with the rule as well. Eliminating the engine idling alone would enable the city "to live within the 20 per cent cut," Hennessey said. "If they had supplied us with the full amount we got last year, we would have had a 20 per cent surplus."

"They didn't prompt us to do this," Hennessey added of the department's conservation efforts. "I believe we have increased our efficiency to and from jobs. We're paying attention more and more to the hours driven rather than the miles driven."

Weber said, however, that his committee will take up the fuel matter at its next meeting in June. "The fact that they (Union Oil) won't be able to supply the fuel might mean they can't fulfill their contract with us," Weber said.

THE CITY IS presently in the first

Palatine youth indicted for murder

Israel Pequeno, the 16-year-old Palatine youth charged with the murder of his girlfriend in Rolling Meadows, was indicted for murder this week by a Cook County Criminal Court grand jury.

Pequeno will stand trial for the murder of 17-year-old Sharon Soyka, who was found shot to death in her home at 3717 Oriole Ln. on March 26. Pequeno, who lives at 503 Westwood, Palatine, allegedly shot the girl after police said the two quarreled over Miss Soyka no longer wanting to date the boy.

A court date has not yet been set for the case. Pequeno is being held without bond in Cook County Jail pending trial.

3 spruce up school grounds; win pins

Special ecology pins were awarded recently to three fourth grade students at Willow Bend School in Rolling Meadows for their efforts in beautification of the school grounds.

Greg Daley of Forest Estates, David Milling of Rolling Meadows, and Ken Delisi of Arlington Heights received the pins from the Willow Bend PTA.

year of a five-year contract with Union Oil. The company charges the city per gallon about 25 cents for ethyl, 23 cents for regular and 23 cents for diesel fuel.

Propane fuel from Petrolane costs the city 24 cents per gallon.

"I think first we should take the necessary steps to see if we can get the necessary supply of fuel," Weber said. He said this could mean letting for bids to supplement the Union Oil contract.

If supplemental supplies cannot be found, Weber said emergency city vehicles in the police and fire department would be given fuel priority. Emergency public works vehicles would be next on the priority list. "I don't think we'll run into this but if it does happen, the committee will have to deal with it," he added.

Plea for bakery zoning to city

The attorney representing the Continental Bakery Co., seeking permission to build a bakery on Kirchoff Road, east of Ill. Rte. 53, will seek zoning for the site from Rolling Meadows rather than Cook County.

Dwight Adams, the attorney, said a presentation before the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals last week to rezone the land from residential to commercial use was "a token effort." Adams said he could not obtain a continuance from the board on the scheduled hearing and presented only limited testimony in favor of the rezoning.

Adams said he did so because the bakery company would rather get its zoning change from Rolling Meadows and annex the site because the firm needs the city's water supply.

THE 1½-ACRE SITE is currently in unincorporated Cook County.

Adams' statement came after a city council discussion Tuesday in which city officials expressed surprise that the county zoning hearing had been held Friday. Ald. Kenneth Retzke (8th) said at the council meeting he had been told a city representative would be at the hearing to object to the proposed rezoning.

Mayor Roland Meyer responded that no one from the city had attended because Adams had told Meyer a continuance rather than the hearing would be sought.

A group of residents from the 5th Ward Holly Lane area, whose property is adjacent to the site, attended the meeting to protest the rezoning. The residents said because part of the site is flood plain land, the bakery construction would add to flooding problems in the area.

ADAMS SAID Wednesday that only the southeast corner of the site is flood plain and that the bakery company does not propose to build on that part of the land. "I can understand the concern of the residents, but we would provide screening from the residential area and the site would be landscaped," Adams said.

The city can file an objection to the proposed rezoning within 21 days of the hearing, Adams added. He said he did not think the county zoning commissioners would grant the zoning change but added "we didn't really want to go through the county. We would rather get the zoning from Rolling Meadows."

A special city zoning commission will consider the bakery request at a meeting May 30. The city could decide to annex the property and rezone it. Such a move would override any decision the county board might make on the proposal.

Legion to sponsor Memorial Day parade

The annual Memorial Day parade in Rolling Meadows will be sponsored again this year by American Legion Post 1251.

The parade, whose theme this year is "peace," will include floats, marching units, and decorated bicycles.

Parade Marshal Wil Hutchison said trophies will be awarded to youth group floats, adult group floats, and a special award, the Rusty Fields award, to the best decorated bike.

Hutchison said the bike award is being given this year in memory of Fields, a post member who marched each year with the children on bikes in the parade.

The parade will begin at 10:30 a.m. in the parking lot of St. Colette Church, Meadow Drive and Grouse Lane. It will proceed north on Meadow Drive and west on Kirchoff Road to the city hall. Awards will be presented at the reviewing stand there.

Minibus weighed for transportation of senior citizens

Transportation needs for the elderly will be studied by a commission of senior citizens from throughout Schaumburg Township.

Schaumburg Township Auditor Daniel Stowe told senior citizens Wednesday the township is anxious to provide a minibus for their use by the program and its operation must be their responsibility.

Representatives of two active senior citizens groups in the township, the Northwest Chapter of the American Association for Retired Persons and the S & H Golden Group of the Schaumburg Park District will have members on the committee.

Other representatives will come from the villages of Schaumburg, Hanover Park and Hoffman Estates.

Stowe was appointed to investigate the feasibility of providing a transportation system for the elderly by Township Supervisor Vern Laubenstein.

Laubenstein said a mini-bus could be purchased by the township with federal revenue sharing funds. Last month he charged Stowe and co-chairman Paul Derda, director of recreation for the Schaumburg Park District, with finding out if there was a need for such a program.

Stowe said response from senior citizens present for the first committee meeting proved the program was wanted and needed.

"NOW I WANT all of you to help me convince the board of auditors that you are interested in operating the program," said Stowe.

Derda offered the Park District's help and said the district would work with the commission on scheduling.

The commission will be named next week. Its first duty will be to come up with firm cost estimates and a definition of the program.

The proposal will then be submitted to the board of auditors for its approval.

Stowe said the 1970 census showed there are more than 800 senior citizens in the incorporated areas of the township alone.

He estimated that more than 60 per cent of those senior citizens have no transportation and would take advantage of a mini-bus service.

The minibus could be used for shopping, doctor or dentist visits, trips to the library, train station or special senior citizen activities.

Early education for 'unique' needs

by JERRY THOMAS

Hurling himself into the haven of a teacher's open arms, three-year-old Paul shut his eyes tight and sought comfort.

He'd tried to speak, but the words were just not coming out. But someone was there, to hold him and let him try again later.

Paul and his classmates take part in an early education program in Schaumburg Township Elementary School Dist. 54, for children with "unique" needs.

IT'S NOT THE ordinary pre-kindergarten class.

Some children, such as Paul, did not speak when they first came. Others, spoke "gibberish" or had minor delays in language, said Jennie Swanson, early childhood specialist.

This is just one developmental delay that parents should look for in their preschoolers to determine if they belong in the early education program, she added.

Paul, drawn by the piano music and the singing of another teacher, rubbed his eyes open with a chubby fist and ran to sit again with the others.

AS EACH CHILD in turn was serenaded by the others and asked "How are you," some responded. Some answers were coaxed, but never forced and unusual behavior went unnoticed.

Paul's turn came — "I fine," he shouted out. His grin was matched by his teacher's.

Now it was Vileen's turn. Pleased at first by the attention, she turned painfully shy and hid her head in her skirt.

Giggling as she peeked out, she said "I'm wet." Her skirt was damp from bathing a doll earlier.

No two classes are the same, said Miss Swanson, explaining "these very special children need very special personal attention."

"We believe each child is capable of learning and for children with special needs the most crucial years of developmental learning occur between birth and four," she said.

THE EARLY Development Program is designed to give children who need it, the extra help that will allow them to go into general education programs when they are kindergarten age.

Although recent legislation states schools must provide such help for children three and four, the practice is not new in District 54.

"We've been bootlegging kids in for years," said teacher Carol Cernak. "How can you turn down a parent who asks you for help?" she asked.

Miss Swanson said District 54 now has

1,500 expected to 'Walk for Mankind' tomorrow

Persons in need of medical treatment in foreign nations and in parts of this country will be the winners tomorrow when thousands of area residents begin the "Walk for Mankind."

Organizers predicted yesterday that from 1,500 to 2,000 persons will step off from Schaumburg High School at 8 a.m. to begin a 20-mile walk to raise funds for Project Concern.

The walk, sponsored by the Schaumburg Jaycees, will cover a route through Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg. Walkers have been asked to obtain sponsors who have pledged to donate money for each mile walked.

Marty Meyer, project chairman said rock bands will perform at Schaumburg High School, start and finish point for the walk, and at Conant High School which is along the walk route. Mother Freedom and Headstone Circus will play during the day.

A REPRESENTATIVE of Hammond Organ in Elgin will also play, he added.

Mayer said he has been impressed with the number of persons who have volunteered their time and energy to help raise funds for the project.

Walkers may register until 9:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Organizations which enter a group of walkers will receive 25 per cent of the funds they raise for their own treasury.

Special bus service to and from Schaumburg High School will be provided. Buses will pick up walkers from 7:30 a.m. until 9:30 a.m. at Conant High School, Hale and Schaumburg Schools, Robert Frost Junior High School, and St. Marcelline Catholic Church.

MAYER SAID the bus will also operate along the walk route to pick up walkers who may drop out and return them to the starting point.

The latest walkers to register for the walk are: Chris Mayer, Coleen Ashmore, Andy Vodvarka, Bill Kahle, Bob Lewis, Kurt Browner, Margaret Bishop, Pam Conrad, Kim Travis, Donna Berryhill, Bev Corr, Cindy Slevertson, Blake Thevenard, Lavaun Ashmore, Sue Pawlish, Rich Pawlish, Ed Bell, Tony Slave-nitis, Nancy Goodwin, Kathy Mervis, Christine Meyer, Pat Fischer, Cindy Fischer, Leslie Griffith, Nancy Heuer, Olivia Jacob, Tom Schnecke, Pam Gillis, Lori Lee, Joe Fojtik, Steve Monte, David Zimmerman.

Also Kathy Trost, Kim Heath, Patty Sheffield, Linda Celmer, Kathy Boesch, Liz Sullivan, Phyllis Bloom, Barb Quella, Diana Naponelli, Carol Lannotti, Pam Brouil, Diana Dunster, Pam Mendrick, Sherri Manthinsen, Dawn Petel, Mary Tompkins, Chris Schneider, Leasa Smith, Karen Ulaszek, William J. Village to rule on Hoffman Estates Plaza Phase II

The Hoffman Estates Village Board will rule Monday on site plan approval for Phase II of the Hoffman Plaza Shopping Center. Approval for Phase II was recommended Wednesday by the village plan commission.

Phase I of the center, located along Roselle Road between Golf and Higgins roads, has been under way since last fall. The new phase will contain a Wille Home Improvement Center, a new post office building, and a Goodyear tire and battery shop.

Plan commission approval had been held for months while problems over water retention facilities were resolved. The water will be retained in shallow ponds in the parking lot and in large retention ditches at the perimeter of the property. These ditches will be fenced in for safety and esthetic reasons.

No rooftop retention will be provided because John Hossack, village public works superintendent said the parking lot retention is adequate, reported Herbert Schaeffer, land planner. Schaeffer did agree, at the commission's suggestion, to eliminate one access drive onto Apple Street.

THE COMMISSION said the extra drive would increase the noise and traffic on Apple Street and the adjacent residential area. If the police find trucks need the additional drive, Schaeffer was given permission to later construct the extra access. Screening will be installed along the eastern edge of the center to block it from residential view.

Construction of a retention pond along Apple Street began last fall and as yet is incomplete. It will be finished as soon as the weather permits, Schaeffer said.

Problems with the subcontractor have also held up work on the pond, he said. Within 30 days he expected the pond would be finished, assuming the weather permits.

A COMFORTING TOUCH during a tired moment lets 3-year-old Paul Grandi know his teacher thinks he is "something special." Children like Paul, who have a special learning need, are being screened now in Dist. 54 for an Early Childhood Education Program that starts this fall.

35 youngsters in classes all taught by special education teachers working on their own time after regular classes. "While the legislation was being considered District 54 was developing its program and conducting sessions on a small scale on a volunteer basis," said Miss Swanson.

THE DISTRICT is now in the process of staffing the department and accepting registrations from parents who want help for their youngsters with unique needs.

Parents are an integral part of the program. During screening they learn that parental involvement is needed to help the child.

Involvement levels vary and they may participate actively in class if they wish or act as parent advisers on the special education committee composed of teachers and administrators.

Miss Swanson said some school conferences are held and if parents are unable to come to classes, teachers give home demonstrations and can make up individual educational plans.

MARILYN RICE, whose daughter Tina is enrolled, said her involvement began by seeing Tina in class.

"I'm now a member of the committee. I have to pay back, in some small way, what this program did for my Tina."

"Tina chattered all the time, but no one could understand her; now she speaks English."

"Now it's my turn to talk. I want to tell parents of kids who need help that recognizing the problem and coming to the school for help is the biggest part of the remedy," she said.

Spring Mill Drive name of new village street

A new street west of Grand Canyon Parkway and between Bode and Higgins roads will be called Spring Mill Drive.

I. Simon and Sons, developer of the Spring Mill housing complex at Grand Canyon and Higgins, are constructing the new north-south street.

Spring Mill Drive will be dedicated to the Village of Hoffman Estates when it is completed. I. Simon has agreed to work with homeowners to the west of the new road who are concerned about the additional traffic that will be generated behind their property.

Some sort of screening, probably a planted barrier, will be installed to block the street traffic from the homeowners' view, a representative of I. Simon said at Wednesday's plan commission meeting.

In other action, the commission approved subdivision of two acres on Higgins Road just west of the Medco Office building. The landowner, Earl Larson, said he planned to sell one portion of his property to a developer who may build an office building.

Larkson said the subdivision was necessary because he lost his major tenant for the office building he originally planned. The buyer would in all probability build the office structure, but this would not be a condition of the sale agreement, he said.

SITE PLAN approval of Interiors By Bruce was also recommended Wednesday by the commission. The 17,341-square-foot building will be constructed in the Barrington Square Center for Industry, along Stonington Road.

The building would serve partially as a retail outlet but primarily as a warehouse, the owner said. Approximately 2,900 square feet would be devoted to furniture showroom, with the remainder of the area a refinishing room, upholstery section, offices, and storage.

Twenty parking spaces will be provided for customers and employees. Ray Larson, the builder, showed landscaping drawings which the commission commended as much more extensive than others planned for the industrial park.

Interiors By Bruce has a main store in Park Ridge.

Can your child do these things?

Recent Illinois legislation calls for services to 3 and 4-year-old children with unique educational needs.

These needs include delays in speech and language development, social and emotional adjustment, and problems with vision, hearing, and physical development.

To help parents determine if their child should be screened for a program beginning in September, the following questions could indicate the child needs special help before he or she reaches kindergarten age.

Dist. 54 will hold screening from May 21 to June 5 for placement in the special program this fall. Parents may call Pat Burke, 529-4200, ext. 56 for an appointment.

Can your 3 to 4-year-old do these things?

1. Walk on a line.
2. Walk up and down stairs.
3. Throw a big ball.
4. Walk on tiptoes.
5. Touch thumb to each of the other finger tips on the same hand.
6. Cut paper with scissors.
7. Say at least one nursery rhyme, poem, or song from memory.
8. Whisper.
9. Brush teeth.
10. Wash hands unassisted.

11. Care for self at toilet.
12. Undress self.

Six clubs band together

Senior citizen council to handle activities, funds

A council to coordinate activities and funding of senior citizen clubs in Mount Prospect has been formed by six of the eight known clubs here.

The Seniors Council would coordinate activities and programming and supervise the spending of money given to senior citizens by the village.

The council idea developed after some clubs complained because one club, the Extensioners, was given $2,500 by the village this year. The clubs met Wednesday night to form the representative council. Each club will have one vote at the council's quarterly meetings.

The council's primary objective will be to organize trips of no longer than eight hours. Transportation for the trips will be paid for with money from the village grant. The trips will be open to all senior citizens, not just the club members.

At Wednesday's meeting, participants decided to "freeze" the village grant money until word is received on the village application to get more senior citizen funding with a larger state grant.

MEETING WITH the club members were Mayor Robert Teichert and his wife and village health officer Marjorie Boswell.

Mrs. Boswell and Joseph Grittani, a member of the Extensioners board of governors, have prepared the state grant application, which they hope to submit next week.

The state program draws money from the federal government under the Older Americans Act. Money is distributed by the Illinois State Council on Aging. The program provides matching funds of $3 for each $1 contributed by the village. Salaries of various village officials, including Mrs. Boswell, can be counted as part of the village contribution because of the time the employees spend with the senior citizens.

Grittani said Wednesday that this brings the total village contribution to about $7,000. The village would be eligible to receive $21,000 under the matching program. That cash, plus the village grant of $2,500, would provide $23,500 for the senior citizen program. That would be enough to hire a full-time staff person to work with senior citizens on a wide range of programs, including counseling.

After Mrs. Boswell and Grittani told the representatives at the meeting about the plans to get the state grant, Grittani said the best they could hope for is a three-year demonstration grant. He said the Seniors Council would have to plan fund-raising activities to carry on the larger programs.

TEICHERT EXPLAINED to the club members that the village had given the money to the Extensioners under the impression that the club represented 80 to 90 per cent of all senior citizens who belong to senior citizen clubs. "It has been brought to our attention that our approach was perhaps wrong. We have to look at it again," he said the board did not intend to create dissension.

Teichert further stated that if the state grant does not come through, he would be willing to ask the village board to designate more money so all the clubs would be treated fairly. "Our error in procedure should not detract from our motivation," he said.

The Seniors council will be formed as soon as the groups tell Mrs. Boswell the names of their selected representatives. She said senior citizens (generally, 50 years or older) who are not in clubs may also contact her if they would like to be represented. Her phone number is 392-6000.

Groups represented at the meeting were: Extensioners, Golden Hours of Community Presbyterian Church, the New Horizon of St. Thomas a Becket Church, St. Raymond Senior Citizens, the Young at Heart of Mount Prospect Community Center, and the Senior Citizen Club of the River Trails Park District. Absent were the Mount Prospect Junior Women's Club Senior Citizen Club and the St. Mark Senior Citizen Club.

FIFTY OF AGNES Duwe's 80 birthday days have been spent in Mount Prospect, and she has watched the town grow almost from the beginning. As she celebrates her 80th birthday today, she recalls many of the gradual changes. She still finds time for her specialties — sewing and gardening — and is proud that she has voted in almost every election since she moved here in 1923.

She used to live here 'in the country'

by KAREN BLECHA

When Agnes Duwe came to town, the population sign read 222.

That was in 1923, when Mrs. Duwe and her husband came to Mount Prospect and moved in at 316 S. Emerson St. The street was a small, gravel lane surrounded by empty lots. The Duwe's Chicago relatives always looked forward to visiting them "out in the country."

The empty lots are gone now and there is no more gravel on the paved street. But Mrs. Duwe, who is 80 today, remembers how it used to be.

"I had lived in Chicago all my life and this was the country to me, which I loved. Farmers still came into town with their horses and wagons. There was a hitching post back of the church (St. Paul Lutheran) and a shed for the horses," she reminisced.

IN THOSE DAYS, Mrs. Duwe could see neighboring farms through her back windows, and occasionally cows wandered into the backyard. She remembers when the Mount Prospect Volunteer Fire Department sounded a siren at noon to remind residents it was time to eat. And she remembers when she'd bundle up her two children for a car ride into Chicago because the cars didn't have any heaters.

"We had a Chevy touring car with running boards," she said. "Even today people ask me what the small house is in the backyard. It was our garage. But it's probably too narrow for any of the cars today."

Back then Busse's Grocery Store, located on what is now Main Street between Northwest Highway and Busse Avenue, was the center of town.

"You could only get pork and beef there, and occasionally veal if they decided to order a calf from Chicago," Mrs. Duwe said. "I would plead with anyone coming out from Chicago to bring me some lamb. I love lamb."

At that time 25 pounds of Sunnyside flour cost 39 cents and you could buy a quart of milk for a nickel, according to Mrs. Duwe. The family also had an ice man who delivered ice whenever they put a card in the front window indicating how much they wanted. Mrs. Duwe still has the ice box, built into the pantry in her kitchen, although she doesn't use it.

WHILE THE WEEKDAYS were busy with canning and cleaning, Sundays were more relaxed.

"I'd get up early in the morning to prepare the roast, potatoes and other food for the big afternoon meal. Then we'd go to church, which lasted longer than it does today. We'd come back, have the meal and usually company came over," said Mrs. Duwe. "The relatives would come out and look at the garden and check on our crops."

When the Duwes first moved to Mount Prospect, there was no running water or indoor toilet. They used an indoor pump near the kitchen sink for water for doing dishes and bathing. For drinking water, they walked a few blocks to an outside pump.

Mrs. Duwe was a dressmaker. "I made dresses for many a young bride in town," she said. Her husband, who died five years ago, rode the train to his job downtown. "I think a monthly pass then

Northgate pupils to attend 'Ike'

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board has approved a temporary boundary change that will send students in the Northgate subdivision in Arlington Heights to Eisenhower School next year.

Currently, students from the subdivision attend John Muir School, which is facing a problem of overcrowding. The school, on Drake Terrace in Prospect Heights, has experienced an increase in students as more and more homes have been completed in Northgate and in the Ivy Hill subdivision, also in Arlington Heights.

According to Muir Prin. Jim Finke, Muir now has 296 students in attendance, with a capacity for 310. According to Finke, the school cannot hold students from both Northgate and Ivy Hill.

Since there are now only eight students from the Northgate subdivision now attending Muir, the administration felt it would be better to transfer the children from Northgate rather than Ivy Hill, which has 60 students attending Muir.

Eisenhower, at Camp McDonald and Schoenbeck Roads, has three classrooms that are not being used and the school will not be adversely affected by the change, according to school officials. The students will be bused, as they are to Muir.

Because of the increase in housing projects in the Dist. 23 area, the administration is now gathering statistics on the possible need for a sixth elementary school and an addition to Muir for the 1974-75 school year.

Grodsky said the study should be completed in July.

Youth in serious shape after mishap

Thomas Buyers, 8, of 315 Hatten Ct., was listed in serious condition yesterday at Northwest Community Hospital after being injured in an auto accident on Busse Road near Central Road Wednesday evening.

According to police, Buyers was injured when he ran into the street and struck the side of a car traveling southbound on Busse Road. The driver, Leonard Minkus of Chicago, told police he was traveling about 20 to 25 miles per hour when he observed a "red form" coming from between two stopped cars in the northbound lanes of Busse Road. He then saw "something" strike his car in the front fender.

Damage to Minkus' car was estimated at $100.

Schools will extend pilot program for gifted children

Pilot programs for academically and creatively gifted children have been extended for another year by the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 school board.

Both programs were started on a pilot basis this year. The program for the academically gifted involved 16 students in the fourth and fifth grades at Eisenhower School who were chosen on the basis of an intelligence test, achievement tests and their teachers' recommendations.

To qualify, the children had to be rated at least three grade levels above their classmates in one area.

Once accepted, students were allowed to spend two hours each day in an "idea lab" working on independent projects.

THE CREATIVELY gifted class was an outgrowth of the program for the academically gifted. It involved 20 students from the first through fifth grades at Eisenhower School.

The academically gifted class cost the district $3,200. However, the district will be reimbursed by the state for this cost next year. According to Supt. Edward Grodsky, state title programs allow pilot projects the first year a school district is given funds.

Then funds are provided for the second and third years to increase the program and disseminate results. "Once you get established, they want you to assume the Former White House counsel John Dean III said there was "a concerted effort to get me" but he would refuse to shoulder the blame for others implicated in the Watergate affair.

The state

A measure designed to offset last year's U. S. Supreme Court ruling which held abortions are legal in the first three months, has passed the Illinois House.

Judge Julius Hoffman of U. S. District court has been removed as the judge who will try an explosive Chicago police scandal. Judge William Bauer was assigned to try the case.

The world

Lebanese air force planes again went into action to silence Palestinian guerrilla positions by bombarding the Kileat air base near Lebanon's northern border with Syria.

The Viet Cong have accused the South Vietnamese government of murdering 25 civilian prisoners who were supposed to have been released under Vietnam peace accord terms.

Men of two local churches will lend a helping hand at special Mother's Day parties this weekend.

"The Men in Red" will serve at tonight's Mother-Daughter banquet at Prospect Heights Community Church. Fashions from Cynthia's Shop in Des Plaines will be modeled by some of the mothers and daughters.

At Northwest Covenant Church, several husbands will handle serving and cleanup for tomorrow's Mother and Daughter salad luncheon. Admission is by salad only!

NANCY FLORES will receive the God-Home-Country emblem this Sunday at the 8:30 a.m. service at St. Mark Lutheran Church. This award is given to young people for their faithfulness and usefulness to church and community.

Nancy, a senior at Prospect High School, is student director of the ecumenical "Life" group and has been active in the Camp Fire Girls organization. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Flores of 111 N. Emerson St.

"WHAT WISKERS Did," by Ruth Carroll, is an unusual children's book. It has pictures but no text. Recently it was used as the basis of a nation-wide creative writing contest for third grade pupils. Diana Johnson, a student at Euclid School, wrote an original story to go with the illustrations. It won her an honorable mention in the contest, which was sponsored by Henry Z. Walck Inc., New York book publishers.

Each honorable mention winner will receive an autographed copy of "Tough Enough's Pony" by Ruth and Latrobe Carroll, and a portfolio of Ruth Carroll's drawings and paintings entitled "From the Appalachians."

The Euclid School library will also receive this portfolio, plus an autographed copy of Ruth and Latrobe Carroll's

"Bumble Pup." First prize winner in the contest was a third grade girl from California.

BETH SANDBERG, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sandberg of 314 S. Wabasha, will receive her bachelor's degree this weekend. She majored in botany at the University of Wisconsin at Platteville. In the fall she will begin a teaching assistantship at the university and begin work toward her master's degree.

ANOTHER OF this weekend's graduates will be Diane Agger, who will receive her degree from Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

JOHN NIEMET, a senior at Illinois State University at Normal, will present his senior voice recital next Friday evening. He is a music education major and expects to receive his bachelor's degree in June.

Last summer John studied voice and piano at the Academy for Music in Vienna, Austria. He is a graduate of St. Viator High School. John's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Niemet of 306 S. Pine St.

CYCLISTS FROM St. Mark Lutheran Church will make an all-day trip along Chicago's lakefront route tomorrow. Youngsters, oldsters, and in-betweeners will be taking part. Riders will travel to the starting point by bus.

DID YOU KNOW that the idea for the first Mother's Day came from Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, Pa., in 1907? She suggested honoring mothers by wearing carnations on the second Sunday in May. Mothers-in-law have even had their day. The first Mother-in-Law Day was celebrated on March 5, 1934, in Amarillo, Tex. Instigator of the event was Gene How, editor of the Amarillo Daily News, who wanted to honor his mother-in-law.

$100,000 school deficit calls for fund juggling

Because of an anticipated deficit of about $100,000 in the education fund next year, the Mount Prospect Dist. 57 board has decided to transfer more than $14,000 worth of expenditures from the education fund to the maintenance fund.

According to projections by the district's finance committee, the estimated deficit in the maintenance fund next year will be about $39,000. However, this depends on an increase in assessed valuation plus a 10 per cent increase in state aid. If such increases are not forthcoming, the committee has estimated the maintenance fund deficit next year at about $67,000.

According to Asst. Supt. J. C. Busenhart, the board can place some items in either the education or maintenance fund, depending on which fund is in better financial shape.

The amount to be transferred to the maintenance fund includes $10,000 in workmen's compensation and other insurance for maintenance employees. Also included is more than $4,000 in repair, replacement and new equipment costs.

Questionnaires fouled up by computers

About 200 residents may not have received their "Your Opinion Please" questionnaires from Mount Prospect Dist. 57.

The questionnaire, which was sent to residents in March, was intended to survey opinions on school board credibility, finances and curriculum.

However, because of a transfer from one computer to another in addressing the questionnaires, more than 200 names have been dropped. At Monday's school board meeting, board member David Khudai said he still had not received his questionnaire and neither had several of his neighbors.

Assistant Supt. J. C. Busenhart said there is no way the district can go back to recover the names that were dropped. The administration didn't realize some residents had been skipped until after the questionnaire was sent out, Busenhart said. "We can't go back and reconstruct them."

As of Wednesday morning, 972 questionnaires had been returned to the district. More than 6,000 questionnaires were mailed out, Busenhart said.

If there are residents who have not received questionnaires yet and would still like to participate in the survey, they may pick up a questionnaire and answer sheet at the administration office 701 W. Gregory St.

Jaycees win 6 state awards

The Mount Prospect Jaycees have won six state Jaycee awards, including Kenneth V. Scholten's selection as Outstanding State Director in Illinois.

Scholten, 1720 Estates Dr., is the current blood program chairman for the Jaycees, and a village trustee. He was named one of the Jaycees Ten Outstanding Young Men in the state last March.

Five of the local Jaycee chapter projects also won awards in the competition among the 280 Jaycee chapters in the state. First place awards were received in the Publications Division for their chapter newsletter and in the International Involvement Division for the World Table Tennis Team tryouts the chapter sponsored.

Their local Public Affairs Banquet won second place in the Public Relations Division and the blood program won third place in the Human Relations Division. Third place was also won in the Inter-club Relations Division for the North Region Jaycee Bowling Tournament.

The awards were presented to Scholten and Bruce Groat, chapter president, last weekend at the Illinois Jaycees State Convention in Springfield.

Gunman robs clerk at cleaning store

About $90 was taken from a clerk at Reichardt's Cleaners, 1701 W. Golf Rd., Wednesday evening by a man wearing a nylon stocking over his face and brandishing a blue steel automatic pistol.

According to clerk Deanne Cameron, the man entered the store from the south side of the building, pointed the gun at her and said, "Open the cash register and give me the money."

After the robbery, Mrs. Cameron said the man walked southbound to the store's south parking lot. According to police, no vehicle was observed leaving the parking lot.

Police are investigating.

Plaza plans May 19 Charity Fair

Seven girls will compete for the title of Charity Fair Princess and 14 women will compete for the Charity Fair Queen title in this year's Mount Prospect Plaza Charity Fair.

The fair will be May 19 at the Plaza, Rand and Central roads. Twenty-five Northwest suburban charity organizations will have booths this year in the annual country fair-bazaar type event.

Home-baked goods, handcrafted items, balloons, white elephant items, and hot dogs will be sold. There will be trophies and cash prizes for booth decorations given by the Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants Association.

The princess candidates are Sue Clofelter of the Arlington Heights O da kon ya wa can ki ya Camp Fire Girl Troop; Karen Olstad of Girl Scout Troop 361; Sharon Scoma of Northwest Assembly of God W.M.C.; Kerensa Guard of Northwest Suburban Day Care Center; Karla Rae Pierce of P.L.E.A.S.E.; Jo Ellen Heaver of Potawatomi District Camp Fire Girls; and Julie Lang of Regina Auxiliary, Knights of Columbus.

THE QUEEN candidates include Mickey Davis of Ben Levin Memorial for Retarded Children; Nancy Flores of Potawatomi District Camp Fire Girls; Debbie Mace of Horizon Club Camp Fire Girls; Cynthia Tivers of Hadassah; Rosemary Abraham of Maryville youngsters; Doreen Diehl of Mount Prospect Jaycee Wives; and Jeanette Schneyer of Nathan Goldblatt Cancer Research Fund.

Other queen candidates are Jackie Orlando of Northwest Suburban Chapter for United Cerebral Palsy; Jill Ziske of Combined Nurses Clubs; Anna Mae Carlson of Northwest Assembly of God W.M.C.; Sally Gravenhorst of P.L.E.A.S.E.; Lynn Jeschke of Regal Valiants Drum & Bugle Corp.'s Parents Booster Club; Gloria DiMaria of St. Stephens Rosary Altar Society; and Peggy Stanley of Mount Prospect Newcomers Club.

Each vote is a penny, and local stores and businesses will have cans on display for votes. The votes will be counted at 1 p.m. May 19. The queen and princess and their courts will then be presented in the plaza's mall area.

Driver test unit in area May 14, 15

A mobile driver's testing unit, staffed by two Illinois driver's license examiners, will be at the Randhurst Shopping Center May 14 and 15.

The secretary of state's licensing facility, a converted bookmobile, will make its debut here, the first stop on a 15-city tour throughout Illinois in May and June. The license examiners will give written, vision and sign tests and "will be just like a full driver's testing station except there will be no actual driving test," a spokesman for Secretary of State Michael Howlett said yesterday.

The Herald urged such a mobile driver's testing unit in the Northwest suburbs more than a year ago, after plans for a permanent driver station here were delayed. Howlett's aide said the stop in the Northwest suburbs was chosen first because of the public sentiment for a local licensing facility.

He said no site for a permanent facility in the area has been selected. A three-man committee is now searching for a new site.

LAST YEAR, the secretary of state's office announced that a station would be built near Quentin Road between Northwest Highway and Dundee roads north of Palatine. But it was determined a substantial portion of the land was unbuildable.

The mobile unit will hit all the large population areas in the state during the next two months, according to the Howlett spokesman. It will visit Rockford, Moline, Champaign and Lawrenceville this month.

Besides administering the written tests, the state examiners will have records available of all drivers in Illinois and will renew licenses and correct those with misinformation.

Schools to extend 'gifted' program costs," Grodsky said. "The district eventually will have to start assuming a bigger portion of the bill."

THE CREATIVELY gifted program costs the district nothing since the teachers and volunteers donate their planning periods to conduct the special classes.

Next year, the district plans to continue the pilot program at Eisenhower, but in the third grade rather than fourth and fifth. The academically gifted program for fifth graders will be extended to all the schools in the district, Grodsky said.

According to Grodsky, one person would be appointed in each of the schools to handle the gifted children. This person would be given a half-day each week to do the work. The funds for the volunteer would come out of the substitute program, Grodsky said.

In other business at Wednesday's meeting, the board directed the administration to look into having a crossing guard placed at the intersection of Rand and Camp McDonald Roads. Several parents have complained that the intersection is a dangerous one.

Also at the meeting, the board officially approved the appointment of the board's attorney, Henry Valley, as a negotiator for the board. Valley has been working on negotiations for several weeks. However, because the board failed to make his appointment at the recent board reorganization meeting, members did it officially Wednesday. Valley has been hired at a cost of $30 per hour.

Construction site equipment stolen

Almost $150 worth of equipment was stolen from a construction site at 1018 Beechwood Drive between Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning.

According to Terrance Frediani of Prospect Enterprises, two fans and a sump pump were taken from the site.

In another incident, tools and a toolbox, valued at about $100, were stolen from the garage of Mrs. Ronald Douriet, 508 N. Prospect Ave.

Mrs. Douriet told police the tools were taken this week.

THE FIRST PATIENT in the new pediatrics department at Holy Family Hospital was 4-year-old Brian Zambos, 1717 Maya Ln., Mount Prospect. Dolores Szatkowski, patient care manager, Mount Prospect, and Brian's dad, James, got the youngster settled in the playroom. The new department is "smaller and more efficient," according to hospital officials. It is furnished with new pediatric beds with see-through raised roofs, eliminating the need to strap patients down to prevent them from falling out.

St. Alphonsus school board seeks principal

The school board of St. Alphonsus Catholic School in Prospect Heights is seeking candidates for a new school principal next fall.

According to Rosemary Kreuser, chairman of the principal search committee, the current principal, Sister Camilla, is being transferred to another post. She said the order of nuns that serves the school (Sisters of Christian Charity) is not sending a replacement.

"We'll probably be hiring a lay person for the job, although other nuns can apply," Mrs. Kreuser said. She said salary is negotiable and anyone who wants to apply for the job should call her at 255-5562.

Mrs. Kreuser said no one currently on the staff at St. Alphonsus, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., is eligible for the promotion. The staff is composed of primarily lay persons, although several nuns still teach at the school.

In other business, the parish has elected two new school board members to two-year terms. They are Brian Halpin, 110 E. Olive St., Prospect Heights, and Leo Guenther, 1081 Sherwood Dr., Wheeling. They replace Board Pres. Myron Heimerle, 18 Wildwood Dr., and Louis Peterhans, 507 N. Maple St., both of Prospect Heights.

She used to live here 'in country' was $7.50," she said. (Today it's $34.80).

THE GREAT-GRANDMOTHER said it's hard for her to realize how radically different things are today from 50 years ago because the change has been gradual. She still has articles at home, though, to remind her of days gone by — including two cherry pitters she found last week while cleaning the pantry.

Mrs. Duwe is still active. She sews all her own clothes on a treadle sewing machine tucked away in a corner of her kitchen. She continued to vote in village elections and on anything that concerns taxes. She still plants tulips each fall outside her home.

She said she wouldn't want to go back to the way things were a half century ago. "I've lived a full life," she said. "And God has been good to me."

Help!!

Do your bit for law and order, support your local sheriff!

Our Place Restaurant, corner of Wolf and Camp McDonald, Prospect Heights needs your assistance. We were burglarized Monday, April 16, 1973. A large amount of liquor and a complete stereo sound system were taken. The robbery occurred between the hours of 6:30 p.m. and 10:00 a.m. and evidently took place in the alley behind the store, but the stolen goods may have been transferred to an auto or truck either in back or in front of the store.

At 6:30 a.m. that Monday morning 2 police cars and the Arc Disposal garbage truck were in the back alley and they say there was no sign of entry at that time. At 10 a.m. our milk man entered the store and found the back kitchen door broken into and left ajar.

We can ill afford this loss as we are not insured for theft. We offer a $100.00 reward for information leading to the apprehension and conviction of these criminals.

If you saw anything unusual happening around Our Place during these hours Monday, April 16, please call us at 297-5484. If you prefer, notify the Cook County Sheriff's Office in Niles, 443-6113 - Detective William G. Dennaer

$11 million school district budget presented to board

A budget of $11 million for 1973-74, with more than half allocated to teachers' and administrators' salaries, was presented last night to board members of Arlington Heights School Dist. 25.

The new budget represents $700,000 more than last year's budget of $10.3 million, or an increase of approximately 7 per cent.

"The biggest expenses are always personnel," said Donald Monroe, director of administering and planning. "Teachers are our biggest resource."

The increase will be used for hiring personnel for new and continuing programs and improving student services, according to District Supt. Donald V. Strong.

Teachers and administrators will receive $6.2 million this fiscal year compared to last year's $5.8 million. This represents an increase of 7 per cent, due to "everything" according to Strong, including cost of living and pay raises.

Taxpayers can expect a tax rate ranging between $2.82 and $2.89 per $100 assessment, which is approximately the same as last year's tax rate, according to Strong.

THE BUDGET HAS been tentatively scheduled to be filed for public inspection June 21 and to be approved Aug. 23 by the school board. Meanwhile, the board will study the budget for possible modifications.

Other allocations include $1.1 for maintenance, $1.1 for bonds and interest, $284,000 for transportation, $245,000 for employee retirement and $300,000 for other funds and accounts. The educational fund, from which teachers' and administrators' salaries are paid, has an $8 million allocation.

The district had been operating under a "tight belt" budget since the defeat of a 1971 referendum to increase the tax rate, according to Strong. The district had been in a debt position and was forced to cut school programs and other services.

"We've had a tight, carefully controlled budget for the last two years," said Strong. "However it has paid off in that during the period, the district's financial house has been brought into order."

Strong said he anticipates steady financial improvement in the years to come, but added that the district is by no means in a position to "jump back to 1971 levels" when a multitude of school programs and services were in operation.

STRONG SAID the district can expect financial improvement due to the stability in enrollment and anticipated revenue changes and limited increases in the re-assessment of property.

"Discretionary spending is still limited, since there are far more things to do than there is money to do them," said Strong. "The important thing about this budget is that we can at least do a few of them."

FIFTH GRADERS Bill Selzer, Pat Gormley and Chris Pityer at North School, Arlington Heights, take some class time to plant a flowering bush. Proceeds from a PTA recycling drive held last October were used to purchase other assorted bushes and plants to help beautify village schools.

Parks to sell tax warrants for second month

The Arlington Heights Park District will be selling tax anticipation warrants for the second straight month, according to Roger Burke, park treasurer.

Tax anticipation warrants are short-term interest-bearing notes sold to raise money. They are based upon tax revenues a municipal body expects to receive.

The warrants not to exceed, $80,000, were authorized by park commissioners this week to meet bond and interest payments due May 26. The commissioners provided Burke with a $3,300 cushion in the warrant to meet the $76,700 obligation.

Burke sold $75,000 in warrants during April to meet operating expenses of the district.

The April warrants were needed, he said, because of an error in the tax rate given the district by the Cook County Clerk's office last year.

The mistaken rate of .350 on assessed valuation, instead of .375, cost the district more than $66,000 in lost tax revenues.

THE NEW TAX warrants are needed due to a delay in the mailing of tax bills by the county, he said.

Burke said in past years the bills were mailed in May and the district began receiving money in June. This year the bills will not be sent out until June.

"This year, we'll just be getting a trickle of money in June," Burke said. Burke also said he expects the $66,000 mistake of last year to be made up by the county in this year's tax revenues.

The new warrants were authorized by the board "to be sold at the best available interest rate."

Burke said this gives him room to bargain in the presently fluctuating money market.

April's warrants were sold at 5 per cent, well below the prevailing interest rate.

Woman, 59, charged in bad-check case

Arlington Heights police arrested a Janesville, Wis., woman on forgery charges Wednesday at Arlington Park Race Track.

Mrs. Hazel Panath, 59, was arrested on two felony warrants from Wisconsin charging her with passing bad checks.

Police said a subsequent check of motels and hotels in the Chicago area revealed that Mrs. Panath had paid her bills with bad checks.

She allegedly passed the checks at the Howard Johnson motel, Palatine and the Holiday Inn, Oak Park.

Mrs. Panath is being held in Cook County jail pending extradition to Wisconsin on the charges.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

In the Pentagon Papers trial, Judge Matt Byrne put off for another day the decision to dismiss all charges. An abrupt end to the trial seemed imminent after it was disclosed from FBI reports that Daniel Ellsberg had been wiretapped during 1969 and 1970. That information had not been made available during the trial.

The U.S. Steel Corp. yesterday announced a price hike of 4.8 per cent on just under a third of its raw products. The move was expected to boost the cost of materials used in producing cars and appliances from $8 to $12 a ton.

Former Nixon administration cabinet members John Mitchell and Maurice Stans were indicted yesterday on charges they sought to obstruct an investigation by a federal agency in exchange for a secret $200,000 cash contribution to Nixon's reelection campaign.

President Nixon has named CIA director James Schlesinger to replace Elliot Richardson as secretary of defense. He also named John Connally as special adviser.

Most electronic systems aboard Skylab and its rocket were checked and found free of lightning damage, and the countdown proceeded unimpeded toward Monday's launch.

In a major attack against President Nixon's Indochina policy, the House blocked a transfer of funds at the Pentagon to relieve money shortages caused by the bombing of Indochina.

Former White House counsel John Dean III said there was "a concerted effort to get me" but he would refuse to shoulder the blame for others implicated in the Watergate affair.

The state

A measure designed to offset last year's U. S. Supreme Court ruling which held abortions are legal in the first three months, has passed the Illinois House.

Judge Julius Hoffman of U. S. District court has been removed as the judge who will try an explosive Chicago police scandal. Judge William Bauer was assigned to try the case.

The world

Lebanese air force planes again went into action to silence Palestinian guerrilla positions by bombarding the Kileat air base near Lebanon's northern border with Syria.

The Viet Cong have accused the South Vietnamese government of murdering 25 civilian prisoners who were supposed to have been released under Vietnam peace accord terms.

New high school principal to speak at PTA meeting

Dr. Chick Miller, principal of Buffalo Grove High School, is scheduled to discuss plans for the new facility at the final meeting this year of the Cooper Junior High School PTA Monday, May 21.

The meeting is set for 8 p.m. at the school, just off Arlington Heights Road on Plum Grove Circle in Buffalo Grove.

All interested persons, in addition to Cooper PTA members, are invited to attend. Miller will talk about the construction schedule for the new building and present an orientation program for parents whose children will attend the school.

The Cooper PTA meeting is one of several sessions Miller has said he plans to conduct in the next few months to acquaint parents with the operations of the new high school.

Cooper's seventh grade chorus will present a program as entertainment at the PTA meeting. The chorus, under the direction of Cheryl Siedentop, will perform choral arrangements which won it a first place rating at the recent state music contest in Zion. It will be accompanied by Mrs. Kolls on the piano.

Officers for the 1973-74 school year will also be elected at the meeting. Those slated for election are Robert McKenzie, president; Josephine Tessare, first vice president; Stephanie Sloat, second vice president; Julie Schott, recording secretary; Arlene Rinerson, corresponding secretary and Janet Walters for treasurer. Nominations for all officers will also be accepted from the floor.

GARBAGE TRUCKS will stop hauling to the Arlington Heights landfill at the end of May as the village prepares to close the facility at Nichols and Schaefer roads. The landfill is being shut down because of the high cost of excavating another hole for burying refuse. The landfill will remain closed until the cost of hauling to other private landfills rises above the cost of reopening the municipal facility. Village officials say it will take six months to seal off, grade and plant the manmade mountain of garbage and earth.

Only one dissenting view

June 9 school referendum studied

Only one person offered dissenting opinions during an informal panel discussion of the $1.25 million bond referendum that will be conducted June 9 by Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59.

The panel was part of the Dist. 59 School Community Council meeting Wednesday night.

Taking part in the panel were school board members Judy Zanca, Emil Bahnmaler, Al Domanico and Charles Knaup; Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administration; Leah Cummins, district community relations specialist and Joseph Stecker, SCC member.

The bond issue, if passed, would be used for the remodeling of Grove and Dempster junior high schools. Included in the remodeling is replacement of heating and ventilating systems, relocation of certain classrooms and small additions to both schools.

ACCORDING TO district figures, the referendum, would increase real estate tax rates by three cents per $100 assessed valuation. The current rate for the bond and interest fund is 58 cents per $100 valuation. This rate is scheduled to drop to 47 cents per $100 valuation in next year's budget. Even if the referendum were passed, the tax rate would still be below current levels.

Stecker said some of the remodeling is needed, but the referendum includes unnecessary and expensive plans. He said, "I can't fully support the referendum. I favor the needed remodeling, but are we getting our money's worth? Are we getting $1 worth of goods for every $1 spent?"

Stecker agreed that the heating and ventilating systems have to be replaced and the learning centers in the schools need improvement. He said, however, that he is opposed to the relocation of rooms and the building of additions, especially at Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

According to Stecker, when Friendship

Junior High School in Des Plaines is ready, Dempster's student population will drop by about one-third. Friendship School is expected to open in September.

DOMANICO COUNTERED Stecker's objections by saying the relocations and additions would improve the "production" of the teachers and counselors.

He agreed that Dempster's student population would decline, but said the school is now over-crowded.

"It is really unfair — in some cases unhealthy — to have Dempster and Grove exist as they do now," said Domanico.

Perry said when Dempster and Grove were built in 1960 the district was growing rapidly and was forced to build schools "as fast and as cheaply as possible." He said the district did a "commendable job" in building the schools considering the circumstances, but now the schools have to be improved.

SINCE THE SCHOOLS were built, Dempster has had five additions and Grove has had four. Perry said that after so many additions, "the buildings and the educational programs don't match together very well."

About 40 persons attended the SCC meeting, the last regular meeting for the current school year. New officers were elected for the coming year.

Elected were: Nita Stamm, president; Claran Stecker, first vice-president; David Bell, second vice president; Mary Kloster, third vice president, and Mary Ann Wood, secretary.

The president's race was the only contested election. Mrs. Stamm defeated Dolly Burton, 15 to 11, in the voting.

What Is A Prescription?

That small scrap of paper with writing on it that you sometimes do not understand can sometimes be the difference between a fast recovery and a lingering illness.

Actually, a prescription is a valuable document. Doctors study over ten years to be able to write them, pharmacists, five or more years to learn about them and how to dispense them. Drug companies sometimes spend millions of dollars to discover and perfect the drugs in them. The amount all this knowledge costs can save you sickness time and even your life.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

"Clean-Up" for Southeast Area Monday

On Monday, our men will be picking up "Spring Clean-Up" trash (old furniture and appliances placed at the curb from all customers within village limits who live in the Southeast section of town — that is, in the area east of Arlington Heights Road and south of Northwest Highway.

To receive this free service, "Spring Clean-Up" trash must be available at your curb by 7:00 am Monday, regardless of what your normal garbage service day is.

Because this is a big job, our men may not be able to clear up the entire Southeast area on Monday alone. But if not, they'll get to you within a day or two following.

We will appreciate your cooperation.
